Letter To The Editor:

TO THE EDITOR:

Since Tobacco entered the Political atmosphere it has had ever increasing troubles on many many fronts, with the United States Health Department, with Foreign Producers, with Manufacturers and Purchasers. Many persons feel that the problem began with the departure from the basic law of supply and demand, and that it will grow and continue until it returns.

The program among other things, created a monopoly or closed Corporation in the hands of the original growers and disfranchised non growers. In our eagerness to maintain high prices, we have encouraged the purchasers and manufacturers to seek production in foreign fields with cheap production cost to sustain their one self income margin, and so we have in a way priced ourselves out of the market. Further we have from time to time cut the original allotments about 50% and still we produce more and more pounds that the government must buy as surplus and pay storage costs, all at the expense of the people. Also we have forced many farmers to abandon their farms and seek employment elsewhere at the loss of their improvements and equipment and others to become marginal farmers, who must seek work in other fields or become members of the relief rolls. And so the program has multiplied the problem and the future of tobacco is uncertain and no one appears to have any recipe or prescription.

The Farm Bureau plan seems a severe immediate major operation, and while it may not kill off many tobacco farmers, yet it will certainly greatly increase marginal operators, who will have to seek outside employment or join forces of unemployed or become members of the welfare rolls or poverty victims.

It appears that the solution if any there be, lies in the production of better high quality tobacco, that will meet competition and satisfy the purchasers and manufacturers. So why not stop talking so much about acreage and poundage, and begin to seriously talk and think about how to produce better high quality tobacco, and this before we consider abolishing the program and return to the law of supply and demand?

Charges Dropped Against Berle

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Charges have been dismissed against Milton Berle's nephew, but his girlfriend faces a preliminary hearing Dec. 23 in connection with theft of jewels and furs from the comedian's home.

Barbara Jean Lewis, 26, was arraigned Wednesday before Municipal Judge Jacques Leslie and pleaded innocent to two felony counts. One charged her with grand theft burglary and receiving stolen property. The other accused her of possession of marijuana.

Judge Leslie set her preliminary hearing for Dec. 23.

A few minutes before her arraignment, Marshall Berle, 26, appeared before the judge, who noted that no complaint against the nephew had been issued by the district attorney's office. The judge dismissed a grand theft charge against young Berle and ordered his bail exonerated.

Police said young Berle had told them he turned the furs and gems taken from the Berle home two weeks ago over to Miss Lewis. He assertedly told detectives that she disposed of the items for $2,500.
