Mafia Reported In Hotel Move

NEW YORK — Mafia hoodlums are trying to muscle in on the $50 million investment in new motels, cabana clubs, night clubs and marinas in the Sheepshead Bay section of Brooklyn, a high police official said recently.

At least one motel proprietor has been beaten for refusing to give a share of his business to underworld figures, the official said. Other business men have reported being threatened.

These facts came to light following the arrest of Carmine Lombardozzi, a chieftain in the Brooklyn Mafia "family" of Carlo Gambino, with a bookmaker and a woman companion in a motel restaurant in Sheepshead Bay.

Three other men, all reportedly with Mafia connections, were arrested while they set at another table in the same establishment. Still another underworld figure, Joseph (the Ninx) Livoti, reportedly an "enforcer" for Johnny (Bath Beach) Oddo, was seized at a near-by cabana club.

"These arrests are part of an operation against Brooklyn mobsters," said the police official, who asked that his name not be used.

College Coeds Are Involved

Hospital Sex Orgies Charged

TRENTON, N. J. (UPI) — A legislative committee was told here that college coeds who worked at a state mental hospital attended drunken parties at the institution and had sexual relations with inmates. The committee investigating conditions at Greystone Park State Hospital also was told that convicted sex offenders virtually had run of the institution operating loan shark, bookmaking and lottery operations.

Lloyd W. McCorkle, commissioner of state institutions and agencies, admitted the alleged improprieties "may very well be true." The hospital is in Parsippany-Troy Hills, N. J.

"You must have gambling and sex whenever you have 10,000 persons together," McCorkle said.

Robert Noonan of the Morris County prosecutor's office testified that a nurse at Greystone had told him:

"You can go into the ward, order any drink, and they (the patients) will mix it for you."

Noonan said the attendants bought the liquor for the patients "as an accommodation." He said one former attendant told him he once opened a linen closet door and found an inmate and a girl at

Klan and Negro Both Planning Rallies Tonight

PLYMOUTH (UPI) — "Extra" highway patrolmen were arriving in Plymouth today as Negroes and Ku Klux Klansmen both planned night rallies.

Trial was set in Superior Court for four persons facing charges which grew out of racial disturbances in Plymouth almost two weeks ago.

In still another development, the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, a top official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was to meet with D. S. Coltrane, the state's top racial troubleshooter. Coltrane, chairman of the State Good Neighbor Council, was expected to urge Abernathy to hold off any civil rights demonstrations. Abernathy scheduled a news conference at 4 p.m.

Highway Patrol Commander Col. David Lambert said "extra" patrol assistance is being sent into the Plymouth area to aid local law enforcement officers in the event they are needed.

Negroes scheduled a rally at a local church while the Ku Klux Klan planned to meet nearby in rural Washington County.

Riddle Appeals; Must Serve Other Term

Woman's Attacker Given Two Years

Carl Riddle, 31, of Erwin was in the Dunn jail today tried in Dunn Court today on two charges after a pretty young secretary for a building supply firm identified him as the same man who attacked her Thursday afternoon.

Judge Woodrow Hill dismissed the attempted rape charge against Riddle and gave him two years on the assault charge, suspended on payment of $250 fine and court costs. Riddle gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Riddle was already under a 30-day suspended sentence for public drunkenness. Judge Hill ordered Riddle to serve this 30 days and he was taken to the roads to begin his sentence.

Police Chief Alton Cobb said Miss Henrietta Maynor, 18, picked Riddle out of a police line-up and that he has been charged with assault on a female and a second charge of assault on a female with intent to commit rape.

Miss Maynor told the court today the man walked into her office at John David Lee's building company on East Broad St., forced her against the wall, with his arm around her neck and warned that he had a gun.

"If you'll go into the back room and do what I say I won't harm you," she quoted him as saying.

The girl said he had opened the drawer of her desk as though searching for money. She said he never did say exactly what he wanted.

Her screams frightened him away and she ran next door to Strickland's Auto Service for help. H. D. Strickland, Jr. phoned police after he and others could not find the man in her office.

Chief Cobb, Sergeant J. L. Jones and Deputy Carson Hall took Riddle into custody a few minutes later. Cobb said Riddle claimed he had just left the alcoholic ward of State hospital but a check showed he had just left the Wilson County jail, where he said he had been held for three weeks prior to acquittal on auto theft charges.

"Riddle said if he did it he was too drunk to remember it," related Cobb, who added, "He had been drinking but was not too drunk to know what he was doing."

Evangelist Hemorrhaging

Graham Suffering From Complications

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) — An associate of Dr. Billy Graham said today the evangelist was suffering complications following prostate surgery but the Mayo Clinic said his condition was "excellent."

The associate, Grady Wilson of Charlotte, N. C., said Graham had a "rough morning" and would have to be hospitalized several more days. He said that for the first time since the Thursday operation he was

State Senator Robert B. Morgan of Lillington said Saturday that if officials of the University of North Carolina refuse to assure citizens that communists will be kept off its campuses, then "they must assume full responsibility for the ill-effects they claim the communist speaker ban law might cause."

Morgan, president pro tem of the Senate, expressed "regret and disappointment" when asked to comment on a story by United Press International which quoted "a highly-placed source in the university" as expressing "doubt" trustees would adopt an anti-Communist speaker policy.

Sen. Morgan emphasized his position has not changed from that he outlined in a speech at Dunn July 4 and that stated when he appeared for the American Legion before the commission August 12.

He also said that a proposal by UNC President William Friday is not acceptable, and actually would not regulate visiting speakers.

Appearing before the Communist Ban Commission Wednesday, Sen. Morgan said he did not believe the legislature would return power to regulate speakers to trustees until they adopted a strong anti-Communist policy such as they already have in effect at East Carolina College. Morgan at that time declined to comment on Friday's statement that the law must be amended or repealed before he would propose any changes in the university's speaker policy.

"I do not believe this law should be repealed or amended in any way until after and only after trustees of all the institutions have taken firm action to guarantee to the people that communist and other undesirable speakers will be prohibited," said Morgan.

Explaining the difference between his position and that of Friday, Morgan said: "We say at East Carolina, we have no desire to have the communists, period. The regulations which Dr. Friday says he will propose to his board if the law is repealed contained no restrictions on communists or others covered by the law from visiting the campuses. They merely provide that each chancellor may, if he deems it appropriate, require a senior member of the faculty to be present and that questions be allowed."

This seems to me to say that such persons will be allowed to appear. "The issue is simple," said Morgan.

"UNC officials objected to this law passed by the legislature in keeping with the wishes of the people on grounds it constituted outside political interference which they say threatens accreditation." He went on to cite the East Carolina policy which asserts that is not necessary for communists to appear on the campuses, and pointed out that such policy was adopted voluntarily and has actually been in practice during the entire 56-year history of the college.

"greatly concerned." The clinic said however, that the surgeon who performed the operation felt there was "no question over relapse" and he was "not concerned." The clinic estimated the evangelist would be in Methodist Hospital for another three or four days. Graham underwent surgery on his prostate gland at the clinic (Continued on Page 6)
