Sheriff Says He, Deputies Joined Klan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A North Carolina sheriff testified today that he and six of his deputies had joined the Ku Klux Klan in 1963, but he said they had done so merely to keep an eye on the secret organization.

The testimony was given before the House Committee on Un-American Activities by Marion W. Mills, sheriff of New Hanover County, N. C.

Chief Committee Investigator Donald Appell said that Mills' testimony conflicted with previous statements he had made to investigators.

Appell said Mills had denied to investigators that he or his deputies had ever been members of the Klan.

Mills, appearing before the committee, said that he did not recall what he had said to the investigators.

"I was confused," he testified. The white-haired, 50-year-old sheriff told the committee that he and his deputies had joined the Klan when a local chapter was formed in Wilmington, N. C.

Their purpose in joining, he said, was to observe the organization and to see if it committed any violence.

Mills said he ordered his deputies to leave the Klan and quit himself when he was convinced there was no violence and when "rumors" began circulating.

Suicide Troops Of Communists Lead Attacks

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops mounted another all-out attack on the U. S. Special Forces camp at Plei Me, today, including a human wave suicide charge. They were beaten back within a half hour by massive U. S. air and artillery strikes.

The artillery was provided by elements of the U. S. 1st Cavalry division, whose pinpoint shelling of Viet Cong positions Monday night enabled a Vietnamese relief column to reach the besieged fortress.

It was the seventh day of fighting at the outpost, 215 miles northeast of Saigon in the Central Highlands.

The Communists opened up today with mortars, recoilless rifles and sent suicide squads charging to within 25 yards of the Plei Me fence before they were cut down by heavy fire from the beefed-up garrison.

U. S. Air Force and Navy planes, which have made the difference in the week-long fighting, bombed the guerrillas and their north Vietnamese reinforcements with high explosive bombs, flaming napalm and rockets.

Tons of Feed Stolen From Coats Milling Co.

Coats Firm Hit By Theft

Harnett authorities today were investigating the bold front-door night-time theft of two or more tons of hog feed from the Coats Milling Company at Coats.

Sheriff Wade Stewart said today that the exact amount of the loss has not been determined, but added, "They got a lot of it — about two or three tons or more."

The break-in was discovered Tuesday morning by Paul Pollard, owner of the Purina mill. He said he left his plant, located on busy Highway 55 just south of Coats, about 11 p. m.

Thieves didn't bother to go to the back. They just backed a truck up to the front door, broke the lock on the door and loaded up.

"They probably figured it would be less suspicious if they loaded the feed just like they were supposed to be doing it and they got away with it," said the Sheriff.

Tourists along the highway no doubt thought it was the work of employees.

Sheriff Stewart said Pollard told him most of the stolen feed consisted of hog supplement and other high-priced feeds.

Only a small amount of change had been left in the office cash box.

Queen Decorates Idols As Thousands Battle Police

Beatles Fans Storm Palace; Ringo Dances A Jig Inside

LONDON (UPI) — Beatles fans stormed the gates of Buckingham Palace today in a hysterical effort to see Queen Elizabeth honor their idols. It was the first time within memory that a mob has tried to invade the home of the royal family.

Thousands of screaming teenagers and younger children struggled with police and many climbed the great iron railings around the Queen's home.

One boy got into the palace grounds before police grabbed him. A 14-year-old girl, wearing a top hat and a white shirt with Beatle slogans on it, reached the top of the 15-foot-high gates and defied the attempts of police to coax her down. A police inspector finally climbed up and got her.

The occasion was the queen's award of the Order of the British Empire to the moptopped singers.

At one point during the investiture Beatle Ringo Star danced a jig on the ornate state ballroom of the palace.

After the ceremony was over Paul McCartney said of the queen: (Continued On Page Six)
