Underworld War Has Boston Police Battled

More Gangland Executions

REVERE, Mass. (UPI) — The beachfront bar with a huge grinning Mickey Mouse above the door is closed today.

The last persons to step through the door into the dimly lit cafe Monday were two underworld executioners who gunned the bartender and a cory.

Revere police today went through the motions of investigating the 27th and 28th gangland slayings to occur in the metropolitan Boston area in the past 20 months, but admitted they "didn't have the faintest idea" whom they were looking for.

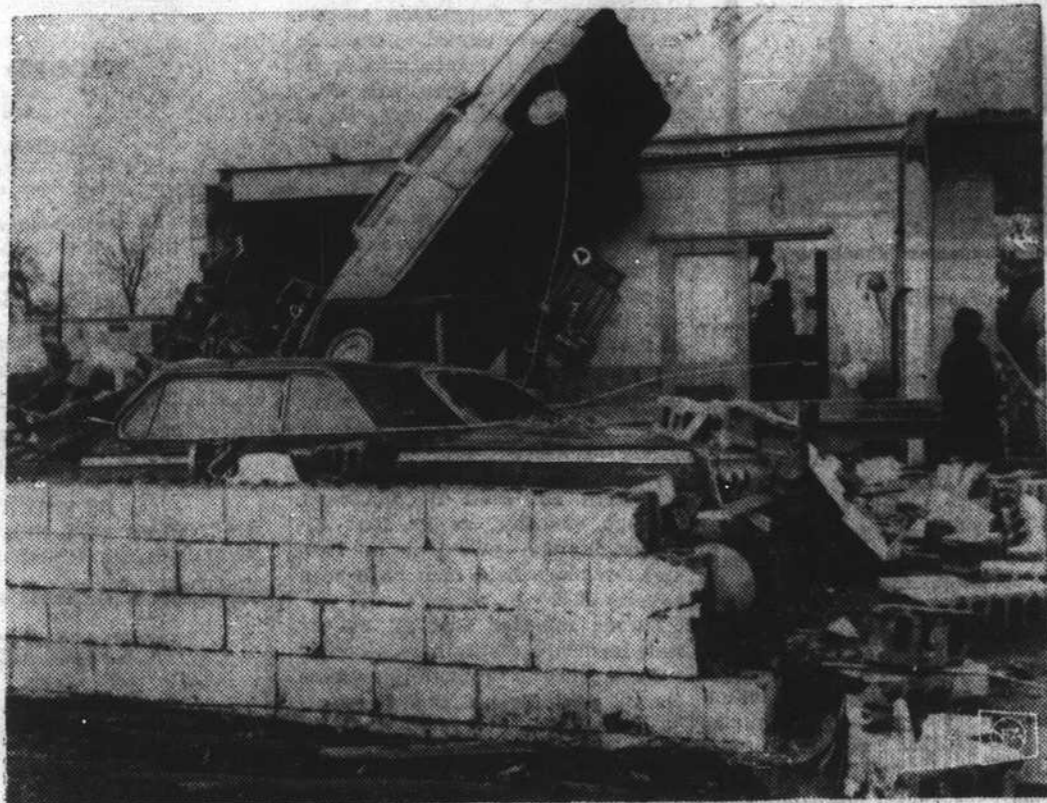

In Boston proper, where the underworld assassins struck earlier in the day, police were equally stymied. The three killings marked the heaviest loss of life in one day since the gang war began.

"We haven't got a suspect and we haven't got a witness," Revere Detective Lt. George Hurley said today. "All we've got is two bodies."

The bodies were those of John O'Neill, 26, who lived four houses from the bar, and Raymond Distasio, 35, of Medford, the bartender.

Boston police also had a body—that of a Winchester ex-convict shot to death earlier in the day in Boston's North End.

Special Session With Highway Officials

County Board To Meet Wed.

More Than Triple In Dunn

Reenlistments Up

Reenlistment of ex-servicemen has more than tripled in the Dunn, N. C. area during the past few months according to Sergeant Jack D. Brown, local Air Force Recruiter.

Prior to President Johnson's announcement in August of a military manpower increase, the Air Force Recruiting Office here could only accept one prior service application every four months.

Now Sgt. Brown enlists 5 or more every month and expects the Before the buildup began, the trend to continue indefinitely. Air Force accepted applications from only those ex-servicemen from only those ex-servicemen who had a highly technical skill that was critically short in Air Force units. All others were politely turned away.

Now however, the list of needed skills has expanded to encompass nearly every career field used by the Air Force.

Those returning to military life offer varied reasons for their decision. Continued on Page Six

Of Cornelia Campbell House

Campbell Coeds Plan Dedication

Campbell College coeds specializing in home economics will be hostesses at an open house from two to five o'clock Friday afternoon as the college names and dedicates its recently opened Cornelia Pearson Campbell Home Management House.

To be named in honor of the late widow of James A. Campbell, founder of the college, the new facility has been created by remodeling the residence in which she lived for many years. It faces

N. C. Highway 27 at the south of the main campus. Mrs. Campbell died in February, 1963.

Invited for the event are home economics department heads of 12 North Carolina colleges that offer the subject. Other guests will be teachers of home economics in schools of Harnett, Cumberland, Lee, Johnson, Sampson and Wake counties where Campbell has prospective teachers assigned for student teaching. The Harnett County Board of Commissioners will hold a special session Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock with Sixth Division Highway Commissioner Carl Meares and other highway officials.

It will be Commissioner Meares' first visit to Harnett since taking over the division's top highway post. He will be accompanied by Engineer Sam Wilson and other highway officials.

Chairman Jack Brock said the meeting is being held to discuss pending highway projects in the county. He said he didn't think the officials would get into a discussion of projects to be undertaken with funds voted in the recent State bond election.

Chairman Brock said the county executives would probably take up a number of other matters at the session.

Smith Held In Wife Slaying

Willie Smith, waived a preliminary hearing in Harnett County Recorder's Court and was ordered held without privilege of bond by Judge Robert Morgan for appearance before the grand jury for the alleged murder of his wife Hazel Lee Smith. Smith is charged with shooting. (Continued On Page Six)

Places Wreath on JFK's Grave

Princess Meg Begins Whirl In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Britain's Princess Margaret placed a large wreath of chrysanthemums on the grave of President John F. Kennedy today as she began her first full day in the U. S. capital.

The royal visitor walked to the head of Kennedy's grave in Arlington National Cemetery to lay the wreath, then stood prayerfully as a bugler sounded taps.

Several hundred persons watched the ceremony under cloudy, threatening skies. Work on a permanent gravesite for Kennedy and two infant Kennedy children was sus-

Morgan, White Waging Futile Fight To End

RALEIGH — An amendment to the Communist Speaker Ban Law was being steamrolled toward overwhelming passage in the North Carolina Senate this afternoon.

It appeared that the law would be amended in the Senate probably by 4 p. m. The House this morning gave final approval to the amendment.

In doing so, the legislature will, in effect, be saying to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill: "Bring The Communists back; invite all the subversives and enemies of America you desire; roll out the welcome mat for them."

Harnett Representative Carson Gregory voted to retain the law and against amending it.

Morgan leads Fight Senator Robert Morgan of Lillington, one of the leaders favoring the law, was making a last-ditch fight for retention of the law today but conceded it was hopeless.

Governor Moore has thrown the full weight of his office into the fight to amend the law.

Legislators reported arm-twisting in every direction. Gov. Moore sent word he opposed allowing the people to vote on the issue.

Amendments were offered in the House this morning to give the people a vote on the issue and to require UNC officials to maintain a roster of visiting speakers. Both were beaten back by Chairman Dave Britt and his forces.

This afternoon, Sen. Morgan offered a similar amendment in the Senate to require UNC to maintain a roster of speakers but it was also defeated. It was later called up for reconsideration and defeated a second time.

This district's other senator, Volt Gilmore of Southern Pines, has indicated he will vote against the law and in favor of amending it.

State Commander Alvis Carver of the American Legion and other veterans and citizens groups have indicated they will take the fight into next spring's primaries, that the fight is just beginning.

RALEIGH (UPI) — Sen. Tom White of Lenoir, predicting the eclipse of the North Carolina legislature because of reapportionment, urged its members today to cast what may be their last vote in defense of the speaker ban law.

While rising to a point of privilege, was the first speaker as debate began in the special session of the legislature on the administration-backed amendment of the anti-Communist law.

White, referring to the reapportionment suit pending in the federal courts, said members in this special session may be "casting (Continued On Page Six)

Queen Will Be Picked

Campbell's Harvest Festival Underway

Campbell College's annual Harvest Festival, which began today and will run until Friday, will have as its highlight the selection of a Harvest Queen on Friday, according to Student Government President, Tom Wagstaff.

Candidates representing the individual men's dormitories and residences and the day students were presented in chapel on November 1 and 2. The representatives are as follows: Nancy McLaughlin, Britt; Cyndee Hall, Baldwin; Judy Lyntonham, Kitchin; Jane Britt, Layton; Kay Nurney, Layton Annex; Dean Thomas, South; Gloria Ann Adams, Day Students; Carol Heber, Jimmy's Apartments; Jean Powell, Lee Hunt Apartments; Elizabeth Holt, Farm House; and Betty Meade Sturt, Ferrell Apartments. Election day is November 19. All students are urged to support the candidate of their choice.

In conjunction with the Harvest Festival is the Ugliest Man on Campus Contest. The winner of this dubious title will be determined by the fund-raising abilities of his supporters. The following girls' residences are sponsoring these candidates: George Harvey, Day; Ben, Dean, Bryan; Alan Pittman; Jones; Johnny Marshbanks, Treat and McLeod Cottage; Pete Wish, Powell; Larry Kirkman, Strickland

Plans for a parade on November 19 are being formed. Floats and candidates are to be featured. Also in the formative stages are preparations for one of Campbell's most successful ventures, the Harvest Festival Talent Show.

CHARLOTTE (UPI) — Delegates to the 135th annual meeting of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention will be asked to approve three tradition-shattering proposals when the two-day session opens here today.

Two committee reports will ask Baptists to desegregate their churches, praise the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council and approve federal aid to church-supported schools.

The Christian Life Committee will also submit a condemnation of the Ku Klux Klan in its report. It says that Baptists "are equally opposed to any other group which fosters bigotry and hatred."

While the proposals were controversial, one convention source forecast one of the most harmonious meetings in recent years. However, he said a floor fight was "not entirely impossible."

More than 3,500 delegates were also to choose a successor to the Rev. Howard J. Ford of Wilmington, the convention president, at a closing session Wednesday. Leading candidates were Dr. Carl E. Bates of Charlotte, The Rev. E. W. Price Jr. of High Point and Rev. Tom Freeman of Dunn.

The delegates will also be asked to approve the general board's annual report, including proposed constitutional changes to permit the president to appoint a parliamentarian to assist him; to adopt

"rules of order" as a parliamentary guide rather than a "parliamentary law" now in use.

Another proposal would have future conventions begin on Monday night and end Wednesday night, eliminating lightly-attended Thursday morning sessions.

A convention source said the three proposals offered by committees on public affairs and Christian Life represented a "new, forward-looking stance" for the Baptist church. He said Baptists "traditionally were rather conservative" in the past.

Dunnites Elected To Church Posts

The following Dunn persons were elected to positions in the Cape Fear and Southwestern Original Free Will Baptist Original Conference held recently at the Lillington Grove Church in Lillington: The Rev. Clifton Rouse, pastor of Mingo Hill, near Dunn, vice moderator; Deacon Walter Massey Sr., chairman of the Trustee Board; Deacon Walter Massey, Jr., assistant secretary and sinking fund treasurer; Deacon James E. Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the Education Department.

The Rev. George T. Kitzpatrick was defeated by the Rev. U. S. Wade of Lilesville as moderator by a narrow margin of 11 votes.

Lancy K. Raines of Apex was elected annual supervisor while Mrs. S. E. Harris also of Apex is to head the Women's Department.

One Injured In Collision

A collision between a 1965 Dodge and 1965 International dump truck occurred about 6:10 Monday afternoon on the Dunn-Erwin Highway just inside the city limits.

The Dodge owned by M. B. Dixon of 405 W. Johnson St. and driven by his son, made a left turn in front of the truck, which was headed east.

William Earl McKinley driving the truck owned by Paul Beasley of Dunn was treated at James Johnson Hospital for a head injury, which required several stitches to close.

Both vehicles were damaged extensively.

Dunn firemen were called to the scene when gasoline from the truck was spilling on the highway.

Estimated 1,300 Reds Killed

U. S. Casualties Heaviest

SAIGON (UPI) — The U. S. 1st Air Cavalry Division today annihilated the remnants of a North Vietnamese regiment on the slopes of Chu Pung mountain. Officials said 869 North Vietnamese bodies had been counted on the battlefield and estimated that 1,300 Reds died in the battle.

But U. S. casualties were the heaviest of the war, frontline UPI dispatches reported.

The cavalrymen, fighting with valor and determination that brought tears of emotion to the eyes of battle-hardened commanding officers, scored what undoubtedly was the biggest American victory of the war in a three-day operation against a North Vietnamese regular regiment that entered South Viet Nam 15 days ago.

Many of the Communist regulars were killed by small arms fire and others died by artillery and air strikes that included a raid by Guam-based B52 bombers of the Strategic Air Command — the first B52 strike flown in close support of ground troops.
