

Miss Mable Bridges Wins Scholastic Hallmark Award

By James Catimberton Post Staff Writer

...School senior has been named as a Scholastic Award Hallmark winner, Mable Wade Bridges, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton L. Bridges of 505 Jackson Ave.

...The painting, entitled "Kindergarten," was judged as a Blue Ribbon Award winner which designates it as one of the five best in last Sunday's show in the NE NC Plaza Bank Building.

...The art was judged by a panel of judges from outside the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools.

...The art teacher says that Miss Bridges is very creative and "can draw just about anything." She is also very artistic, she added.

...Miss Bridges plans to attend Central Piedmont Community College and wants to pursue a career in art. Her favorite color, you guessed it is art. "I don't know if I have anything to do or draw," smiled Miss Bridges.

...As a Hallmark winner, her design and prize-winning painting will probably appear on a Christmas card or on sheets of stationery in the very near future.

...Her painting, entitled "Kindergarten," was judged as a Blue Ribbon Award winner which designates it as one of the five best in last Sunday's show in the NE NC Plaza Bank Building.

...All top winners will go to New York and are designated

Persistence Pays Off For Mrs. Sarah Polk

By James Foster Post Staff Writer

...Two unsuccessful entries in the annual Pillsbury Bake-Off Contest didn't discourage Mrs. Sarah Polk; persistence and a third attempt paid off and now she is busy preparing to participate in the Finals of this year's Pillsbury Bake-Off Contest in San Francisco, California.

...She will leave Saturday morning at 8 A.M. for the west coast to compete with 99 other contestants all from all 50 states for the $25,000 First Prize.

...Mrs. Polk is one of the two persons chosen from North Carolina. Each state is represented by two entrants.

...Mrs. Polk, who lives at 2826 Botany Street in the University Park Residential section, said she has received several items from companies seeking her endorsement.

...A delighted Mrs. Polk said last Tuesday that she has signed over the rights to her recipe to the Pillsbury Company and can't divulge what it is.

...Mrs. Polk happily displayed a 12 x 12 inch glass serving tray with a colorful floral design of orange begonias, yellow jonquils, and pink tulips that was given to her by her "good friend" Mrs. Edith Lowe last Monday. "My recipe will be on this serving tray when I parade before the judges," said a thrilled Mrs. Polk, adding, "they will taste it and judge it in that plate."

...Mrs. Polk doesn't have to take any ingredients, "Just myself and my clothes," she said the Pillsbury Company will have everything there.

...While she can't tell what the dish will be, one can assume that it will not be larger than 12 inches square; and, she let slip the fact that it contains herbs and spices.

...Mrs. Polk said she got her entry blank from Mrs. John Matthew of 3311 Ridland Drive, Mrs. Matthew is a past winner, as was her daughter, Mrs. Matthew is an advisor this year and did not enter the contest.

...I'm very excited and looking forward to the trip," continued Mrs. Polk. Her trip will include dining, a trip to Fisherman's Wharf, a Harbor Cruise, and a trip to Chinatown. After arriving in San Francisco at 12:30, California time, Mrs. Polk will have a busy schedule.

...The Bake-Off will be held immediately following a Bake-Off Breakfast next Monday, February 24th.

...Awards for the Bake-Off Contest will be held next Tuesday morning at an Awards Breakfast beginning at 7:30 A.M. with Bob Barker of television fame as Master of Ceremonies. The Awards ceremonies will not be telecast.
