MYSAB Reports Decrease In Juvenile Felony Offenses

The Mecklenburg Youth Services Action Board (MYSAB) has released a report this month that shows there was a marked decrease in the number of children who were involved in the juvenile justice system in Mecklenburg County during the period July, 1974, through June, 1975.

The report contains six tables, all presenting measures of juvenile justice activity for two one-year periods, July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974 and July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975. Each of the measures, with the exception of one—the table indicating the number of felony offenses alleged in juvenile petitions—shows a decrease.

These figures, the report says, "seem to indicate that major diversionary activity has occurred within the local juvenile justice system, primarily concerning children committing "undisciplined acts."

This conclusion is one that was drawn by Dr. Reed Adams, Director of the Criminal Justice Program at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, and Robert Johnson, Assistant Professor in the UNCC Criminal Justice Program. Both professors were consulted about the significance of the MYSAB findings as they relate to the juvenile justice system in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County.

The following measures were used by the MYSAB to determine the number of children who became involved in the local juvenile justice system during the 24-month period:

1. Number of juvenile petitions filed against children for committing undisciplined acts or status offenses. There were 556 petitions filed from July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974. The number dropped to 262 between July 1, 1974, and June 30, 1975, a 53 percent decrease.
