

Easier To Enter

Pillsbury Changes Bake Contest Rules

America's best known culinary event, the BAKE-OFF contest, will award double the number of cash prizes this year and has changed the rules to make it easier to enter.

Recipes no longer must be original. Long-time family favorites also are eligible, as long as they have not been winners in national contests or been published in national cookbooks or magazines or by food companies.

The 100 finalists selected to take part in the 27th BAKE-OFF event in Boston, Mass., August 28-31, will compete for 13 cash prizes, totaling $81,000.

Flour is in a category by itself this year, giving "scratch" bakers an opportunity to compete with their best recipes for main dishes, desserts or breads and rolls. Typical of the kind of recipe that might be chosen is Banana-Wheat Quick Bread, winner in a recent BAKE-OFF contest. This moist, flavorful loaf also gets a plus for nutrition, by adding fruits and whole wheat flour to a basic quick bread.

Hungry Jack Flaky Biscuits are eligible in the Refrigerated Foods division for the first time. They can be entered as a sandwich or main dish or a dessert. The kind of recipe that might be selected is Stack-A-Biscuit Stroganoff. Ground beef makes for hearty eating at a reasonable price. The touch that turns this into a dish you might serve for company is the topping of the flaky biscuit halves, glazed a golden brown and richly flavored from a baked-on sour cream topping.

BAKE-OFF contest entry blanks are in food stores now, or you can write to Dept. 1177-Pillsbury, 608 Second Ave. So., Minneapolis, MN 55402, or to Mrs. Sarah Polk 2826 Botany St., Charlotte, N. C. 28216.

PJC's Will No Longer Save Your License

Raleigh....A Prayer for Judgment Continued (PJC) may no longer save your driver's license according to Edward L. Powell, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Powell announced today that a new law, effective January 1, 1976, provides that a third or subsequent PJC received within a five-year period constitutes a final conviction and all PJC's must be reported by the courts to the North Carolina Division of Motor Vehicles.

The new law which applies to all Prayers for Judgment Continued in traffic cases which are entered after January 1, 1976 was enacted by the 1975 General Assembly.

Commissioner Powell said, "This law can greatly aid our efforts in traffic safety. Prior to the passage of this Act, a sizeable number of drivers were avoiding convictions on their records by obtaining a PJC and thus preventing the Division of Motor Vehicles from taking any action to improve their driving habits or suspending their driver's license. This former loophole of the law (PJC) allowed certain drivers to possibly continue their bad driving habits while others who did not receive such treatment lost their licenses. This law will help to place all of our citizens under the same rules."

Richardson and his wife, Mary, live at 1739 Northbrook Drive in Charlotte. They have two sons.

Applications Being Accepted For Seven Optional Schools

Applications are now being accepted for enrollment next year in all Charlotte-Mecklenburg optional schools including a proposed grade one through nine traditional program to be located at Northwest Junior High.

Applications will be made on the 1976-77 "Request for Reassignment" form, often referred to as the "blue form." Persons interested in making an application can pick up the form at any school or at the Education Center, 701 E. Second St.

The form should be filled out and returned to the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools' Pupil Assignment Office in the Education Center (P.O. Box 149, Charlotte, NC 28230) by Feb. 29.

Optional schools for which applications are being accepted are Elizabeth Open Elementary (1-6), Irwin Avenue Open Elementary (1-6), Meyers Park Traditional Elementary, (1-6), Piedmont Open Middle (7-9), and the open component at West Charlotte High School (10-12). In addition, applications are being accepted for the proposed traditional program to be located at the present Northwest Junior High site, 1415 Beatties Ford Rd.

School officials point out that a final decision to convert Northwest to a traditional elementary junior high school (grades one through nine) will be made after a study of the applications received. According to board of education action on Dec. 9, 1975, the board's Program Services Committee will study the results of applications and make recommendations at the first board meeting in March.

During the last week of January, a series of five public meetings will be held throughout the community to discuss the proposed Northwest traditional program.

Students presently enrolled in optional schools will be given priority to continue next year and will be given an opportunity before the first of March to request a continuation of assignment.

After this has been done, vacancies by grade, race and school in the optional program will be determined.

On the basis of projected enrollment figures for next year, limits will be set by grade and by race on the numbers of students who may be reassigned from each conventional school to optional schools.

No conventional school will be allowed to have its black ratio increased beyond 45 percent or to lose more than one elementary teacher or more than three secondary teachers because of students transferring to optional schools.

A lottery will be used again this year to fill vacancies from qualified applicants.

Neither the time application forms are received or the date of any prior inquiry about an optional program will be a factor in the selection of students for optional schools.

School officials warn that if a student applies for enrollment in both an open and a traditional school, both application will be voided.
