

Voices, Inc. Presents "Harlem Heyday"

By Deborah Gates
Post Staff Writer

America cannot relive the era of the Charleston, gin mills, speak easies, The Cotton Club, and all the glamour of "those days," gone by, but Voices, Inc. in their second off-Broadway venture, will recreate much of it in Harlem Heyday, coming to Johnson C.

Smith University in the Hartley-Woods Gymnasium, April 1, at 8 p.m.

This vaudeville show, about the days our grandparents croon over, will present the old songs and the old humor, all from the past, but forever alive in our hearts.

Voices, Inc. first presented "The Believers," the Black

Experience in song, the critically acclaimed success of 1968-69.

In Harlem Heyday you will see scenes such as night clubs bursting at the seams with excitement, prohibition, bathtub booze and chorus lines of beautiful bronze girls, smothered in feathers and dancing to the music of an era gone by.

The old songs will be stirring along with many new songs that have been composed by members of the group.

Come and hear such favorites as, Honeysuckle Rose, Love Will Find A Way, Do Nothin' Til You Hear From Me, Sweet Georgia Brown, Nobody, and many more.

General admission for the performance is $1, Smith students I.D. card.
