

Little Theatre Announces New Plays

The Little Theatre of Charlotte proudly announces its play for the 1977-78 season.

The opening production will be a Dale Wasserman's stage adaptation of Ken Kesey's brilliant and moving novel, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." In past seasons, it has been Little Theatre policy to confine dramas and comedies to two week runs but due to the enormous popularity of the novel and cinematic version, it was decided to schedule it for a three week run as we do our musicals. The playing dates for this production are Sept. 15 - Oct. 1, 1977. (Thurs - Sat performances).

The second offering is Hotel Paradise, a rollicking French comedy in 3 acts by Georges Feydeau and Maurice DesValieres adapted by Peter Glenville. Written in the 1950's it was produced in New York and starred the late, great comedian, Bert Lahr. It will be produced Nov. 10-19. (Thurs - Sat perf.) 1977.

"To Kill a Mockinbird," a mid season production, is another stage adaptation of a successful novel, Harper Lee's portrait of a small Southern town in the 1930's as seen through the eyes of children. This production will be a departure from the usual casting of the Little Theatre in that the three main characters are children. The production dates for this production are Feb. 9 - 18, 1978. (Thurs - Sat. perf.)

"Ring Around the Moon," the second comedy of the season is an unusually fresh, sophisticated comedy by Jean Anouilh, with stage adaptation by Christopher Frey. Having been described by one critic as a "Charade with music" the play enjoyed outstanding success in both New York and London. The plot is a delightful and enchanting performance of double identities and young love and sub plots of a middle-age affair and cynical, elegant old ladies.

It will run Mar. 33 - Apr. 1, 1978. (Thur - Sat. perf.)

Little Theatre's musical fare for the season has the distinction of being Broadway's longest running musical

- 3,242 performances and has recently been mounted again - "Fiddler on the Roof," (based on Shalom Aleichene's stories, book by Joseph Stein, music by Boch and lyrics by Harnick) has been both critical and public acclaim. It is the exuberant, poignant and funny story of Tevye the dairyman, Golde his wife, and their five exasperating daughters. The setting is a poor Russian village, Anatevka, where the plot takes the family on an exodus from the old tradition bound life to a new land of change...and hope. This show production will run the usual three weekends allotted to our musicals and will be produced May 11 thru May 27, 1978.

Eugene Kusterer, the Artistic Direction from the '76-77 season will return as the Artistic Director for the 77-78 season.

The theatre has also hired a Technical Director who is Ben D'Agostino, provided through the City Manpower Department and funded by a grant from the U.S. Labor Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA).

QUESTION:

What is the difference between regular Barbers, Beauticians and Hair designers or Tricologist?

ANSWER:

Barbers and Beauticians in their schools are trained in the broad basics of their profession like a liberal arts college. Then serve an apprenticeship under other professionals. To qualify for designer to Tricologist status, they must take training in specialized skills such as color, hair design chemicals, precision hair cutting, Tricology and other specialized fields, then be certified and registered by their associations. The highest is the National Hair Styling Associations.
