Suits Named

SRC Executive

Director

ATLANTA—Steve Suits, head of the Alabama Civil Liberties Union, for the past five years, has been named executive director of the Southern Regional Council (SRC) effective July 15.

The announcement was made last week by the Council's newly elected president, Julius Chambers of Charlotte, N.C., and vice president, Gwendolyn Cherry of Miami, Fla.

During Suits' tenure as head of the Alabama Civil Liberties Union, successful legal actions were brought establishing the right of treatment for mental patients in Alabama, reapportioning the Alabama legislature, and finding in Federal Court that the entire Alabama prison system was "cruel and unusual punishment." In another major legal action brought by the Alabama Civil Liberties Union against the Alabama Educational Television Network, the Federal Communications Commission, for the first time, revoked the license of a broadcast station because of race discrimination.

Chambers is an attorney with the firm of Chambers, Stein, Ferguson & Becton, P.A. He was elected to succeed Patt Derian who resigned as Council president when President Carter appointed her Coordinator of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs at the State Department.

A member of the Florida House of Representatives, Rep. Cherry, also an attorney, was recently elected Florida state chairperson to the International Women's Year Commission.

Suits, who earlier worked with the Selma Project in providing technical and legal assistance to community-based groups in Southwest Alabama, believes the Council's mission in the South today is no less important than it was in 1944, when the organization was founded.

"The major issues in the South at that time have not fundamentally changed," he said. "They are more complex, perhaps, even more difficult to identify, yet they remain and it is the Council's role to address them."

A native of Haleyville, Ala., the 27-year old Suits attended Coffee High School in Florence, Ala. and the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa.

Suits replaces former SRC Director Peter Petkas who is deputy to the director of the President's Reorganization Project in Washington, D.C.

Since its founding in 1944, the Southern Regional Council has advanced the goals of equal opportunity and justice for all Southerners by exposing racism and poverty and advocating creative solutions to the region's most critical problems.
