

First Baptist Sets "Summer Community Outreach"

By Jeri Harvey

First Baptist Church, newly relocated at 1801 Oaklawn Avenue has ventured on a program never before attempted by another church in Charlotte. The program, entitled "Summer Community Outreach '77," is a six weeks program organized through the Board of Christian Education and is being coordinated through the Youth Department of First Baptist.

Summer Community Outreach '77 is designed to bring First Baptist Church and its surrounding community in closer contact with one another. It is hoped that this closer contact will help further the youth program of First Baptist, identify potential members and leaders for the church and community, and aid in the revitalization of the Sunday School, BTU and Youth Missionary Organizations.

Summer Community Outreach will be coordinated by Michael A. Washington, assisted by Cheryl D. Heard, Kenneth Steadman, Warren Cassidy, and Cedric Jones Jr. Dr. James B. Humphrey Jr., pastor of First Baptist and Rev. Herman E. Thomas, associate minister, will serve as advisors for this program.

There are three phases to Summer Community Outreach '77. Phase I consists of a canvassing process of a ten block radius surrounding the church. The canvassing will be of a personalized nature, by

Interns With ASC

E'Vonne Coleman, one of three arts administration interns with the state arts council this summer, is working one month with Arts and Science Council here.

Ms. Coleman is participating in an internship program sponsored by the North Carolina Arts Council and coordinated through seven local arts councils across the state. She worked last month with the Arts Council of Wilson and will spend August with the United Arts Council of Greensboro.

During her internship in Charlotte, Ms. Coleman is working with ASC executive director Hans H. North to learn the financial structure and daily operation of the council. She is also learning the ASC campaign organization and working on special projects with the Afro-American Cultural and Service Center.

A native of Garner, N.C., Ms. Coleman has a bachelors degree in theatre from North Carolina Central University. She recently completed the first year of the graduate program in arts administration at The American University in Washington, D.C., where she served as project coordinator for a theatre residency by The Performance Group. Ms. Coleman has also studied voice, mime and dance.

Breast Cancer Is Leading Cause Of Death

Breast cancer is the leading cause of death among women 40 to 44 years old, but far more lives could be saved through early detection. While most breast lumps are benign (non-cancerous) it is vitally important that a woman see her doctor if a lump is found. She should never wait to see if the lump grows before reporting it to her physician.

More and more women are having their breasts examined, either by a doctor or through self-examination, but many women do not know how to properly examine their own breasts. Instructions on breast self-examination can be obtained from your doctor or local health department.

One of the most important diagnostic tools for determining the presence of cancer is mammography, an x-ray of the breast. But recently there has been much publicity over the use of mammography.

Trichology Corner

Mr. Charles R.B.

QUESTION:
My hair is extremely dry. I have used all kinds of products to get it to grow; but it still breaks in spots. I am wearing an afro.

ANSWER:
Most people who have afro's and have the same problems, now have glycerin based products that will not only soften the hair, but will also keep the hair and keep it from breaking. There are a number of specialized highly skilled people turning their attention to this problem. Some extremely good results have come about. Your trichologist and your stylist have demanded better products. Some have developed their own hair care products working with manufacturers as consultants. Your Questions May Be Sent To "Trichology Corner - P.O. Box 16447, Charlotte, N.C. 28216.
