Mrs. Yongue Leaves Health Department

By Sidney Moore Jr.
Post Staff Writer

Registered nurse, Cleo A. Yongue of 1521 Newcastle St., is retiring after 37 years with Mecklenburg County Health Department.

In her honor, co-workers and other department members gave a retirement party last Friday, April 14.

"It was just great. It was really great," Mrs. Yongue said.

The department gave her an engraved watch and her nurse team gave her luggage. Many others gave her gifts, including her family, friends and former department workers.

"She was an asset to the department and we'll miss her," said department supervisor Mrs. Peggy Ellis.

Refreshments and pictures added to the fun of the party.

She was hired in her job after having completed public schools in her native Darlington, S. C. Initial nurse training was completed in Columbia, S. C. and follow-up public service work was completed at UNCC.

"Along my way for the past 37 years, I have faced new challenges, seen the department grow, met new faces and tried to be a help in every endeavor," said Mrs. Yongue. "I will miss my department and all my co-workers. I will always think of them prayerfully."

The new retiree cites "well children" clinics and her role as counselor in the family planning clinic as her most important roles with the department. She was also a school nurse for the first 25 years.

She advises young people to take pride in their work.

"In order to make something work, you've got to be a part of your job," Mrs. Yongue said.

She also takes pride in being the only surviving charter member of the local chapter of Chi Eta Phi Sorority, a professional nurse's organization.

Her three children are Mrs. Deloris Barnes, a teacher; Mrs. Junita Eison, surgical Greensboro — Students at Bennett College elected their first "Miss Bennett College" during the recent student elections. Representing the college during the 1978-79 school year will be Miss Rose Hudson, a junior from Sumter, S.C.

The selection of the official student hostess for the women's college was the result of a two-year study by a special committee of students and staff. Official approval was given by the Executive Council of the college during the fall.

Rose, a communications major, has very positive ideas about a campus queen at a women's college.

"Quite naturally, I'm honored at being selected. I'm really glad the students decided to select someone who can represent them at community events. In this capacity, our campus queen can serve as a role model for other students and young girls."

Rose Hudson has been quite active in student affairs at Bennett since her first year.
