

Sunday School Lesson

Rev. Wayne R. Wallace

Greetings follow these special! We have a very interesting lesson this week from Acts 17:1-18. The subject is "Spreading the Good News."

In this message we find Paul and Barnabas in Lystra involved in some strange goings on. After preaching the gospel there, one of those who chose to believe was a man who had been lame all of his life. He had enough faith for spiritual and physical healing. Paul recognized the quality of faith in the man and spoke the words of faith commanding him to stand up. When the man did and the people saw this wonderful miracle, they mistook Paul and Barnabas to be the Greek gods Jupiter (Juno) and Mercury (Mercury). There is an explanation for why they made this mistake.

According to their legendary history, once Jupiter and Mercury had come to earth for a visit. They came in disguise in their city. They went from house to house but they would give them any hospitality except one old, lame man. Philomen and his wife were sure that they were the same impostors. Obviously, Barnabas must have been the older of the two. He was the one who was taken to be the chief of the gods and because of this the talking he was taken to be the messenger.

It is not uncommon for the uneducated to mistake the spiritual gifts of the apostles as well as any kind of

Make Checks Before Installing Insulation

When you decide to have insulation installed in your home, be sure to spend enough time checking up on possible insulation firms and ask for references from their neighbors for their recommendations, says Charlotte agricultural extension specialist at North Carolina State University.

Look through newspaper advertisements or in the Yellow Pages of the phone book under "Insulation Contractors."

The next step, according to the Federal Trade Commission, is to obtain cost estimates from at least three different contractors, making sure you describe the job accurately each. Remember, says Miss Wombie, you are talking about quality as well as price. Ask a contractor for references, including previous customers and then check
