The Mecklenburg County

Public Service and Information (PS&I) Department has been named the winner of four national awards in a competition sponsored by the National Association of County Information Officers.

Three of the awards are for on-going programs developed by the PS&I Department, and one is for a publication that was printed in cooperation with the City of Charlotte PS&I Department and mailed to local citizens with their 1977 property tax bills.

The County's Student Tour Program took second place in the national competition. Developed during the 1976-77 school year, this program offers tours of 17 County agencies to local students at all grade levels. During the past two years approximately 2,000 students have participated in the program. Three West Charlotte High School interns -- Renee McCown, Kelly Cunningham and Jeff Jordan -- served as coordinators for the tours this past school year and during the final week of their internship worked with the PS&I staff to write and design a brochure about the program.

"It's Time to Pay Your 1977 Property Tax," a brochure that gives basic information about property taxes in Charlotte-Mecklenburg, was the staff artist for the County PS&I Department, designed the brochure, and copies were sent to some 130,000 local property taxpayers.

The County's Neighborhood Groups Program and Courts Information Program were the only two on-going programs that received Honorable Mention in the national competition.

Developed in the fall of 1977, the Neighborhood Groups Program involves the dissemination of information about County Government and its services to neighborhood organizations and special interest groups throughout the County. The program coordinator is Karl E. Goodhouse, Assistant Director of Public Service and Information. More than 150 organizations are involved in this effort. The Courts Information Program was initiated by the County PS&I Department to help the State Courts provide information to the public. A central telephone information line has been installed in the new County Courthouse, a brochure has been published about Court functions, and general information about the Courts has been disseminated throughout the County. As a result of the program, inquiri-es about the Gourts are now being channeled directly into the Courthouse, where staff familiar with the Courts system can provide detailed information. Before the program was developed, calls for PS&I Departments Win Awards Court-related information came primarily through the City-County Action Line, a telephone service operated by City and County Government and geared to assist citizens who have questions about local government. The Courts Infor .on Program was als, he winner this year of a National Association of Counties Achievement Award, along with three other Mecklenburg County programs. The 1978 Awards of Excellence will be presented at the Annual Conference of the National Association of Counties in Atlanta July 8-12. The total number of entries in the competition was 296, representing counties in 22 states. The National Association of County Information Officers is an affiliate of the National Association of Counties (NACo)
