ON THE JAZZ SCENE...

Saxophonist Gary Bartz is back with his second solo LP on Capitol Records. The name of it is "Love Affair," and Bartz shows some improvement here over his first solo release... "Music Is My Sanctuary," which was out last year around this time.

Gary says this album is dedicated to "everyone who's ever had a love affair--whether the object of their love was a person, or...something like music or a saxophone."

Bartz continues his love affair with the latter two on this album on tunes such as "Shake Your Body (It's the Joint)," "Big Apple Love," and "At Last."

If you'd like to hear a good blend of classical jazz with contemporary rock and soul rhythms...check out a new album from Benny Colson...it's entitled "I'm Always Dancin' to the Music."

Colson goes back a long way...his music spans three decades...This album combines the big band with an electronic sound.

Colson does a golden oldie called "Blues March," but most of the selections are remakes of tunes that aren't so old, such as "Georgia On My Mind," and the Emotions "Don't Ask My Neighbors."

James Gadson...the man who sang "Love Land" for the Watts 103rd Street rhythm band years back...does some nice vocals on this LP.

You remember "A Real Mutha For Ya," by Johnny Guitar Watson." Well, a group of jazz musicians have selected a similar name for a new live jazz LP.

"Alivemutherfor ya" features four contemporary jazz greats. Drummer Billy Cobham, guitarist Steve Khan, bass player Alphonso Johnson, and horn man Tom Scott

The album was recorded in San Francisco while the quintet was on tour last year... What really makes the album good is that each musician gets ample opportunity to solo...and really show out.

Some of the best moments come on "Some Punk Funk," featuring a solo by Steve Khan, and "Shadows," featuring Tom Scott playing his fabulous lyric.

Al Jarreau is working on a new album...which is scheduled for release this summer. Jarreau's been living off the popularity of his "Look To The Rainbow" album...an LP which is sure to win him some awards this year.

Al says his new album will contain "a lot of happy music."

I don't normally jump into this musical arena...but there's one album I think has a lot of cross over appeal to black listeners.

It's the album from the Rolling Stones...entitled "Some Girls," on Rolling Stone Records...which is really turn heads is "I Miss You," which is also available in limited edition on a 12-inch disc.

The Stones are known more for their live entertainment antics...and if you were at their recent concert in Greensboro...you know what I mean. But behind all their show-biz...these guys can play.

There's an interesting side note to this album. A number of movie stars are suing the Stones and the record company about the album cover.

Lucille Ball, Phyllis Diller, and Farrah Fawcett Majors don't like the way the Stones made fun of their hair styles...and general appearance. As a result, the album is being changed...which means the cover which is on record shelves now will become a collector's item.

SOUL SOUNDS...

The Fourth of July is getting near...and as it draws near... you will no doubt hear more than you care to about the Carolina Jam III, the 12-hour annual outdoor concert held at the Metrolina Fairgrounds.

Last year...many people arrived late in the evening... just when it seemed things would be picking up. But this year...you may want to come sooner...if all the people show as advertised.

Headlining the show is George Duke...who's hot right now with his release "Duke-y Stick," a sound-alike sequel to his "Reach For It" album which really increased his popularity.

Delightful "Heaven Can Wait"

Opens At Charlottetown III

By Cynthia Bell

"Heaven Can Wait" Paramount Picture's newest romantic comedy, is now playing at the Charlottetown III theatre.

A fantastic line up stars head the cast and crew in this picture based on Harry Segall's play. They are Warren Beatty, Julie Christie, James Mason, Charles Grodin, Dyan Cannon, Buck Henry, Vincent Gardenia, and Jack Warden.

Along with his acting duties with the picture, Warren Beatty produces and co-directs. This marks his third production. "Bonnie and Clyde" and "Shampoo" were his others which were two of the biggest box office attractions in the last decade.

This Paramount Pictures comedy is a romantic fantasy about Joe Penleton (Beatty) who accidentally makes it to heaven before his time by the hands of a fervorous heavenly escort. Upon discovery, Penleton who is a quarterback for the Los Angeles Rams, is promptly returned to earth in the body of another man. While trying to get his new body in shape for the upcoming Super Bowl, Penleton must also escape attempts on his life by an unfaithful wife and her boyfriend. On the other hand, he is persuing an attractive woman of English birth.

The Los Angeles Ram team seen in the movie includes former Ram stars like Deacon Jones, Les Josephson, Jack Snow, Jim Boeke, Charlie Cowan, and Joe Corolla. The Super Bowl game in the picture was actually filmed during half time at an exhibition game between the Rams and the Oakland Raiders. Warren Beatty who has foot ball experience has from high school did all of his stunts as quarterback sacks. The three TV sportscasters are Dick Enberg, Bryant Gumbel, and Jim Healy.

Another sequence photographed in the film was at the Filoli Estates near San Jose, California. This 45 room mansion was developed in 1916 and 1917 in a modified Georgian revival architecture. It rests on 35 beautiful acres, of which, 17 acres are spectacular rambling gardens. When not being used as a set, Filoli Estates is visited by over 10,000 people annually.

"Heaven Can Wait" has acquired a cast and crew who have accumulated over 20 academy awards nominations during their careers. Warren Beatty has had 3; Julie Christie and James Mason both have two; Buck Henry,

Jack Warden, Dyan Cannon and Vincent Gardenia all have one; Editor Robert C. Jones has three; special effects technician Robert MacDonald has two; costume designer Theodora Van Runkle has two; and Director of photography William A. Fraker has one.
