

Saturday's Theme

Leadership Development

And NAACP Program

by Susan Ellsworth
Post Staff Writer
"Leadership Development and NAACP Programs" is the theme of the Sat., Oct. 21 morning session.

Registration will begin at 8:00 a.m. and the conference will get underway by 9:30 a.m.

Delegates will have the opportunity to learn about the NAACP's new programs from national leaders headed by Kenyon C. Burke, Associate Director for NAACP programs.

Burke was formerly the Director of Community Affairs for Planned Parenthood in New York. He received a B.A. in Psychology from Bowling Green State in Ohio, and an M.A. in Vocational Counseling from Columbia University, and is presently a candidate for a Ph.D. in Education at Rutgers University.

Accompanying Burke to the Convention will be Veronica Jefferson, Assistant Director of Communications. This new NAACP department provides resources and guidance to NAACP branches and state conferences that are concerned with improving their local coverage.

Ms. Jefferson is a member of the Black Citizens Fair Media Committee for WNBC and WCBS television stations. She was previously a field director in the Office of Communications, United Church of Christ in New York.

These speakers will also contribute to the session on leadership development and NAACP programs; Lewis J. Carter, Director of Labor, New York, Herbert A. Morris, Director of Housing, New York, and Julius E. Williams, the Director of Armed Services and Veterans Affairs, New York.

Voting will be an area of emphasis at the convention. W. C. Patton and Joseph E. Madison will discuss the Black vote in a time of civil rights crisis.

Patton has served as a former branch president of the Alabama State Conference for ten years, and Executive Secretary of the Alabama State Conference. He is currently the National Associate Director of Voter Education for the NAACP.

Joseph E. Madison is the Assistant Voter Education Director. He is the former Executive Secretary of the Detroit, Michigan branch—the largest in the nation.

SUPER SALESMAN OF THE WEEK

Bobbie Abraham is the Charlotte Post's salesman of the week, a quiet polite, and well-mannered 16-year-old student at Harding High School. Bobbie is the son of Mrs. Mattie Abraham of 414 Center Street. He has three brothers who attend school also. Our salesman of the week, who sold newspapers in the upper seventies, has other talents. He is very talented as an artist who does pencil drawings and pastel color paintings.
