ORANGEBURG, -- Amid great secrecy Mayumi M Bryan was named Miss Homecoming 1978 and crowned Thursday morning by Dr. M. Maceo Nance Jr., president of South Carolina State College. Mayumi, a senior who graduated from Holly Hill High School, was selected by the football team members' secret ballot. She is a social science major.

The crowning took place in the Martin Luther King, Jr. Auditorium during the Eleventh Annual Career Conference. The twenty-eight contestants for the crown were introduced prior to the announcement by Earl Redford, Director of Student Activities and Christian Center.

The new Miss Homecoming said her escort for the activities Saturday would be James Owens, Jr. from Holly Hill. During the football halftime ceremonies when the S.C. State Bulldogs challenge the North Carolina Central University Eagles, Mayumi was officially presented.

Mayumi is the daughter of Mrs. Mae Ola Mitchell of Holly Hill.

said nationwide about students who default on their educational loans. Not so with the Educational Loan Program in the N.C. Department of Human Resources. In the 33-year history of the program, there has only been a default of $300. All other loans have been repaid through practice and-or cash.

'This really pleases us," Proctor, "particularly since and they know us," she said. some federal programs have a default rate as high as 20 to 25 percent and have had to establish a new government system for collection."

According to Ms. Proctor, around $50 million is owed in loans in the Southeastern Region. The federal government has added 44 collection agents for this region since July.

North Carolina's Education Loan Program provides loans for students going into various medical and health related fields such as dentistry, medicine, optometry, physical therapy, nursing, dental hygiene, osteopathy and several others. Loan range from $500 to $4,000 per year individual depending on the particular field

RALEIGH--Much has been, of study. These loans are re-paid through practice in medically deprived areas or programs of the Tar Heel State and or by cash.

Ms. Proctor indicated that there are two major reasons why the default rate is so low in the loan program. "We feel that our personal approach with the students on a one-toone basis helps to keep the default rate down. We know said loan program head Janet the students and their families

> Another reason is that each student must have two co-signers for the loan who are North Carolina residents. If the students don't repay their loans, this places them in a real dilemma because someone else has to assume the responsibility. This can be very embarrassing for them," state Ms. Proctor.

Since 1945, when the program began, nearly 3,700 students have received loans from the Educational Loan Program. More than 3,250 of these students have received loans since 1965 when major revamping legislation took place. Over $10 million has been loaned to students since the program began.
