Black Women's

Workshop To Attack Racism

Black women in America face two barriers: racism and sexism. Changing this situation will be the theme of a special Workshop on Sat. Feb. 10 at the Holiday Inn, 3815 N. Tryon.

Called "WEETAP" Women's Educational Equity Training and Assessment Project - the workshop will focus on awareness understanding and skill development of black women for positive social change.

A recent Carnegie Corporation study showed that "Occupational segregation by sex was exactly as great today as it was at the turn of the Century, if not worse."

According to workshop coordinator Dr. Bertha Maxwell "The workshop is aimed at promoting black women's awareness of recent equity and sex discrimination legislation and also to help develop skills and understanding to attack racism and sexism in our communities."

The workshop is sponsored by the Charlotte Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority which received a grant from the Office of Education. This is one of 7 regional workshops being held around the country.

Registration begins at 9 a.m., followed by opening remarks from Dr. Delores Thomas, WEETAP director in Washington, D.C. Dr. Maxwell will present a multi-media show, "The Building of Institutional Racism."

Then participants will join awareness training sessions led by local community leaders:

+Black Women and Aging (Anita Stroud, Rev. J.W. Smith, Grace Wiley, Fammie Hargraves).

+Education (Elizabeth Randolph, Catherine Crosby, Betty MacLaurin, Valairia Granger, David Hunter, Harry Hogan).

+Black Women and the Media (Mary Hopper, Clara Lowry, Vanessa Gallman, Jean Bohn).

+Politics: State and Local (Sara Stevenson, Phyllis Lynch, Louise Brennan).

+Health Care (Idealia Proctor, Julia Prince, Dr. Spencer Durate, Khadijah Abdullah).

+Housing: Private and Public (Jerry Springs, Carrie Graves, Willie Hart, Arthur Griffin).

+Employment (Sadie Smith Jordan, Monique Shufford).

Luncheon panelists will be attorney Julius Chambers and Harris Williams of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

In the afternoon training and power strategies sessions will be held focusing on developing action plans.

"We're hoping participants will go back to their groups and set up some programs," said Maxwell. "Many women are tired of the same old stuff. They're no longer going to participate in the 'go fix the coffee, girl' mentality."

Registration is $1 (free for senior citizens) and $5.50 for luncheon (optional). All women are welcome to attend.
