Joins Army

Recruiting Team

Fort Huachuca, Ariz. -- Henry L. Dock has joined a recruiting team that is seeking graduate electronic engineers for federal civil service with the U.S. Army Communications Command (ACC) here.

As part of his duties on the team, Dock will assure women and minorities will be given every opportunity to apply for professional jobs in the command.

An equal opportunity officer for Fort Huachuca, Dock graduated from California State University at Los Angeles prior to earning a master's degree in psychology from the University of Portland in 1965.

"Our most urgent need," Dock said, "is for engineers competent in the areas of systems, transmissions, switching, data terminals, telecommunications processing and systems control."

"We are seeking both the journeyman and the recent graduate," he said. "Journeyman will fill full-demand positions, while new graduates will undergo brief on-the-job training with on-line responsibilities commensurate with ability."

Among the types of telecommunications installed and operated by the worldwide command are digital secure voice and data transmission, computer controlled switching, and such special systems as the Washington-to-Moscow Hot Line satellite link.

Dock said that because of the command's fixed-station role and almost total use of commercial communications equipment, the type of work affords employees the opportunity to stay current with industry state-of-the-art equipment, thereby providing for career growth, both in and out of government.

"The work includes designing and upgrading such a variety of communications systems that there is little risk of being mired in a narrow specialty field," he added.

Dock noted the bulk of the career Civil Service positions are in southern Arizona and require temporary travel to field locations for follow-up phases of installation, test and evaluation, and troubleshooting. Opportunities also arise for relocation to elements in Europe and the Pacific.

In addition to the critical need for engineers, he said, the command is also recruiting operations research analysts and mathematicians.

Prior to joining the EEO organization here, Dock was a director with the Los Angeles Urban League. He is a former psychology instructor at the University of Portland and served in the Air Force from 1952 to 1956.
