

What's happening!

CONFERENCE TIME....Conferences are held for many reasons. They are used for restructuring, planning and exchanging ideas through meetings and workshops. Conferences also allow its members an opportunity to fraternize and socialize with other members who are not seen on a regular basis. The bottom line is that conferences can be both beneficial and fun, which brings us to the Zeta's gathering.

The Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. held its Eastern Regional Conference March 30, 31 and April 1 at the Radisson Plaza Hotel. Host chapter was the Delta Zeta Chapter of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc.

Bob Johnson

Ms. Madie Simpson is Basileus of the chapter. Mrs. Paul Reid served as Regional Marshall. The national theme was

"Greater Commitment; Greater Involvement: Providing New Approaches to Community Outreach Services."

The Conference opened on Friday evening with a public program featuring the Johnson C. Smith University Choir and Livingstone College's Jazz Ensemble. The highlights of Saturday's events were a Blue and White Luncheon, where Mrs. Ida B. King, a Soror from Gary, Indiana and Chairman of the National Executive Board of the sorority was the guest speaker.

Saturday night the Blue and White Ball was held with the funky group Continental Divide, and singer Gene Pharr furnishing the entertainment. They played a wide variety of tunes for guests of all ages; songs from the 50's, 60's and contemporary songs that kept the intimate group moving and grooving.

The guests included Ronald Thomas, Yvonne Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Pride, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. William Beacher, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Covington, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tillman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams, Frank Wright, Vera Morman, Lucille Quinichett, "Flip" Sugram, Tommy Boyce, Sara Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Greene, Mr. and Mrs. John Kibler, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roddey, Mr. and Mrs. James Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Long, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Delaney, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Hines and Mr. and Mrs. David Smalls.

The conference closed on Sunday morning with breakfast and Worship Services. Bishop George J. Leake was the guest minister.

The Eastern Region consists of Washington, D.C., Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina Chapters. Each state was well-represented. Included in the representations were Mrs. Odessa Predlow of Rocky Mt., Director of the Eastern Region. Also Mrs. Rosalie Adams, National Trustee of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, from Richmond, Va.

JAZZ THING....Jazz, the only musical art form that is truly American according to some music experts, is slowly gaining its rightful place in the musical stream.

Ramsey Lewis, a keyboard man whose musical accomplishments are very far-reaching, is part of the reason that jazz has made such progressive moves.

Brother Lewis and his musical aggregation will appear in concert Saturday, April 14, at Ovens Auditorium, for an 8 p.m. show.

What a lovely way to spend an evening, Ramsey's music, and the one you love, aaaaahh.

DISCO SCENE....Charlotte's National Guard Armory was the scene of a real fancy disco dance recently.

The Precious Hearts and Nite Lite Social Clubs sponsored this gala event that lasted from 9 p.m. until ??????

The Precious Hearts are Alice Brown, Dora Preleau, Mary Ingram, Dorothy Moore, Dorothy Pless, Mary Pleu, Ella Miller, Beverly Sanders and Bertha Watkins. The Nite Liters are D. S. Davis, John Walls, Reginald Steele. Clarence Tillman, Isaiah Black, Otis Hilton, John McDowell and Samuel Spears.

Since both groups are embodied with fun loving folks, it wasn't difficult to sponsor a gathering of this enjoyable magnitude. Among the thoroughly enjoyed guests were Wanda Johnson, Johnny Johnson, Sarah Harris, Edna Washington, Carrie Washington, Mary Dunham, Elizabeth Dunlap, William Johnson, Marvin Miller and L. W. Rhyne.

TOURNAMENT FUN....It gets bigger and better each year. I'm speaking of the Par Buster's Annual Spring 4-ball Golf Tournament, held at Sunset Hills' spacious golf track. This year's tourney was held last Saturday and Sunday, April 7 and 8. It wreaked with unbridled success.

Donald Littlejohn and Haywood Stevenson walked off with the big prize for the second year in a row. However it did not dampen the spirit of the other golfers who lamented, "Wait 'til next year."

Bennett College Strives For

Crime Prevention Awareness

By Raquel Stewart
Special to the Post
"Practical Application of Crime Prevention on the College Campus" was the theme for the Crime Prevention Workshop held recently at Bennett College.

Larry Barnes, Community Watch-Coordinator, North Carolina-Division of Crime Control and Public Safety, stressed neighbors should look out for one another. If one family leaves home for a length of time, neighboring families should be alerted to watch the house.

"A lady saw a man removing a television from her neighbor's house," Barnes said. "She went to investigate and he informed her that he was the television repair man. She exclaimed, 'This is my lucky day. Mine needs fixing too.' The televisions were never recovered."

Community watch is applicable to the college campus. Each person in a section of the dormitory should know the others' schedule. When one student leaves, the others should watch his or her room. Students, like the general public, should be aware that a campus-community watch exists.

Ted Marvin, Director of Security Services, UNC-Chapel Hill, discussed "Problem Identification as Related to Development of Crime Prevention." He noted that "just a little time and effort" can prevent crime and a lot of pain. If students lock their car and room doors, keep their pocketbooks and wallets with them at all times, and become more aware of strangers around the premises, petty theft can be reduced.

Sergeant Willie H. Horton and Sergeant Doug Shores of UNC-Greensboro explained organizing and implementing programs to engrave student equipment. A list of students' merchandise, they suggested, should be kept by the security office and the student. This will be helpful in identifying and recovering stolen merchandise. Other suggestions included taking pictures of one's jewelry and engraving one's license number or social security number on televisions, radios, and stereos.

Dean Harold Bragg of Bennett stressed cohesive and cooperative attitudes by the whole college family. He said, "A mature, responsible attitude among the faculty, staff, and students is a helpful agent in crime prevention."

Zack Browning, Superintendent of Building and Grounds at Bennett commented, "I'm glad a lot of people turned out for the occasion. The effort was worthwhile. Maybe together we can stop crime."

Crime prevention is a very serious job and people working together can make it easier.
