- 2 indications are that although more students are exposed to cigarettes than marijuana, but a larger proportion of students use marijuana over cigarettes. Dr. Kim credited massive public information linking tobacco with cancer, as making cigarettes appear less attractive. "Marijuana on the other hand," he said, "is conceived by the general public as producing no apparent physical damages." Current users of harder drugs number less than 4 percent for each substance and are used once or twice a month on an average. Hard drugs appeal to fewer students than the social drugs, the study surmised. "Children are socialized that drug use is bad," Dr. Kim explained. "The more we know of the effect of a drug the more likely it is to become a deterrent," he pointed out. This theory appears to hold true for the majority, yet the upswing in hard drug use indicates another principle in effect. Dr. Kim calls it reward vs. punishment. For some youths the temptation of physical and psychological
- 3 Drug use can be influenced by peer pressure, society, school or parents, and positive or negative reinforcement, Dr. Kim continued.

At Southern Living

Ideas For

Does this sound familiar? You live in a multi-unit dwelling you really like. But you feel the facades and yards of all the units look alike. And when you're in your yard, you imagine the neighbors can hear you whisper. If that scene rings true, then the SOUTHERN LIVING SHOW, running Feb. 28-March 8 at the Merchandise Mart here, has some help for you. A special feature of the show will be a row of townhouses, filled with ideas to help you put some personality and privacy into your townhouse, condominium or apartment. Even if you live in a conventional house, there will be plenty of adaptable ideas for you too. Designed by Ralph Graham, a landscape architect from Raleigh, the townhouse row will feature BANQUET FRIED CHICKEN.
