

What's happening!

GOLF FUN...The annual Hall of Fame Golf Tournament was played last weekend, at the Pinehurst Country Club in Pinehurst. The tournament was blessed by nature's loving hand as the warm rays of an autumn sun bathed the golfers and spectators.

Pinehurst is a sleepy little community, located in the sandhills of central North Carolina. Even though the Sandhills area is sparsely populated, it boasts 15 well manicured and highly publicized championship golf links. Six of the courses are located on the 5,000 acres of the Pinehurst Country Club.

For one week each year the quiet little resort community is jolted awake by the influx of golf enthusiasts from up and down the east coast.

These people come to see the who's who of golf compete against what GOLF WORLD MAGAZINE describes as one of the ten most difficult courses in the country. This year's tournament sported such name golfers as Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Jerry Pate, Tom Weiskopf, Raymond Floyd, Fuzzy Zoeller and Ben Crenshaw.

Among the throng of golfers participating, the black golfers were Lee Elder - the most widely known, Jim Thorpe, who finished higher than any other black golfer, Jim Dent, Tom Woodard - first year player from Denver, Colorado and Charlottean Curtis Sifford.

Sifford, former West Charlotte basketball standout, won his PGA card back in April 1981 and is fighting to keep it. His latest effort in the battle to retain this valuable piece of property netted him $5.5. Curtis carded a total score of 293. He shot a 70 the first day, which placed him among the leaders. The second day's score of 74 did not help his cause any. Saturday's round of 77 really put him out of the chase. But a redeeming score of one over par 72 on the final day enabled Sifford to finish in the money. The toughest part of the track was the rolling Bermuda greens, said a very relaxed Sifford. They wouldn't hold the action put on shots into the green and putting on them was next to impossible.

Curtis spent Monday in Charlotte visiting relatives and friends. He left early Tuesday morning for Ft. Worth, Texas, and another tournament in search of the elusive pot of gold. Los Angeles, California, is his home now, and since he is playing without a sponsor, it is much more difficult because golfers' expenses run between $500 to $700 per week. GOOD LUCK, CURTIS!

SEASON'S END...The Add-In Tennis Association held its third annual banquet last Sunday evening, September 27, at Hong Kong East on Albemarle Road. The event culminated another successful tennis season for the play group by awarding trophies to top players for flight play and in singles and doubles tournaments.

The flight play winners: flight 1-first place: Lester "Doc" Wallace; runner-up, Larry Jemison; third place George Long. In the second flight: Charles Mackey won the first place trophy; Mel Watt pulled down the second place trophy; and Bill Pickens finished third.

In the singles tournament, James Hicks proved to be the best player and Charles Mackey won the second place trophy for his performance. The semi-finalists in the singles play were Larry Jemison and Dwight Sullivan.

The top slot in the doubles portion of Add-In's tennis bonanza was sewed up by Mo Sampson and Otis Burnett. The runners-up awards went to the team of Charles "Chilli" Hill and Dwight Sullivan. The semi-finalists were Larry Jemison and Gerald O. Johnson and the team of George Funderburke and Tommy Wallace.

The receiving of trophies and good natured ribbing wasn't all there was to Sunday evening's gathering. Chinese pepper steak with all the trimmings was served to the Add-In members and their wives.

The food, beverages and general camaraderie engaged in by a group of men, who enjoy the friendly competition that tennis provides, made for an unforgettable evening.

KING AND QUEEN CONTEST...Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Black, owners and operators of the Kings and Queens Lounge on S. Brevard St., will crown the King and Queen of the Kings and Queens on the evening of November 4 at the lounge.

The best dressed contest is open to any of the patrons of the lounge. The November 4 crowning will culminate a month of judging by an unidentified panel.

So, dress to impress when you go to the Kings and Queens because you'll never know who's watching you.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sanders of 624 N. Billingsley Road are proud to have Marion Sanders for a son. Marion is a Specialist Four in B Company, of the 79th Engineer Battalion of the United States Army. He has been selected as the "Soldier of the Month for August, 1981 for the 18th Engineer Brigade." According to his commanding officer, the competition was very keen, but Marion was selected based upon personal appearance, bearing, knowledge of military subjects, current events, oral communication, and job performance. He was awarded a Certificate of Achievement, a plaque from the Brigade and a four-day pass. In addition, he will be provided free transportation to Berlin in the near future. It was emphasized that Marion is making an important contribution to his unit and that his performance of duty is characterized by loyalty, ingenuity and a high degree of professional knowledge and expertise. They are extremely proud of their son, for he has proven to be an outstanding soldier. He has brought credit to the Sanders family, his unit, and the United States Army. He's a member of Weeping Willow AME Zion Church here in Charlotte and often states that the knowledge he gained within those walls and the prayers of the congregation have helped make him the type man that he is.

Sex Education

Film Festival Set

By Susan Ellsworth
Post Staff Writer

For some parents and their children sex is a difficult topic to discuss. Under the leadership of the Mecklenburg Council on Adolescent Pregnancy, 16 community agencies are co-sponsoring a family film festival in October.

Parents and teens are encouraged to come together or separately to screenings on four consecutive Tuesdays and on Saturday, October 17.

Film topics include:

"Teenage Father," a documentary that follows a young couple through the girl's unplanned pregnancy with emphasis on the father's situation. "Am I Normal" focuses on an embarrassed but persistent 13 year old boy who finds his way to a series of friendly adults with questions about puberty and sexuality in general. "Dear Diary" raises and answers key questions teenagers have when they enter puberty. "A Matter of Respect" explores male sexual responsibility from an urban teenage viewpoint. "A Family Talks About Sex" demonstrates how a family discusses sex over a 15 year period as the children mature from infancy to college age.

The film schedule is Oct. 6 at Bethlehem Center, Oct. 13 at Carmel Junior High, Oct. 20 at Northwest Junior High and Oct. 27 at Eastway Junior High. All of Tuesday's admission free films will be shown from 7-10 p.m. in several rooms at each location. They last from 11 to 25 minutes and some will be shown back to back in the same room.

Eastland Mall will show all 12 films on Saturday October 17 in the community room from 1-6 p.m.

"People from different areas can pick a place to come and see the film," says Barbara Ziegler, director of the Mecklenburg Council on Adolescent Pregnancy.

Films, designed for 6th to 10th graders and others for parents will be open to questions and answers led by a staff member from one of the sponsoring agencies. Movies and discussions are a tool for developing new ways to share between teens, their peers and their parents.

NAREB Elects

Rowe-Anderson

Vice President

Dr. Huey M. Rowe-Anderson was elected 3rd Vice President of the National Association of Real Estate Brokers (NAREB) at its 34th Annual Convention held in Freeport, the Bahamas recently.

Dr. Anderson, a chemistry professor at Johnson C. Smith University and the president of Rowe-Anderson Realty, is the first North Carolinian elected as an officer of NAREB, the largest minority operated trade organization in the world. Anderson is also president of the Metroline Association of Realtors, chartered by NAREB at its 33rd convention in 1980.

As third vice president of NAREB, Dr. Anderson's major responsibility is to design and plan a University School of Real Estate which will be held during the Association's 35th convention in 1982.

Dr. Anderson earned the Ph.D. and M.S. degrees at the University of Nebraska - Lincoln, and the B.S. degree from Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska. He is married to the former Rosalind Duncan, a partner in Rowe-Anderson Realty, Inc.
