MOUNT ZION

Mt. Zion AME Church in Belmont had a special and inspiring speaker recently on the church's Woman's Day.

Dorothy Morris Tate, also a member of Mt. Zion Church, delivered a message on the topic of "Striving To Do Our Best." A dedicated and kind church worker, Ms. Tate compared the women of today with women of the Bible.

Rev. Jeremiah Robinson
...First Mayfield pastor

"Women of Biblical times did their best for their fellowmen, sometimes in fear of their lives, but we as women today, are dedicated but sometimes for selfish reasons. We will help our fellowman if the price is right. We will do our best if we get all the glory. As Christians," she continued, "we have got to forget self and let our light shine among men so that they may see our good work and glorify our Father, who is in heaven."

Mrs. Tate, the mother of seven children and an employee of A. B. Carter, Inc. in Gastonia, closed her speech with this poem:

"I am one, oh Lord, but still I am one. I cannot do everything, but still I can do something, and because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do something that I can do."

Credit Extended

For Employers

GREENSBORO - The Economic Recovery Act of 1981 extended the expiration date for the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit to December 31, 1982, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The TJTC was to have expired December 31, 1981. An employer may now claim the TJTC for a full two-year period on wages paid or incurred to any targeted employee who begins working for the employer before January 1983.

For an employer to claim the tax credit, the wages must be paid or incurred to an employee who is certified as a member of a designated local agency. Generally, the Employment Security Commission makes those certifications in North Carolina.

Is The Public Being Told The Truth?

was rally quite clear on that. He came out, as I said, for extension as is, which was the civil rights groups' position. He made that very clear and then commented about the bail out and I find it difficult to see how that can be construed either as watering down anything.

Tony Brown: Number one, I am as confused now as I was when I came in on Voting Rights. Maybe I have a very simple mind and I don't know all the sections as you and John Procope do but, number one, what really is at issue? If you are supporting extension of the previous Voting Rights Act, why are we asking these questions and why are these stories being circulated in the press that you're not?

Mr. Meese: I think that's a very nice question.

Tony Brown: All right, number two, and after you answer that part of the question, are you prepared to overwhelmingly, explicitly, clarify these ambiguous questions, I guess that would relate to Sections two and five; and three, will the President use his enormous persuasive powers for this Voting Rights Act as he did for AWACS and for his budget cuts?

Mr. Meese? Yes, I think the President is going to do everything possible to get the Voting Rights Act through.

But the following week, Vernon Jordan, a liberal leader, used the editorial page of the New York Times to tell us otherwise. "When is an endorsement not an endorsement? The answer is: when President Reagan backs extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965."

Either Jordan knows something that the rest of us don't - or somebody is just misleading the public.

"Tony Brown's Journal," the television series is shown every Sunday, on WBTW-TV, Channel 3, at 11:30 p.m.

Hunt

Proclaims Civil Air Patrol Week

Governor James B. Hunt Jr., this week issued a proclamation declaring the week of November 29 - December 5, 1981, as Civil Air Patrol Week in N.C.

Burley B. Mitchell Jr. Secretary of the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said, "The men and women who make up the N.C. Wing of the Civil Air Patrol provide a vital service to the citizens of North Carolina, and it is only right that we take this opportunity to commend them for their work during the past year."

"The Civil Air Patrol is the outfit which spends long and arduous hours searching for downed aircraft in some of our more inaccessible areas of the state."

"They are the men and women who provide aerial support to our emergency management teams in times of natural or man-made disasters. We owe them a great debt of gratitude, and I hope the citizens of this state will take the occasion of their fortieth anniversary as a chance of offering them support in their year long efforts in national and local emergencies," Mitchell said.

The North Carolina Wing of the Civil Air Patrol is a division of the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.
