Squaws Select Mae Orr

"Squaw Of The Year 1982"

Several Squaws, Inc. Charlotte Chapter members and associates received prestigious awards recently during the cultural, social and civic organization's eighth Biennial Conclave held at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Raleigh.

Several local members attended the Conclave, sponsored by the Durham Chapter. They included Lillian Alexander, Mattie Arnold, Alberta Barnes, Bettye Cherry, Maxine Davis, Mary Gill, Bernice Fulson, Shirley Massey, Bettye McLaurin, Mae Orr, Virginia Shadd and Norma Westmoreland.

Mae Orr was named Squaw of the Year 1982 by the local chapter and received an award at the SOTY Luncheon for Outstanding Service. Mattie Arnold received a prize for being the first Squaw to register for the Conclave.

Braves Samuel Davis and Daniel McLaurin captured a second place trophy for the Charlotte Chapter in the Talent Search Extravaganza. Brave Davis entranced the audience with "The Greatest Love Of All," while Brave McLaurin amazed everyone with "Three Times a Lady." Both have lovely singing voices.

In the Braves Golf Tournament, Brave John Shadd of Charlotte, won first place in the First Flight. Brave Orville Person from Fort Worth, Texas, was the recipient of the E. W. Cherry Sportsmanship trophy.

The Durham Chapter of Squaws provided a variety of entertainment for members of 16 various chapters from nine states. The host chapter presented a luau which featured the Healanic Dancers, an authentic Polynesian Group, an Atoha Dinner and Talent Search, a formal dance (visit to the Mainland) and a Brave Golf Tournament.

The national organization consisting of approximately 300 members donated a check of $3,300 towards the United Negro College Fund. Dr. Smitn, president of Shaw University, received the award.

Local officers of Squaws, Inc. include President Maxine Davis; vice-president, Mary Gill; recording secretary, Hattie Ardrey; corresponding secretary, Bettye Cherry; treasurer, Shirley Massey; financial secretary, Bettye McLaurin; parliamentarian, Alberta Barnes; chaplain, Norma Westmoreland; and historian, Lillian Alexander.

Mae Orr was re-elected as Squaws, Inc. National Treasurer while Bettye McLaurin was elected as National Organizer.

Moore Is Breaking Negative Stereotypes

By Loretta Manago
Post Staff Writer

Whoever said that there were no more good kids certainly had not met Eric Lemans Moore. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric R. Moore, Moore is breaking all negative stereotypes about today's youth. At the completion of the 1982 school year Moore, a student at Thomasboro Elementary School had received a certificate for four years of perfect attendance, made straight A's on his report card and scored 96 on his California Achievement Test. A rising fourth grader Moore's favorite subject is math.

However, when he's not at school Moore plays on the Westchester Broncos Little League baseball team. Sponsored by the Westchester Optimist Club Moore and his teammates were this year's Little League Champions. Aside from baseball Moore is eager to join in a rugged game of football at anytime.

But sports and school do not occupy all of Moore's time. On Sundays he attends Mt. Carmel Baptist Church and he is also a member of Mt. Carmel's Sunday School. Once he becomes a member of Mt. Carmel Moore will represent the sixth generation of Moores that belong to Mt. Carmel.

The grandson of Dorothea B. Ashford Moore is a shining example to his and younger sister Jacquela, 13 months who, by the way, is Moore's favorite person. He concluded this when he admitted that he enjoys taking care of her.

A great fan of "Superman" Moore is indeed a superboy in his own right. For with all of his accomplishments and achievement Moore is even industrious. Through selling cans Moore has started his own savings account at NCNB.
