If the government has anything to do with nuclear waste, what will happen to the average American?

These and more questions will be answered during a series of seminars offered by the University of North Carolina of Charlotte entitled "Staying Alive: Issues and Ethics for the Eighties."

Also sponsoring this series is the UNCC Office of Continuing Education and

College of Human Development and Learning, The Charlotte Chapter of B'Nai B'rith Women and The Jewish Community Center.

The seminars will also include topics concerning the video revolution and how it affects us; the responsibilities of the news media; America's acceptance of exiles; and the value of spiritual faith.

The moderator for all sessions will be Patricia Steimer.

Seminars will begin October 6 and last until December 1, Wednesdays from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at the Jewish Community Center, 600 Sharon Amity Road.

The October 6 session alone will be held from 7-9:30 p.m. Students will earn 1.5 Continuing Education Units. The cost for the course is $35.

For more information call Betty Jaffe at 542-2041; Susan Applebaum at 364-8816; or Betty Walker at 597-4447 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The following Charlotteans and Charlotte organizations will receive awards for their unselfish volunteer work in various capacities. They will be honored by Gov. and Mrs. James B. Hunt Jr. Saturday, October 2, in Asheville at the First Baptist Church on Five Oak Street.

"Trapper John, M.D."

The purchase of a vineyard by fellow wine fanciers Trapper John McIntyre, M.D., and Gonzo Gates, M.D., leads them to some startling and disturbing discoveries, in Part I of a two-part "Trapper John, M.D." presentation, Sunday, October 3, at 10 p.m. on WBTV, Channel 3.

First, the two investors find that, contrary to their expectation, their vineyard is a dried-up, neglected agricultural disaster. Second, they find there a large, hidden cache of military weapons and ammunition.

Ethel D. Guest of Charlotte; Joanne R. Green; Ms. Wilburg Armistead; Debbie McKeithan; Clarence O. Kuester; James Yancey; all REA Volunteers of Charlotte and the Project Aries of Charlotte; the Providence Baptist Church, Baptist Young Women of Charlotte received an award; the Equitable Life Assurance Society of Charlotte also received a volunteer award.

Time's Hit Single Is Climbing Fast!

The Time's new hit single, "777-9311," is dodging telephone foul-ups on two continents. Says The Time leader Morris Day, "At first our record company didn't want to release the song in England because 777-9311 is a number used by a home for retarded children in their ads to solicit contributions. Somehow they got the problem taken care of and the single finally came out."
