EDITORIALS & COMMENTS We Need Teacher Incentives

"If you have teachers with limited ability and low morale, you're not going to have a good school system. There is nothing that can be a higher priority.' With these thought provoking words School Superintendent Jay Robinson stated the central issue underlying the choice between a possible relatively weak and relatively strong public school system by the year 2000.

With a deep sense of understanding of Dr. Robinson's words, the Charlotte-Mecklenburg School Board this week authorized its administrators to proceed to produce a plan for implementing a comprehensive new program to attract, train and promote highly motivated teachers who will be paid competitive salaries on a par with people in private industry.

In essence, the school board, while not fully endorsing the recommendations of the 11member study committee of teachers, administrators and community residents, did approve a year-long study of the teacher incentive plan.

Studies nationwide and locally show that the best college students are not choosing teaching as a profession and many of the better teachers are leaving the profession because of comparatively low pay, a feeling of low respect by the community-atlarge and consequently low morale.

While we have some concerns too about recommendations initially made to the school board, we endorse their action to spend the next year exploring the issue of developing better teachers as a primary move toward developing better educated students.

Reagan's Ultimate Insult

In a speech before the National Black Republican Council, obviously prompted by a Washington Post-ABC News poll showing 95 percent of blacks think Reagan should not seek a second term, the President offered the ultimate insult. He said the economic health of the 1960s was destroyed by the Great Society programs inaugurated by President Lyndon Johnson.

Reagan has apparently forgotten, if he ever really knew, that Head Start is one of the so-called "safety net" programs of his administration and that some Republicans are strong supporters of Job Corps.

More significantly, Mr. Reagan has insulted blacks by assuming that they don't understand nor remember the benefits that they and other poor and minority people received from the Great Society programs. For example, Census Bureau data show that in 1959 the ratio of citizens under the poverty line was 22 percent. By 1969, five years after the beginning of many Great Society programs, the poverty ratio had declined to 12 percent. For blacks in particular, 55 percent were in poverty in 1959, but by the early 1970s, that is, after the implementation of many Great Society programs, black poverty was reduced to 24 percent. Now, with Reagan's social program cuts black poverty is up to 34 percent. Repeatedly Mr. Reagan has used the "I didn't create this mess" slogan to discredit the Great Society programs when even the Nixon-Ford administrations saw the wisdom and merit in its programs. Ironically, a part of Mr. Reagan's strategy now calls for telling blacks and other minority groups that today's economic hard times are all the fault of Mr. Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs.

In effect, in the words of columnist Colman McCarthy, Reagan is offering a "distortion of the positive role that government intervention played in the 1960s." In the address to the Black Republican Council the President insulted the audience by assuming people could not see through this distortion, that they had no knowledge of the history of the 1960s and that their commitments to Republican Party principles were so strong that their minds would be clouded to the point of being unable to separate fact from fiction.

President Reagan and the radical conservative part of the Republican Party - Jesse Helms, John East - and some equally conservative Democrats are seeking to abolish every social program the nation has even to the point of abandoning the socalled "safety net" programs.

The Head Start and food stamp programs and Legal Services have been vital to the survival needs of blacks and other minorities not because such people are lazy, uneducated, con-artists or anti-work ethic. The basic problem is that the nature of the real world workings of the freeenterprise market system, with its cycles of prosperity, recession and depression, plus a touch of racism and sexism relegates many people to low places on the economic opportunity ladder. Since the society and the economic system, which is beyond the control and power of individuals, causes many people to be locked into a condition of poverty and limited opportunity government must come to their aid.

We Shall Overcome?

Letters To The Editor:

A Commendable Effort

Dear Sir:

The Black Reading Month Committee should be commended for its efforts to promote the reading of newspapers, books, journals and magazines. written, published and distributed by Black people, and more important, the promotion in general of reading by members of the Black community.

We of the Black media, of course, have a selfish interest in any effort to encourage members of our community or any other community to read the products of our efforts because we truly believe we have something to say.

More significant, however, is the importance of reading to our constituency. As many forces gather for an all-out war on illiteracy, the encouraging of Blacksto read is vital. Not only should we have a right to know, but we must motivate our children to have the desire to know.

prize-winning writers. like Teresa Simmons, Mac Thrower, Loretta Manago, and Karen Parker, who, at this time, are a major force on The Charlotte Post staff, I would like to cite The Post for its excellent presentations.

We appreciate the spotlight that is being placed upon us and pledge to continue to seek to present the best available material and to continue to be a media through which outstanding Black writers can present their views without fear of censorship or undue influence.

To quote the BRMC it- hold. Keep up the good self, the need for such a work. movement is as pressing as

We Can Not Be Docile People

Dear Bill: I recently had the opportunity to attend the Con-

Another major topic that was discussed throughout the entire week-end was gressional Black Caucus great city. For as Con-the 1980's.

gressman Ronald V. Del-

lums of California said,

We can not be docile

Thank you,

Samuel Young Jr.

6124 Wheeler Drive

Charlotte, NC 28211

ever. "As writer Haki Mad-

hubuti so clearly states,

We are at war for the minds of our people.' It has been waged for generations

We find The Post weekly

Mrs. Zelma Smith

a necessity in our house-

Improved Education Needed

I believe our children are a gift that we cannot take for granted. We must take responsibility for providing the education and training that black young people need in order to become the leaders of tomorrow. Our young people deserve individualized attention to help develop their abilities.

The church must take more leadership in the development of our children. Our churches have the human and physical resources to make a positive impact upon young lives within the community. Organizing a tutoring program is one example of what churches can do. We have done that in our community. This program helps sup-plement the school and home by providing a person who will take a special interest in the child and give assistance with school work. It is also an opportunity to share biblical truth and help young Christians develop their spiritual life.

Our local churches are going to have to hire full-time Christian education workers who would develop a curriculum for the church Sunday school that would motivate the children and make learning enjoyable. Christian education workers would maintain contact with the local schools and be available to provide personal assistance to the young people.

We must look for ways of improving the quality of education within our black community. I believe we ought to support the local public schools, but at the same time I feel we must establish local schools within our Christian community.

I am not against the public schools, but I am concerned for our children. When I see the educational needs in the black community and see our black teachers losing jobs, I believe it is time to think about how we can establish Christian schools that would educate our kids in the community.

In Fresno, California, I saw an example of what can be done. What I saw there was one of the most creative educational programs that I have ever seen any place. It is a small black Christian school. Each student gets individual attention. They learn individually and also collectively. In a large room with 18 kids each child had a desk separated by about six feet. When I spoke to the class, the questions the children asked showed a very high level of understanding and creativity.

I asked one of the founders why they started the school. She told me they had become very concerned about the quality of education in the black community and the

and will be waged for generations to come. Our efforts to reshape our values are as significant a part of our struggle as our efforts to attain politifal empowerment and to make economic changes. Black literature provides a record which links the past to the present and allows for continuity and evaluation of our thoughts and actions."

The hard fact is welfare capitalism in many forms is used to protect the interests of the corporate community which in turn protect jobs and profits.

The Black Reading Month Committee has displayed a degree of wisdom in selecting some of our most competent young journalists to assist them in their effort. Charlotte should be proud of the unusual number of exceptional young minds that have turned to the field of journalism as their life work and are making substantial contributions through their excellent writings.

In addition to several Legislative Weekend, on September 17 through 19 in our nation's capitol. The theme of this year's conference was "A Salute to Black Business.'

We had an opportunity to attend several workshops that ranged from "Aging to Youth" and other subjects that included Criminal Justice, Education, Free Enterprise Zoning, Housing, Minority Business and Political Empowerment. Speakers were individupeople as we move toward als who represented the highest level of achievement in their chosen field. I found the session both informative, and enlighten-

ESAA contained "carrot

lack of leadership in the junior high and "THE BLACK LEADERhigh school level within their churches. So SHIP FAMILY PLAN," for they began to send their kids to a private the unity, survival and progress of black people. In Christian school. She began to go over to the reading the plan I found it school and became involved as a volunteer. extremely interesting and I She saw the quality of education and the hope that you will print the improvements that her child was making. rules of the plan in its entirety for the benefit of your readership in our

This woman who was one of the founders said she, and others who joined with her, decided to make the same kind of education available to a broader group of people within her own community. People from her church and community came together to start the school. They were able to rent a building that had formerly been used for a Head Start program. So in that community they are developing a unique school for black kids.

From Capitol Hill THE CHARLOTTE POST Second Class Postage No. 965500

Alfreda L. Madison

Special To The Post

the Great City Schools and the Equality Center reveal startling facts about the negative effect of Block

Grant legislation on school

The Reagan Administration and Congress added to the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act passage of the Education Consolida-

(ECIA). Included in ECIA

tion Improvement Act desegregation.

Studies by the Council of

"THE PEOPLE'S NEWSPAPER" Established 1918 Published Every Thursday by The Charlotte Post Publishing Co., Inc.

Subscription Rate $15.60 Per Year Send All 3579's To: 1524 West Blvd., Charlotte, N.C. 28208 Telephone 704-376-0496 Circulation 10,433

104 Years of Continuous Service

Bill Johnson	Editor, Publisher
Bernard Reeves	General Manager
Fran Farrer	Advertising Director
Dannette Gaither	Office Manager

Second Class Postage No. 965500 Paid At Charlotte, North Carolina Under the Act of March 3, 1878

> Member, National Newspaper Publishers' Association

North Carolina Black Publishers Association

Deadline for all news copy and photos is 5 p.m. Monday. All photos and copy submitted become the property of The Post and will not be returned National Advertising Representative Amalgamated Publishers, Inc.

2400 S. Michigan Ave. Chicago, Ill. 60616 Columet 5-0200

45 W. 45th St., Suite 1493 New York, New York 10036 212-489-1220

Reagan Block Grants' Programs Have Negative Effect

rewarded for continued school segregation. These requirements have been eliminated with Black Grants.

and stick" provisions. A school district was ineligible for federal grants if it committed any of the violations since 1972; (1) discrimination on basis of race or nationality in hiring, promotion and teacher assignment, discrimination against students in discipline, segregated extra-curricular activities, racially isolated classrooms, discrimination against non-English speaking students and transfer or equipment to segregated academics. Under ESAA the Education Department was prohibited from providing funds to school districts that violated these provisions. The Office of Civil Rights determined school districts eligibility for grants. The ESAA program provided access and triggered educational improvements for minority students faster than would otherwise have been. The "carrot and stick" compliance was used by both the Executive and Federal Courts as they enforced the Fourteenth Amendment. Including ESAA in the ECIA of 1981 eliminated a very effective tool for reducing racial discrimination.

The Educational Block Grant programs have been reduced by the Reagan Administration from $583 million to $483 million.

Before consolidating Educational Block Grants, federal funds were being spent under guidelines, provided many innovative programs; enriched culturextracurricular activities and creative programs. Parents were trained in integration.

Superintendent McMurrin of Milwaukee Schools stated that while their schools were court ordered desegregation, it was achieved through voluntary parents' and children's efforts. In that city, 37,000 children are transported daily. A broad spectrum of elementary school program options, transitional middle school programs and an array of career specialty high schools, resulted in integration because of the programs made possible by the federal desegregation funds. Eugene Reville, Superin-

dial work and creative programs. Results of the six year phases of desegregation effort, the public school image changed so much that many people who had previously placed their children in private schools returned them to the public schools because of Buffalo's school success,

'white flight'' has not been a factor. During this period, student attendance

increased and suspensions and discipline problems de-

Educators emphasized that there is a risk of the Administration's consolidated grants of creative educational programs and schools which are desegregated in both letter and

The Council of the Great creased.

spirit.

meeting with Mr. Bell was also requested. At this writing there has been no retendent of Buffalo Schools sponse to the letter. stated that ESAA funds provided the Buffalo Schools with needed reme-

Autumn Leaves

The City Sanitation Division provides Charlotte residents with a leaf collection service during the fall season as follows:

- Bagged leaf service is available at curbsides each Wednesday except for holiday weeks.

- Leaves may be bagged or placed in containers. boxes, please; rain water will cause the bottoms to fall out.

- The City of Charlotte no longer provides leaf vacumming service. This service is available through local private contractors.

- Do not place bagged leaves for backyard collection. For more information a bout proper disposal of autumn leaves contact the City Sanitation Division at City Schools wrote Secretary of Educational Bell a letter expressing concern over the Department's approval of states' formulas for distributing federal funds that do not meet the federal requirements. In this letter written July 2, a were consolidation of thirty different programs and the Appropriation for the ESAA programs began federal Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA). with $228 million in 1973 and it peaked to $300 mill-ESAA was enacted in 1972 ion in 1978 and 1979. In 1980 as a financial mechanism the appropriation defor spurring local school integration. Purpose of the creased to $250 million in

Act was: (1) to meet 1982. Prior to passage of special needs incident to the ECIA, local school evalelimination of minority seuation, which operated gregation and discriminaunder the old ESAA program, showed increased tion among students and faculty in elementary and academic achievement and secondary schools; (2) enattitudinal racial behavior courage voluntary eliminimprovement.

ation, reduction to preven-Under ESAA rules there was assurance that funds tion of minority group isowould only be spent in lation in schools with subdistricts that showed substantial proportions of minority students; (3) to aid stantial desegregation progress. Preclearance procechildren in overcoming the dures established guaraneducational disadvantages of minority group isolation. tees that schools were not

Alfreda L. Madison