With God's Help, Kimbles Reach Out To People In Need

By Loretta Manago
Post Staff Writer

The recurring dream of feeding people kept Beulah Kimble awake many a night before she was convinced that the Lord was directing her and her husband, David, to reach out to people in need.

With little financial resources, only faith in Jesus Beulah and David Kimble set out to found an outreach missionary program. Since then, Mrs. Kimble announced, "so many doors have opened up for the program."

Like most missionary programs the needs of food, clothing, furnishings, personal and spiritual counseling are met, but unlike many missionary programs the one the Kimbles have embarked on require no forms to complete nor is it structured on a rigid time schedule.

"Here, people will be able to receive immediate help," emphasized Mrs. Kimble.

The program which is scheduled to open June 13 will be open to the public seven days a week, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. "People have needs every day and we want to be here when people solicit aid," stressed Mrs. Kimble.

On Saturday, June 4, a benefit concert will be held at the parking lot of the Westover Shopping Center, located at West Blvd.

From 3-7 p.m. various singing groups and soloists, including evangelist and singer Rev. George Luster and the Voices of Faith will perform to help raise funds for the mission, a non-profit organization. Donations, solicited, not only include money, but clothing, food and furnishings as well. Oscar Weathers of WQCC will emcee the program.

Mrs. Kimble, who received her calling to the ministry over a year ago said that she has continually sought God for guidance. To her, her "ministerial direction" into missionary work was highly appropriate. "We as Christians have not shown the true embodiment of Christ's love in action," stated Mrs. Kimble.

No one should have to go hungry or without clothing. With this ministry we're doing the work that needs to be done at home," voiced Mrs. Kimble.

To assist in the outreach Mr. and Mrs. Kimble are looking for volunteer counselors and ministers and welcomes anyone with ideas. They can be reached at the missionary, 1524 West Blvd., or by calling 598-9288.

Mrs. Nicholas Crowned "Miss St. Paul Baptist Church"

You've heard of the Black Campus Queens, Miss America, and even Miss Universe, but have you ever heard of "Miss St. Paul Baptist Church?"

Yes, Mrs. Emma Nicholas was crowned "Miss St. Paul" on Sunday night, May 15. "I was shocked, excited, and I had to stand there for a moment and get myself together," she said.

The 30-year member of St. Paul raised $1,500 for Woman's Day. Mrs. Josephine Clemens, member of the Durham Board of Education, was the guest speaker.

She wanted to become "Miss St. Paul" because Luvenia Ivey didn't have the time to campaign for the position and asked her to take her place. "I didn't think I would win, but I was honored to represent the Usher Board and the church," she explained.

The duties of "Miss St. Paul" include participation on Rev. Dr. Paul W. Drummond's Appreciation Day and the Rose of Sharon Program.

The black church is important to the queen "to keep the black identity, because so many blacks are converting to white congregations."

Mrs. Daisy M. Dixon, her mother and member of Friendship Baptist Church and Troy Harris, her only brother and member of Friendship Baptist Church, are the most important people in her life. "We are a very close-knit family. I depend upon them for support," she said.

She is employed by the Charlotte Transit System, member of Usher Board No. 1 where she has been secretary for five years, Sonic Social Club, and chairperson for the Annual Picnic for Westover Hills Community Watch.

She has received certificates from the Charlotte Police Department, Cake Decorating Basic I and II, Flowers Decorating, and St. Paul Baptist Church where Rev. Dr. Paul W. Drummond is pastor.

Mrs. Emma Nicholas thanks Luvenia Ivey, Carolyn Ginyard, Mary Hoke, all Ushers of St. Paul, and co-workers of the Charlotte Transit System for their support.

Proper Mowing Practices

A homeowner should think of mowing as more than just cutting his lawn on a weekly basis. Mowing is actually a defoliation process in which a portion of the grass plant's leaf is removed. Remember, the leaf is the source of photosynthesis, (a plant's food manufacturing process). Mowing has a strong impact on the overall health of the turfgrass plant.

Two factors should be considered to insure a lawn is dense, uniform and attractive; mowing height and frequency.

Mowing too short is perhaps the most serious and common mistake in caring for lawns. Included among the negative aspects of cutting below a recommended mowing height are reduced root growth, plant vigor and wear tolerance.

Lawns containing bluegrasses, fescues and ryegrasses should be cut at a height of at least two inches. Southern lawns which are predominately bermudagrass or zoysiagrass should be cut at an approximate height of one inch.

Mowing frequency, or the interval between mowings, is determined very simply by the growth rate.
