Alexander Erwin
Chosen "Principal Of The Year"

Robert A. Clendenin of Greensboro and Alexander Erwin of Wilkesboro were honored here last night as the first Wachovia "Principals of the Year," an award presented to the state's most outstanding public high school principals.

Clendenin, principal at Walter Hines Page Senior High School, and Erwin, principal at Wilkes Central Senior High School, were presented awards of $1,000 for the purchase of educational materials and equipment for their schools and $1,000 for personal or professional use.

The awards program is sponsored by Wachovia Bank and Trust and the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. It was created to recognize the principals who "create an environment in which education thrives and young men and women are challenged to achieve their fullest potential."

John F. McNair III, vice chairman of Wachovia, commended the principals for the "investment of time and talent and energy" which they put into their roles. "We believe that effective principals are the key to achieving maximum return on the vast potential represented by the young people of our state and nation," he told the group attending the opening night of the North Carolina Association of School Administrators fall conference.

Clendenin was cited for several programs instituted at Page High School, including an attendance monitoring system with computer-initiated calls to students' homes which resulted in a significant decline in absenteeism; annual questionnaires to students, staff and parents; and internships in city service agencies.

Erwin was recognized by the selection committee for programs developed to establish rapport with students, parents, teachers and the community. These programs include a meeting for each incoming student, the student's parents, the director of instruction and a counselor; and the "mentor program" for college-bound students.

Six other principals who were named principal of the year for their regions were also recognized at the meeting: J. Robert Boyce, John A. Holmes High School, Edenton; Patrick Best, Goldsboro High School, Goldsboro; Richard M. Jewell, Broughton High School, Raleigh; George W. Seagraves, Lee County Senior High, Sanford; Robert H. Bellamy, Monroe High School, Monroe; and Larry R. Liggett, Asheville High School, Asheville. They each received a check for $750 to be used for the purchase of educational materials or equipment for their schools.

The regional winners were selected from among 35 principals nominated by their local school systems.
