

Mixtures Of Metals, Stones Characterize Spring Jewelry

Imaginative and dramatic, new fine jewelry for spring blends metals, colored stones and pearls in impressive necklaces, geometric earrings, and large bold rings and bracelets, reports Kae McCullough, fashion director of the Jewelry Industry Council. "Bracelets tend to be larger, achieved either with large gold bands, or several strands of pearls and chains or colored stone beads," she declares. Lengths of new necklaces make news too, with choices ranging from very short choker lengths with unique center treatments where the clasps are part of a decorative centerpiece, to longer "twister" necklaces that combine several different strands of pearls or beads for eye appeal and texture. Gold is used to enhance colored stones and pearls, and often two or three hues of gold appear in one piece of jewelry, such as a bracelet in pink, gold and white. Both rings and earrings take on a bolder appearance, with large geometric shapes for daytime earrings, and elongated drop earrings for evening. Mabe pearls grace earrings, rings and necklace centerpieces, and baroque pearls often set the mood for the designer's creation, serving as a design inspiration by its shape. Many are set off with small diamonds, seed pearls or tiny colored stones, and set in gold.

The newest, hottest look this season is the BIG shirt worn with leggings. BIG shirts are extra chic when in tropical or jungle print material. Accessorize with chunky bangles and fashionable flats and this look has real spice.
