

"Career Changer" Workshop Scheduled

By Jalyne Strong
Post Staff Writer

"How do I move from one career to another?" is a question many individuals will ask themselves sooner or later; considering the fact that the average American makes three to four career changes in a life time.

Moreover, especially during the present, stressful economic era, and with a growing number of single parent households, adults are acknowledging the need for increased financial security. If they are in low-paying, going nowhere jobs, they'll invariably admit, "I want to make a move, to make more money, and to receive better benefits."

Therefore, in an effort to assist persons currently working in education and helping professions who are considering, anticipating or experiencing a career change to business and industry fields, the Women's Career Center of Central Piedmont Community College will be conducting a workshop called, "Career Changers."

The workshop will be held on Saturday, June 15, from 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m., at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in the Mint Room. The registration fee of $35 covers the workshop, lunch, breakfast and break-time snacks.

Emphasis is on those moving from education and helping professions to business and industry because reports show these are the areas experiencing the most career changing activity. According to Carol Walker Jordan, director of the Women's Career Center, "In education and helping fields the pay is far too low and people are struggling to survive, especially single working mothers."

The planned workshop is designed to illustrate exactly how transitions are made from education and helping careers to business and industry: what skills carry over or what additional qualifications are necessary.

The workshop will be structured as follows:

The morning session will present a career changers panel; three individuals who have successfully moved from education and helping professions into business. They will offer advice and discuss transition expectations.

At lunchtime, featured speaker will be David Campbell. Campbell devised the "Strong-Campbell Interest Inventory," a test that determines vocational interest. He also authored the book, "If You Don't Know Where You're Going You'll End Up Somewhere Else."

Nine personnel officers from Charlotte companies will be featured in the afternoon. They will speak about why they would encourage a person to make a career change, what skills are needed, and how often do the companies hire career changers.

The Women's Career Center's "Career Changers" workshop is co-sponsored by the Mecklenburg County Women's Commission. The registration fee must be paid by noon on June 14. Payments should be sent to the Women's Career Center, CPCC, P.O. Box 35009, Charlotte, North Carolina 28235. For further information call Carol Walker Jordan at 704-373-6499.

Tammy Huey, the daughter of Rosilyn and David Huey, and Terry Davis, son of Mrs. Jane Davis Beula, were recently joined in holy matrimony. The bride is employed with Wayne's Supermarket and the groom, a graduate of South Mecklenburg, is employed at Universal Fastener Company. The wedding took place at St. Luke Baptist Church. Rev. L. D. Parker officiated the ceremony. (Photo by Ricky Sampson of Divine Reflections)

PASTORAL VISITATION - The Right Reverend Frank H. Vest, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of N.C. and former Rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Charlotte, will perform the Sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation, and Reception for six children, six young adults and approximately 15 other Episcopallians transferring to St. Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church, at its new location at 4232 Hovis Road, Father Edward G.W. King Jr., Vicar of St. Michael and All Angels Church, will be co-Celebrant at the 10:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist following the Sacramental Rites which will increase the membership of the 107-year-old church, formerly located at Mint and Hill Streets, to approximately 125 members. The public is cordially invited to attend this uplifting spiritual occasion marking a new beginning in the life of the 27 individuals. A reception will follow in the church's Parish Hall.

Impact Of Divorce

"Divorce: A Problem or a Solution?" will be taught this summer at Central Piedmont Community College.

The course, intended for the formerly married and those in the process of ending a marriage, will examine the impact of divorce on separating partners and their children; state and national trends in divorce; community agencies that can assist in resolving the problems of divorce; consumer and credit rights of formerly married people; and North Carolina divorce laws.

Marshall Maddox, social problems specialist in the Behavioral and Social Science Department at CPCC, will teach the course. Classes will meet Wednesdays, July 17 through September 11, from 6-9:40 p.m., on campus.

Registration is $11. Students may register at the first class meeting or during regular registration, which begins June 3 for current CPCC students and June 5 for all others.

For additional information, call Hoke Griffin at 373-6931 or Marshall Maddox at 373-6879.

Spring Luau

Want to experience Hawaii? Savor the paradise island's delectable dishes? Dance the hula all night long?

Then attend the Alpha Phi Alpha Spring Luau, June 7, beginning at 9 p.m. at the Park Center, Charlotte. The event provides an opportunity for the Charlotte community to enjoy and evening of fun with a tropical accent!

A Hawaiian feast will be served at the luau, followed by a hula hoop contest enabling participants to work off some of the calories from the meal. Music will be provided by Fraternity Brother T.C. Crosland and prizes will be awarded to the winner of the hula hoop contest and to ticketholders selected in a random drawing.

Ticket price for the event is $7.50. Proceeds will be used to enhance the Fraternity's community service projects which include support for the Afro-American Cultural Center, sponsorship of operation Santa Claus, and citizenship and leadership training for high school students.

Contact event chairman, Chip Hammonds, for ticket purchases, telephone 366-6174.
