

Take College Classes Free

Rock Hill - Winthrop College invites senior citizens to take college classes without paying tuition.

In Winthrop College's "Over 60" program, any South Carolina resident age 60 or older may attend classes at Winthrop on a space available basis.

Courses may be taken for enrichment or for college credit in pursuing a degree program. Students seeking a degree must meet Winthrop College admissions requirements.

Fall semester classes begin August 21, and senior citizens may register now by contacting Dianne Hockett at Joynes Center for Continuing Education, headquarters for the "Over 60" program. Students will be notified during the first week of classes if space is available for the desired classes.

Ms. Hockett is available to discuss academic interests with prospective students and to register them for classes. Students will be charged a $5-per-class registration fee and any lab fees. They will also receive a free library pass and parking permit.

Winthrop College, located in Rock Hill, S.C., is a fully accredited, coeducational, state-assisted college with more than 65 degree programs. Undergraduate, graduate and specialist degrees are offered in the College of Arts and Sciences and four professional schools: business administration, consumer science and allied professions, education and music.

For information, contact Ms. Hockett at Joynes Center, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S.C. 29733, 803-323-2196.
