

First Baptist Church-West's
Revival To Feature
Evangelist Dr. Beecher

Story On Page 6A

IBM Loans Employees
To Educational Institutions

Story On Page 12A

House Of Prayer's
Annual Convocation
Begins Sunday

See Stories In B Section

Bishop McCollough

SEP 27 1985

NOW SERVING
CABARRUS, IREDELL, MECKLENBURG, WAKE AND YAMHOUBURG COUNTIES
CHARLOTTE, N. C. 28202

THE CHARLOTTE POST

"The Voice Of The Black Community"

YOUR BEST
ADVERTISING MEDIA
IN THE LUCRATIVE
BLACK MARKET
CALL 376-0496

Volume 11, Number 17

THE CHARLOTTE POST - Thursday, September 26, 1985

Price: 40 Cents

Dr. Albright Named To Duke Power Board

Dr. Robert L. Albright, president of Johnson C. Smith University, was elected today to Duke Power Company's board of directors.

Born in Philadelphia, Dr. Albright holds a B.A. degree in history from Lincoln University and a master's of art degree in history from Tufts University. He earned his doctorate in education from Kent State University in 1978.

Before becoming president of Johnson C. Smith in 1983, Dr. Albright was vice chancellor for student affairs at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. From July 1979 to June 1981 he was special assistant to the assistant secretary of postsecondary education in the U.S. Department of Education.

The new director is a senior faculty member at the Harvard Summer Institute in College Admissions, where he has returned since 1970, and for the past several years has served as lecturer at the University of North Carolina Summer Institute on Admissions, Financial Aid and Academic Placement.

Locally, Dr. Albright is chairman of the Human Services Council of Charlotte-Mecklenburg County and member of the board of directors of the Greater Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, North Carolina National Bank, the Charlotte branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Mercy Hospital Foundation, Urban League and United Way. He is chairman of the National Advisory Committee on Minority Concerns of The College Board and is on the boards of United Negro College Fund and Micro-Electronics Center of North Carolina.

Dr. Albright and his wife, the former Linda Pittman of Philadelphia, have two children.

Johnson C. Smith is a private liberal arts college in Charlotte affiliated with the Presbyterian Church. It was founded in 1887 and has 1,223 students.

BSC Buildings

Become Historic Sites

The presentation of certificate of official entry of three Barber-Scott College buildings in the National Historic Register was the highlight at the annual opening convocation, which marks the official opening of the academic year.

Robert Nunn, a representative of the U.S. Department of Interior, and William S. Price Jr., an officer of the North Carolina Historic Preservation Office, made the formal presentation of the three buildings: Graves Hall, currently a women's dormitory, built in 1876; Faith Hall, which houses the College Chapel, built in 1891; and Cozart House, a conference center with guest lodgings, built in 1894.

"I believe that the presentation at the beginning of a new academic year will help to highlight the heritage of your institution for your students, faculty, and friends," says Price.

"Your institution is most fortunate to own and preserve a property that justly deserves this honor," he adds.

TURTLE-TALK

He that is never satisfied with anything, satisfies no one.

Attractive Sonya Buchanan
..... "Miss Sophomore Class For '85-'86"

Sonya Buchanan Enjoys Attending J. C. Smith

By Jalyne Strong
Post Staff Writer

Attractive Sonya Buchanan is a sophomore at Johnson C. Smith University on a full scholarship awarded by the Duke Endowment Scholarship Program for high academic achievement. She is also "Miss Sophomore Class for 1985-86."

"I enjoy attending Smith very much," admits Sonya. "The college's atmosphere is very much like a close knit family."

A biology major, her plans are to go into medicine. "Science is one of my better subjects and I enjoy helping people," Sonya cites as the reasons behind this career choice.

And though she'll be handling a demanding science workload, Sonya as Miss Sophomore Class, will also be responsible for representing the university at the homecoming parade and at various collegiate social functions throughout the year.

But that will hardly be a problem for this 18-year-old who describes herself as "very active." "I like to keep busy," she points out.

With that type of attitude, Sonya can maintain her standing in the Honor's program and also on the Dean's List while having time to go to the movies, play tennis, and go swimming: a few of her favorite activities.

She also managed to participate, through Smith, in the Minority Bio-Med Research Science program held in Miami. "It's a program designed to increase the pool of black scientists and researchers," Sonya describes. "I met students from all over the U.S.," she adds. "More importantly, they were young people with the same types of interests as mine."

Additionally, Sonya has, for two summers, worked as a research assistant and patient transporter at the Community Action and Support of Health program at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. "I received hands-on experience of working in a hospital," she relates.

Such serious pursuits for such a young lady? "I am very serious," Sonya admits about herself. "But not always, I like to have fun, too."

And, for fun, she likes to listen to the radio. "I'm very flexible in the choice of music I listen to - everything from classical to rock." Plus, Sonya "loves shopping." As a matter of fact she laughs, "I was born to shop!" Then, she rounds off her most loved hobbies with her romance with travel. So far, unforgettable trips for Sonya have included skiing in Massachusetts with her brother, and a week in Paris, France, while she was in high school. But this week's beauty is definitely looking forward to more traveling. "I would love to study abroad, possibly through a summer program," she projects.

A resident of Washington, D.C., Sonya came to Johnson C. Smith following in the footsteps of an older brother and sister who are both Smith alumni. Sonya is the youngest in her family with three brothers and one sister and she says, about being the baby, "I love it! I get to learn from my older siblings and they're good for support. Of course, See SONYA On Page 4A

Primary Elections Over

Candidates Poise For General Election

By Audrey C. Lodato
Post Staff Writer

Now that the primary elections are out of the way, the real contests begin. Unlike primaries, when only those with party affiliation can vote, the November general election will be open to all registered voters.

Here are the choices they will have:

In the race for mayor are incumbent Harvey Gantt (who defeated his opponent, James Baldwin, with close to 86 percent of the vote) and Dave Berryhill. Berryhill and his opponent, Sue Myrick, ran so closely that Myrick had not conceded defeat as of Wednesday morning.

For City Council at-large seats, Democratic primary winners Al Rouso (with 25 percent of the vote), Cyndee Patterson (23 percent), Mike Stenhouse (21 percent) and Vic Bell (19 percent) will face Republicans Minette Troesch, Earl Driggers, Richard Vinroot, and Herb Spough. (There was no primary for at-large Republicans.) Troesch, Vinroot, and Spough are all incumbents.

Rev. Leon Sullivan Will Address Annual Minority Trade Fair

By Audrey C. Lodato
Post Staff Writer

The Rev. Leon H. Sullivan, founder of the Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC) program, will be in Charlotte October 2 to address the Eighth Annual Carolinas Minority Trade Fair.

According to Thomas Staton, operations manager for the Carolinas Minority Suppliers Development Council (CMSDC), which is sponsoring the trade fair, Rev. Sullivan will speak to the assembled corporate executives and minority businesspeople on economic development, an area in which he excels.

He is the creator of the Sullivan Principles, guidelines designed to give equal rights and pay to all South Africans.

Rev. Sullivan is pastor of Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia. Since his arrival there in 1950, church membership has grown from 600 to 6,000. The church is involved in day care, a federal credit union, a community center program for youth and adults, an employment agency, adult education reading classes, numerous athletic teams, choral groups, and a family counseling service.

In 1964, Rev. Sullivan founded OIC, the first program of its kind in the country. OIC sponsors training and retraining and now operates in more than 140 cities in the U.S. and eight foreign countries. OIC has trained over 600,000 people and has placed 400,000 of them in gainful employment with annual earnings of approximately $6 billion.

Rev. Sullivan also founded Progress Investment Associates (PIA) out of his church membership. PIA has built a $1 million garden apartment complex, the first of its kind in the East; a $2 million shopping center, the largest built, owned, and operated by blacks in the country; a second inner city community shopping center; and a multi-million dollar facility in the heart of Philadelphia which provides social, health, and human services.

In addition, Rev. Sullivan is founder and trustee of the Progress Non-Profit Charitable Trust, a broad based community development corporation that emphasizes physical redevelopment combined with economic development and education in inner cities.

A 33rd Degree Prince Hall Mason

Rev. Leon Sullivan
..... Founder of OIC program

and a Shriner, Rev. Sullivan is the recipient of numerous awards and serves as a director of General Motors, Mellon National Corporation, Girard Trust Bank, Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, and Boy Scouts of America.

The trade fair is being held October 2-3 at the Charlotte Convention Center. Last year, notes Staton, 56 percent of the booths were taken by minority businesses, 42 percent by majority corporations, and two percent by government agencies. "It looks to be similar this year," he adds. Staton expects the fair will be booked to capacity.

The trade fair offers corporate purchasing personnel and minority suppliers the opportunity to get together in a concentrated period of time.

The purpose of the Carolinas

Minority Supplier Development Councils, Inc. is to assist member corporations in developing or improving their minority vendor programs, to identify minority suppliers, to provide vendor referrals, and to conduct buyers' seminars and sales training programs for minority businesses. The Council publishes a Vendors' Guide directory of corporate buyers and a Buyers' Guide directory of minority-owned businesses.

The CMSDC is part of a network of regional minority purchasing councils that are affiliated with the National Minority Supplier Development Council.

The banquet at which Rev. Sullivan will speak is open to the public. Banquet tickets are $20 per person. For reservations or information, call Staton at 372-8731.

Dave Berryhill
..... Republican contender

Mayor Harvey Gantt
..... Wins easily

Cyndee Patterson
..... Runs well

Democratic primary winner in the 4th District, Roy Matthews (with nearly 80 percent of the primary vote against Huey Rowe-Anderson), will face Republican winner Jim Hawks, who took more than 76 percent of Tuesday's vote over Dennis Beasley.

For the Democrats, there were no other primaries. Republicans chose incumbent Ann Hammond (51 percent) over Stan Campbell in the 5th District, and Gloria Fenning (62 percent) over incumbent Paul Juneau in the 7th.

Hammond's win automatically gives her a Council seat because she has no Democratic opposition.

Fenning is also unopposed in November.

In fact, District 4 (Hawks Matthews) is the only district where there are two candidates.

Other districts are as follows: 1. Pam Patterson (D); 2. Charlie Dannelly (D); 3. Ron Leeper (D); and 6. Veiva Woolfen (R).