DISCOVERY PLACE
Spooky noises, weird specters and scary sights—that's what Halloween is made of. That's what kids will find if they visit the Haunted House at Discovery Place anytime from October 18 - November 2. Sponsored by WBTV and the Guild of the Science Museums, the abode of the "Mad Scientist," as the haunted house is known will be open weekdays from 4:30-9 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays from 1-9 p.m. In addition to the tricks, there'll be treats to delight the kids' tastebuds. Refreshments will be available and Halloween novelties will be sold at the Collector's Corner. Also, a Haunted House coloring contest will be held at elementary schools, and winners will receive free tickets.

HALL AND OATES
Daryl Hall and John Oates will split the proceeds from their new single between two charities, the United Negro College Fund and Live Aid's African relief project. The single, "A Night At the Apollo (The Way You Do The Things You Do-My Girl)" was born of Hall and Oates' desire to repay the black community for giving the duo its musical inspiration.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE
Sure, you remember Peter Pan, the little boy who wouldn't grow up and Wendy and the venture to Never, Never Land. Recapture those precious moments of Peter Pan or introduce it to your child as a new wonder when the Children's Theatre presents "Peter Pan" October 18-20 and 25-27. Call the Listener-supported radio station WFAE-FM 91 received a resounding vote of confidence from listeners and businesses in its 22 county coverage area during "Visions for '86," '91's week-long fund raising campaign. The radio station exceeded its $130,000 goal by $12,000. What that means is more good jazz to be featured during the evenings and that's definitely a winner!

WFAE

ONE FINAL NOTE!
Last week I got a chance to see a master perform. Lionel Hampton was in concert this past weekend at Spirit Square and performed to a capacity audience. With his 17-piece orchestra, Lionel Hampton delighted and musically satisfied each member of the audience. Whether he was scatting and soliciting responses from the audience or whether he was playing manfully on the vibraphone, the piano or drums, or whether he had the audience eating out of the palms of his hands with the jokes he told, Lionel Hampton proved, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that he is indeed a master at his craft.

Masterpiece Opening Set

Charlotte's masterpiece, the Mint Museum, will open its expanded facilities to the public on Sunday, November 10. The expansion, which more than doubled the exhibition space, was made possible by funds raised through a bond issue and private donations. The expansion will house the Dalton collection of American and European art which was donated to the museum and the Mint's permanent collection. As part of the renovation, a new entrance facing Randolph Road was designed to provide easier accessibility. Mint hours will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Tuesdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays, and 1-6 p.m. on Sundays. The Mint Museum will be closed on Mondays. For more information on exhibits or on how to become a Mint member, call 337-2000.

very well kept that promise. He is amazing and has the energy of someone twice his age or even younger.

Not being a fan of the big band era, I did recognize a few of the songs, "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Neutron Dance," and "Somewhere Over The Rainbow." But it really didn't matter, the music was just fantastic and the finale, which included the orchestra parading throughout the audience on "When The Saints Come Marching In," was even more so.

Believe me, it was a night I won't soon forget.
