

The Renaissance: A Beginning

A PHOTOGRAPHIC PERSPECTIVE

Wills Stratford Sr. (far left) shares an amusing moment with Alan McMillan, while Tony Brown (center foreground) holds discussion with Lem Long

... (r), chairman of the board of the West Trade-Beatties Ford Area Merchants Association. (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Introductions are made by an unidentified guest (l) and Mike Stenhouse (back shown) to Robert Albright, president of Johnson C. Smith University, and his wife.

Linda Albright (r). (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Mayer Harvey Gantt (far right) stresses a point to (l-r) guest speaker Tony Brown, Darryl Holland, vice president of Pepsi-Cola, and his wife, Betty Holland. (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Luther Caldwell (c), president of Beatties Ford Road Memorial Gardens, holds court with an unidentified

guest (r), while Pat Matus (l) looks on. (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Nasif Majeed (l) greets Sam Crane of Schloss Advertising and George Markus, Deputy Sheriff

Robert Washington (r) looks on. (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Barbara and Wallace Faysour (l), owners of Paso's Supermarket, are introduced to Pat Matus (c), campaign manager for Mike Stenhouse, by Deputy Sheriff

Robert Washington (far right). (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Discussing ideas brought up during The Renaissance Begins banquet, are (seated, l-r) Jean Webber, vice president of the West Trade-Beatties Ford Area Merchants Association, Ken Koontz, and vice president of the Small Business Division for the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, Lawrence Tollver. Standing (l-r) are Sam Young, Sandra Heartley and an unidentified guest. (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)

Congressman Alex McMillan (l) poses with Nasif Majeed (c), president of the Beatties Ford Rd. Burger King and the West Trade-Beatties Ford Area Merchants Association, and Bill Johnson, publisher-editor of The Charlotte Post. (Photo by Peeler's Portrait Studio)