Founder's Day To Be Family Reunion

North Carolina Central University's Founder's Day observance, scheduled at 11 a.m., Friday, November 1, in B. N. Duke Auditorium will have the distinct flavor of a family reunion at the request of Chancellor LeRoy T. Walker.

Dr. Walker asked that the Founder's Day committee, chaired by Dr. Tyrone R. Baines, build the program around the theme, "We Are Family." This is expected to be Walker's last year as NCCU's chief administrator.

Everything but a picnic on the grounds has been scheduled.

Younger alumni, students, staff and faculty will hear the reminiscences of elder family members as three retired teachers, employed by the founder, and two alumni, who were students under Dr. James E. Shepard, discuss his contributions. All are residents of Durham.

The former faculty members are Miss Pauline Newton, employed in 1924 as a teacher of English; Dr. Charles A. Ray, former chairman of the English Department; and Dr. Ernst Manasse, who joined the faculty (as professor of philosophy) in 1939 as a refugee from Hitler's Germany.

Alumni of Dr. Shepard's era making brief presentations are Mrs. Bessie E. McLaurin, class of 1940, who is also a longtime active member of the Durham Committee on the Affairs of Black People (which Dr. Shepard helped to create), and B. T. McMillon, class of 1946. McMillon in fact was employed by Dr. Shepard, just before the founder's death, when he joined the health education faculty in 1947.

Dr. Walker, who has completed 40 years of service on the university's faculty, will present Chancellor's Citations to two of Dr. Shepard's close associates: H. M. Michaux Sr., of the class of 1921, a Durham businessman, and Mrs. Frances M. Eagleson, who retired as registrar in 1964 after 43 years of service on the faculty and administration.

The public is invited to the program, which is the beginning of the university's Homecoming Week-end.

Montgomery County Board of Education Harrison is superintendent of Chatham County Schools. Ashley is a Charlotte-Mecklenburg school principal. Gunter is a Wake County school teacher. McCarthy is associate professor of Curriculum and Instruction at Appalachian State University. Shive is Director of Student Recruitment and Financial Aid at Wingate College.

"These individuals understand the issues before the study commission and will do an outstanding job," Lieutenant Governor Jordan said.

The Commission will examine current laws and policies regarding school closings in emergency situations as well as the regular school opening and closing dates.
