

Talledega College Holds Regional Conference

"Dega Survival" will be the center of discussion during the three-day Southern Regional conference of the Talledega College Alumni Association, which will be held at the Adam's Mark Hotel this weekend.

According to Greg Alston, president of the North Carolina Alumni chapter, there are many items on the agenda. "Some of the things we will focus on are alumni fundraising activities, school endowments, and constitutional changes."

In addition to those pertinent items, Alston added that the college's president, Dr. Paul B. Mohr Sr. will give an overall evaluation of Talledega's status.

The North Carolina chapter will host the conference.

Friday's activities will include a meeting of the Regional Alumni Board at noon, conference registration at 1 p.m., and at 8 p.m. a reception in the honor of Dr. Mohr Sr. to be held at JCSU's student union.

On Saturday, regional president Roy Yvette Clements will preside at the First General Session beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Speakers to be featured include the college president, Dove Savage, national alumni president, and Matthew Bowie, the director of alumni affairs. Later that evening the alumni association will sponsor the Alpha Lyrae-Vega Awards banquet.

The conference will close on Sunday with a worship service at the New Emmanuel Congregational United Church of Christ.

Talledega alumni holds its regional conference for two consecutive years, after which a national alumni meeting is held.

Talledega is a four-year liberal arts college with an enrollment between 700 to 800 students. According to Alston, Talledega ranks number one in percentage of students with advanced degrees.

A $50 registration fee will include the entire conference, whereas persons are able to attend the banquet for $22. At the banquet Betty C. Walker, an instructor at J.C. Smith, will provide the entertainment.

Officers of the North Carolina Alumni chapter are Greg Alston, president, Joan Silvey-vice president, Cleopatra Carr-secretary, and Margaret Wilson-treasurer.

Students Participate In Agribusiness Program

The Upward Bound Program at Johnson C. Smith University announced that five students have been selected to participate in the Agribusiness program at South Carolina State College in Orangeburg, SC.

The week-long program will orientate students, whose interest is Business Administration, to the nation's biggest industry. The students will spend a week with agribusiness professionals in various work environments, participating in seminars, computer games and learning about career opportunities.

The Upward Bound participants are rising seniors at following high schools: Cheryl Ross, Independence; John Smalls and Nina Jones, North Mecklenburg; Michelle Gill, West Mecklenburg; and Derrick Tate, West Charlotte.

Career options available to persons who complete the B.S. degree in Agribusiness include Commodity Analyst, Agricultural Loan Supervisor, Export-Import Agent and Marketing Analyst.

For further information, call Leonard E. Bodrick, director of the JCSU Upward Bound program, at 378-1103.
