John Nelson's Pencil Pictures

Seldom does success in the art world come to one so young. The usual pattern is fame after death. But John Nelson's talents cannot be ignored. In 1983 this 32-year-old artist was selected from thousands of candidates for a coveted White House showing, which was critically acclaimed. This was followed by a MacDonald Corporation contract to provide poster art for a nationwide in-store promotion - a rare break for an artist at any age, because it means instant fame and recognition. Where did this genius with pencil, charcoal, and pen and ink find the training to propel himself to the very cutting edge of American artists so quickly? From himself!

Yes, John Nelson is completely self-taught, as were Charles White, Fletcher Martin and John James Audubon. His style is marked by extremely detailed renderings that capture moods and emotions most other portrait artists can only hope to imitate. His natural talents give him the ability to bring out a depth and warmth that have enchanted critics and art fans alike. His portraits project a three-dimensional effect that you simply have to see to believe.

How fortunate for us that his talents were recognized in the very early stages of his expanding career. John Nelson today is poised to become one of America's most popular and prolific artists. And he did it the hard way - he earned it.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions - horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle, then strike it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.
