

Bowie For Real, Bulls Find---29-7

By HERB WHITE
Post Sports Editor

football," Smith coach Horace Small said. "They played a real good game tonight."

fumble at the Smith 14. Frazier hit Brian Forbes for the winning points.

Bowie poured it on in the fourth quarter with 17 points. Mark Fitzpatrick kicked a 39-yard field goal, Don Janey returned a punt 33 yards for another score and Norris added the clincher on his interception.

Drifting out to the right flank, Norris found a Westmoreland pass coming right at him, from there it was a matter of getting to the end zone.

"We knew it was going to be a hard game, but once we got in front of them they gave up and that interception put the icing on the cake," Norris said. "They gave up completely."

Small said the Bulls moved the ball well in spots under Westmoreland, but couldn't put points on the board when they got into scoring territory.

Smith had two other possessions end deep in Bowie territory, but Norris broke those threats by blocking an Anthony Linyard field goal try and breaking up a fourth-down pass to DeBlaise Payne in the end zone.

"(Westmoreland) seemed to be able to get them going," he said. "We just didn't execute real well."

With the latest victim tucked safely away, the Bulldogs remain on top of the Southern Division with a perfect record. After a nonconference game against rival Morgan State, Bowie will continue its CIAA schedule. It's a little early to talk about winning the division, but Dolch is optimistic.

"We've got at least seven more games to play and we're going to take them one at a time," he said.

Johnson C. Smith receiver Joe Weinberg (84) looks for some running room after catching a pass in the Bulls' 29-7 loss to Bowie State at Memorial Stadium. Photo/Frank Williams

Anti-Drug Sports Program Starts

By HERB WHITE
Post Sports Editor

Young and old alike can say no to drugs together with a new program in Charlotte.

Stanley McDowell, a former basketball coach, started the Say No To Drugs program last year in Washington, D.C. to coincide with the NBA's summer Pro-Am league. The concept worked so well in Washington, the NBA has helped establish similar programs in nine other cities with franchises.

The focal point will be drug education as counselors point out the dangers of substance abuse.

year in the league, McDowell said.

Most of the players in this year's local pro-am league weren't NBA-caliber performers, but McDowell expects that to change in future summers.

Other sports will be a part of the 'say no' experience, McDowell said, especially aimed at girls.

"Often, we don't have the things girls are interested in," he said. "We'll have women instructors who will work with us. What we're doing is making recreation responsive to people."

The Charlotte program will start in 16 schools around the city with children—especially the 10 to 12 year-olds—as the target audience. Games will be only a part of Say No To Drugs as staying competitive in school is the only way to stay involved with the year-round program.

"We're not all basketball," McDowell said. "We'll require every child to have passing grades in school to participate in the athletic program."

Warning kids to the danger of drugs will be a difficult task but one that has to be undertaken, McDowell said.

"That's what we're trying to do—get people to see what they're up against," he said.

Another side of the program is to get parents involved with saying no to drugs. Adult ignorance of the drug menace "is threatening" the black family, McDowell warns.

Drugs are a tempting way to score a quick high and with the price of acquiring drugs increasing, it is becoming more prevalent. With all the concern of the impact of drugs on the black community, McDowell insists that adults and children will have to join forces to succeed in stopping the menace.

"With the economics of it all, especially in the black community, the irony is that it isn't going anywhere," he said.

By HERB WHITE
Post Sports Editor
The days of taking Bowie State

Charlotte

By JAMES CUTHBERTSON
Post Sports Writer

When the Johnson C. Smith Golden Bulls take the field on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. against the Central State Marauders of Wilberforce, Ohio, they will be facing a team that is nationally ranked in the NAIA polls (number three) and the Sheridan Black College Poll.

The Marauders are looking at a sixth consecutive post season NAIA berth this year. Under Coach Billy Joe, the team recorded its second undefeated season last year when they went 10-0-1 while playing Grambling, Tennessee State and Florida A&M. The FAMU tie kept them from having a perfect regular season.

In five seasons, Joe has experienced only three regular season losses. However, in post season play, the team has not fared as well. They lost last year in the opening round to Carson Newman. The Golden Bulls will be seeking to put the puzzle together to get maximum use out of the offensive and defensive units.

On defense, the Bulls have rugged linebackers Ronald Capers, who is averaging 12 tackles per game of which 6 are solo; Michael Hamilton, 8, Otis Prioleau, 8, and Morton Copeland, 7. Capers came within one tackle of tying the school record with 20 against Bowie State.

The defensive backs consist of Anthony Byers with 9 per game, Darrick Cooper with 6, and Willie Cole with 5.

Steve Pinner at noseguard is averaging 5 per game.

The big interceptors are Anthony Byers, who was ranked number one in the nation recently, Mitchell Hargett, who is a former CIAA defensive back of the week and Football Gazette magazine South Region Player of the week and Darrick Cooper.

Charlotte

Earlier in the season at Cheney State in a 21-14 Bull win, they picked off eight passes between them.

The most consistent quarterback at this point in time has been Maurice Flowers. He is completing passes at a 46 percent clip and has over 200 yards in passing to lead the Bulls to the upper division of the CIAA passing teams for the first time in years. The run and shoot offense if working could give Cheney State some problems.

Marvin Barteo at wide receiver, Joachim Weinberg at wide receiver, Terry Jeter at wide receiver, Ronald Meadows at wide receiver, DeBlaise Payne at wide receiver and William Ford at tight end are the members of the Royal Air Force who will be receiving the aeriels.

Brooks, Indians Run Down Sabres 28-0

By HERB WHITE
Post Sports Editor

West Mecklenburg running back Roosevelt Brooks likes to keep football simple.

First, he wants the Indians (4-0) to win. Second, he wants to pick up at least 100 yards rushing.

Brooks got what he wanted last week as West tripped South Mecklenburg 28-0 in a nonconference game at South. Brooks's 100 yards on 15 carries was his fourth consecutive triple-digit performance this season.

"I've been trying to get 100 yards every game," he said. "The line's been blocking very well."

The Indians were looking forward to finishing off their nonconference schedule in anticipation of tomorrow's game against arch-rival West Charlotte in the first Tri-County 4A game of the season. Game time is 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

West Mecklenburg, No. 2 in The Post's Metropolitan Rankings, wasn't exactly looking past South, but it wasn't the game the Indians were gearing up for.

"It was tough to get ready, but we played a good game," said West coach Jim Hambacher. "The last couple of weeks, that's all they've been talking about. But when they step out on the field, they play hard."

The Indians ran hard, picking up 185 yards on 32 carries. West Mecklenburg, a working-class team, came at the Sabres with basic in-your-face running that wore down South's defense.

"We kind of took what they gave us," Hambacher said. "We did a good job of running the ball, but we dropped a couple of passes we should've caught.

Overall, we did a good job."

The best job was done by the Indians' offensive line, which opened gaping holes all game, allowing Brooks and his running mates to scamper for big yardage.

West took advantage of South's defensive set-up, which deployed one linebacker early in the game. Brooks consistently cleared the line of scrimmage, leaving the linebacker to plug the hole on running plays. More often than not, the Sabres couldn't get it done.

"At the beginning, they were playing one linebacker, but they must've felt I was getting too many yards, so they played two linebackers," Brooks said, "or linemen blocked well and when they block hard, it just makes me want to run hard for them."

West was in control all the way, putting two touchdowns on the board before the Sabres knew what hit them. What hit South was the special teams play of the Indians' Pressley Herron, whose first quarter punt returns set West up for its scores.

A 30-yard return set up a short drive which ended on James Mickle's 5-yard run for a 7-0 lead. Herron, who totaled 141 yards on kick returns, struck later in the quarter with a 32-yard run to the South 11. Brooks scored one play later on a nice change-of-direction run past the Sabre defense.

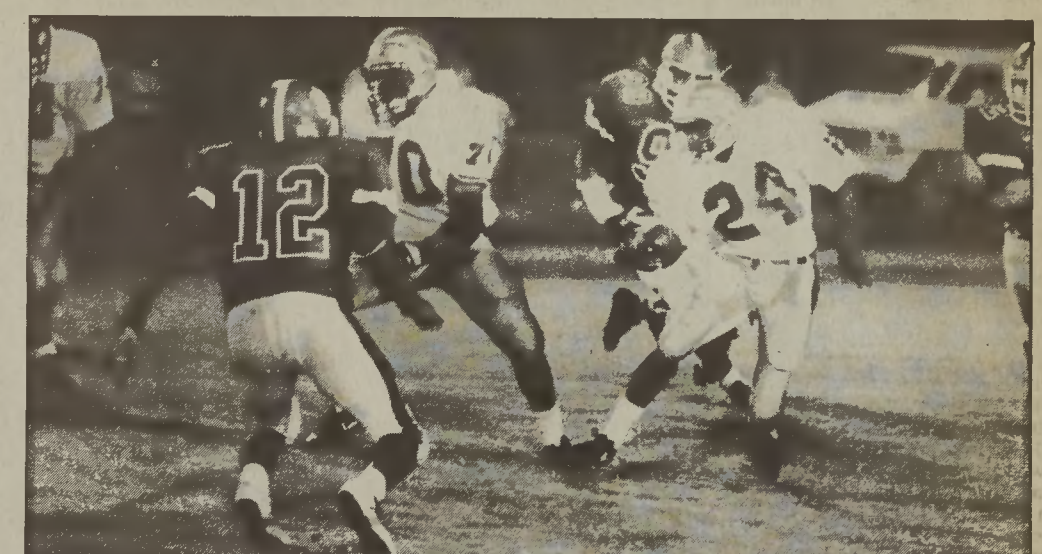

"We feel that if we can run the ball, they'll come up close and we can pass on them," Brooks said. "I've been trying to get 100 yards every game, and I've done it in four straight, but the important thing is that we win."

The second half was almost a replay of the first, with the Indians' ball-control offense eating up the clock and the defense shutting down the Sabre offense.

West Mecklenburg's Roosevelt Brooks is this week's Post Clutch Performer of the Week. See Page 8B.

CIAA
Southern Division
	Conf.	Overall
Bowie State	3-0	4-0
Winston-Salem State	2-0	4-0
North Carolina Central	1-0	4-0
J.C. Smith	0-2	1-3
Fayetteville State	0-1-1	0-3-1
Livingstone	0-3	1-3
Northern Division
	Conf.	Overall
Virginia State	1-0	3-1
Elizabeth City	1-1-1	2-1-1
Hampton	2-1	3-1
Virginia Union	0-2	2-2
Norfolk State	1-1	2-2
Last Week's Results
Bowie State 29, J.C. Smith 7
Hampton 44, Livingstone 14
Winston-Salem State 27, Virginia Union 6
N.C. Central 26, Fayetteville State 15
Virginia State 20, Elizabeth City 6
October 1 Games
Central State at Johnson Smith
Elizabeth City State at S. Carolina State
Virginia Union at North Carolina Central
Fayetteville State at Winston-Salem State
Livingstone at Virginia State
Morehouse at Hampton
N.C. A&T at Norfolk State
Morgan State at Bowie State

Antoine Love of West Mecklenburg (24) barrels ahead for yardage in the Indians' 28-0 shutout of South Mecklenburg last week. West Mecklenburg, No. 2 in The Post's Metropolitan Rankings, play West Charlotte tomorrow at Memorial Stadium. Photo/Frank Williams

A&T Perfect In MEAC

Special To The Post
GREENSBORO---The upstart N.C. A&T Aggies claimed their second straight MEAC win last week with a 38-21 win over Morgan State to rise to the top of the conference standings.

After opening the season with two losses, the Aggies have rebounded to a 2-0 league mark and 2-2 overall.

In Baltimore, the Aggies scored first but were behind 21-16 late in the third period. Keith Matthis scored his second rushing touchdown with 1:25 in the quarter and Hilton Winstead's two-point conversion gave A&T a 24-21 lead.

The Aggies padded their lead on an Anthony Parker run and clinched the win on Mike Reives's 25-yard interception return for another score.

The Aggie defense piled up 447 total yards on offense while allowing Morgan to 164 yards.

Morgan remained in the league cellar with an 0-2, 0-4 record.

To get to the top, the Aggies got some help from South Carolina State, which shocked preseason favorite Howard 21-13. The Bulldogs' first win of the year propelled them to a three-way tie for third with the Bison and Bethune-Cookman. All three have

1-1 conference marks. In Orangeburg, the Bulldogs checked the Bison to a season-low 262 yards on offense.

William DuBose scored twice on a 27-yard run and a 5-yard pass.

S.C. State held a 14-7 halftime advantage and increased its lead when Zack Whitley hooked up with Lance Salters for a 55-yard scoring pass.

Bethune-Cookman lost a 17-16 decision to Grambling when a two-point conversion with four seconds left failed.

The Wildcats trailed the Tigers 17-10 when Lebrone Sumpter caught a touchdown pass late in the game. The conversion failed and Grambling held on for the win.

Second-place Florida A&M (1-0) boosted its overall record to 2-1 with a 23-6 win over non-conference foe Tennessee State.

A driving rain dampened FAMU's offense, but kicker James Vertuno kicked four field goals to help the Rattlers. Derrick Garner added a touchdown in the third quarter and the defense recorded two safeties.

Winless Delaware State dropped its third straight game to Towson State 24-3.