Baptist Help Shaw Univ.

By LORA VANDERHALL
Lifestyles Editor

The General Baptist Convention of North Carolina has accepted the challenge of keeping Shaw University a viable institution, by attempting to raise one million dollars for the endowment fund.

The effort is a result of an offer from the U. S. Department of Education to Shaw of two million in matching funds for every dollar raised.

A few years ago Shaw was about to close its doors but various individuals and groups staged a comeback.

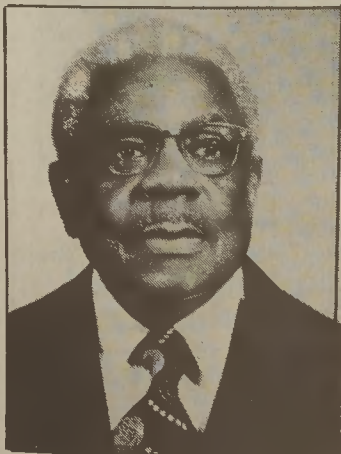

"The University was in debt for about seven million dollars but that amount was raised in about 18 months," said Rev. J. B. Humphrey, president of the General Baptist State Convention and pastor of First Baptist Church-West.

The statewide effort will take place during March when more than 200,000 members of General Baptist churches are expected to give a minimum of $10 each to Shaw's endowment. Regional organizational meetings with the pastors and moderators of the churches and state associations have been held to launch the campaign.

The state was split into four districts. Rev. Preston Pendergrass, pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, is the coordinator for the associations of Ebenezer, Gaston, Gold Hill, Guiding Light, Mecklenburg, Mount Peace, Lane Creek and Rising Star.

Pendergrass is responsible for working with the moderators of these associations to help meet the pastors and church members.

Letters requesting funds have

been sent to the 4,500 pastors throughout the state, as well as corporations across the United States.

"An endowment insures stability to the corporate world and we need their continued support," said Pendergrass.

The General Baptist Convention has set aside Sunday, March 19 as Shaw University Day, throughout the state.

The University, like many other black institutions, has fallen victim to cutbacks in funding but the government has made this gesture to help. If the university raises the first million dollars.

"Full participation is imperative to the success of this effort or we will lose two million dollars," said Pendergrass.

"If we don't raise the money the government will go on to another institution," concluded Humphrey.
