J.C. Smith Junior Wins WSOC Scholarship

The 15th annual WSOC Television and Radio Scholarship was awarded to Vernard Albright, a Johnson C. Smith University junior.

The $1,000 scholarship is awarded to communications majors who have completed their junior year. Applicants are recommended by faculty members and then selected by the communication department staff.

Albright, native of Ellenboro, NC, has interned at a local Charlotte television station where he worked as an engineer and production assistant in 1988.

Word Processing Center

From Staff Reports

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Urban League's Word Processing Training Center is currently in its fifth successful year of operation.

Begun as a cooperative venture between the Urban League, IBM, the City of Charlotte and other partners, this 12-week training program offers free word processing training to participants. Sheila Funderburke, program director, says the cooperation received from the business community in the hiring of training center graduates has been tremendous.

The goal of the program is give participants skills training that leads to permanent full-time job placement. "Last year the center achieved an overall placement rate of 91 percent for graduates," said Funderburke. "Thank you Charlotte for continuing to support our efforts in the areas of education and training."

Persons interested in learning a job training skills that are in demand should contact the Urban League at 376-9834.
