

Amateur Tournaments In 10 N.C. Cities Golf Registration Winding Up

RALEIGH - Amateur golfers under the age of 18 who plan to begin competing for the national championship title of the Insurance Youth Golf Classic (IYGC) next month should register for a regional qualifying tournament by June 15.

This year the Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina Inc. is sponsoring 10 local tournaments to determine eligibility for the state tournament slated for Foxfire Pinehurst and Country Club in Rinehurst on July 22-23. The winner and top three runners-up of the state tournament will play for the national title in Texarkana, Arkansas, August 3-8.

Over 10,000 young men and women compete annually in the national tournament, which is the largest of its kind and is sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of America Inc. This year's event is shaping up to be as popular as ever with North Carolina youths, approximately 120 of whom will qualify to play in the state tournament.

"North Carolina traditionally has been well represented in the national tournament, and that's partly because of the large interest and numbers of players it attracts at the local level," said Craig Sanders of Hickory, this year's tournament director of the North Carolina IYGC.

In fact, North Carolina produced the national champion in 1987 when Brian Craig of Gastonia captured the title. He went on to play in the Independent Insurance Agent Open (formerly the Houston Open) in 1988.

In addition to the benefits received by those who place in the competition, all players gain valuable experience from a tournament of this size, he said. Any amateur golfer under the age of 18 as of August 8, 1989, should sign up to play.

Regional tournaments are scheduled for Mid Pines Country Club in Southern Pines on July 7; Brook Valley Country Club in Greenville on July 10; Gates Four Golf and Country Club in Fayetteville on July 10; Cape Fear Country Club in Wilmington on July 10; Raintree Country Club in Matthews on July 10; Rock Barn Club of Golf in Conover on July 10; Springdale Country Club in Canton on July 10; Treyburn Country Club in Durham on July 11; and Pinebrook Country Club in Winston-Salem on July 14.

To enter a regional tournament, golfers may contact their local Independent Insurance Agent for more information, or they may contact the Association's staff at 919-828-4371 for an application.

The Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina Inc. is a nonprofit association representing 1,000 independent agencies and nearly 6,000 agents in North Carolina. Its functions include providing continuing education and services for independent agents and the community.
