Theology Seminary Grants 12 Degrees

ATLANTA - Twelve seminarians received the Master of Divinity degree during the annual commencement exercises for Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Georgia. The ceremony was held Saturday, May 13, 10 a.m. in the Martin Luther King International Chapel in cooperation with the five other constituent seminaries of the Interdenominational Theological Center (ITC). Dr. Marian Wright Edelman, president and founder of the Children's Defense Fund in Washington, D.C., delivered the commencement address.

The 1989 graduating class is reportedly the largest since the seminary moved from Charlotte, North Carolina, to join the confederation of seminaries at the ITC in 1969. Dr. Joseph Gaston, administrative dean for the institution, commented, "The graduates go from this place offering much and facing tremendous challenges as they enter the service of the Presbyterian Church (USA). They join other alumni who continue to distinguish themselves in service to our Church as it searches for maturity as a reunited denomination and strives to effect creative transition particularly in the southeast region where governance structures and African-American configurations are undergoing a complete metamorphosis."

These graduates have received the following appointments: Ralph Lowe, counselor and interim chaplain for Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, North Carolina; Vickie Powell-Williams, summer intern at Rice Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Georgia; Thomas Sears, interim pastor of Midway Presbyterian Church in Midway, Georgia, and associate executive of racial and ethnic ministries for the Savannah Presbytery, Savannah, Georgia; Angela Hardy, chaplain, USA Navy Reserves; Mara Windham, intern at Christ The Liberator Presbyterian Church in Flint, Michigan and Angela Hardy will assume the internship as director of Christian Education for Calvin Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Marvin Williams will do further study toward the Ph.D. in New Testament at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee. While two international graduates will return to their home countries to assume leadership positions in the Church, Nathaniel Gai will be director of Christian Education in the Department of religious Education for the Upper Nile Region, Malakal, Sudan. Thomas Maluit Hoth will also return to Sudan to pastor the Presbyterian Church. Julius Nyaga will remain in Atlanta to pursue the Doctor of Ministry Degree at Johnson C. Smith Seminary. Both James Sanders and Herbert Hill are candidating for calls in Georgia, South Carolina and Charlotte.

Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary in Atlanta recently conferred degrees on 12 seminary students.

Intern Reception Scheduled

On June 15, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., Executive Reflections/Personnel will host a reception for over 100 minority student interns. The students are enrolled in colleges throughout the mid-Atlantic region. Each of the attendees are participants in locally coordinated internship programs sponsored by area colleges and businesses, including the Developmental Partners of Duke Power, the BEST program of the University of North Carolina and the FEE program of Davidson College.

"The purpose of this reception is to provide an opportunity for these students to become acquainted with each other, to share their work experience and to develop a network of short-term and, hopefully, long-term support which may continue into their professional lives," says Amy Edmunds, owner of Executive Reflections/Personnel.

Edmunds, who participated in a number of internships herself while a student at Davidson College, is providing a placement for Davidson student Ryan Roberson this summer. "How to Maximize Your Internship Opportunity" will be the topic of a presentation by John B. Caine, II, Howard University graduate and plant engineer of Frito-Lay's Charlotte facility. Frito-Lay is also sponsoring refreshments.

Other minority interns are encouraged to attend. Request an invitation by calling the offices of Executive Reflections at 366-8442.
