

COMMING BACK

aseege Road, where it crosses Freedom at I-85 and build an interchange on Freedom Drive similar to one at Brookshire Freeway and I-85. An upgraded interchange between Freedom Drive and I-85 could pull more vehicles from the interstate onto Freedom Drive, particularly if Charlotte lands an NFL team.

Freedom Drive should be one of the major ties to the new stadium that would be built in uptown Charlotte. And, the Freedom Drive Task Force is looking at the possibility of development of a center of outlets near the interstate, similar to one along I-85 in Alamance County.

The I-85 widening should be completed in about two years.

The new stadium, perhaps an outlet complex, investments such as Winn-Dixie and CityView are the kinds of develops which make or break corridors such as Freedom Drive.

That and support from government such as the planned rezoning a several industrially zoned tracts to commercial and business uses.

City Council will also consider rezoning several multifamily tracts for single-family use in the corridor. That should help stabilize the adjacent residential areas.
