Longtime insurance agent hands business to daughter

Tom Morrison's turned over his ground-breaking insurance business to his daughter Monica.

Morrison, 68, sold his Allstate office to already to his daughter after 35 years with the insurer. He was the first African American agent to work for Allstate in North Carolina when he was hired in 1969. He started his own franchise in 1994 and was inducted into the insurer's Hall of Fame, one of 59 persons nationally to be so honored.

• Simone Dewalt has been named an All-American Scholar by the United States Achievement Academy.

Simone, a student at Garinger High School, will appear in the All-American Scholars Yearbook, a national publication. The scholars are selected by the academy based on the recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other sponsors.

• Howard McClure has been included in a couple of biographical publications.

McClure appears in the 34th edition of Who's Who in Finance and Business and One Thousand Great Americans - 2004.

McClure's biography will be one of more than 20,000 to appear in the Who's Who, which chronicles leaders in finance and business.

McClure, 44, is a member of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Community Relations Committee and N.C. Black Leadership Caucus as well as first vice chair in the Mecklenburg Democratic Party.

• The Charlotte chapter of The Links sponsored the Gift of Life art contest emphasizing organ donation. The contest was open to all fourth-graders at Ashley Park Elementary, Community Charter, Sugar Creek Charter and Trinity Episcopal schools. Stefan LaCaria of Community Charter finished first; Scott Allen (Community Charter) was second; Taylor Wolfe (Trinity Episcopal) was third.

• Two Butler High School students won the N.C.

History Day competition in Raleigh last month. Amy Scheide and Elizabeth Christenson won for their entry "Vernacular Wordsmiths," which earned them a trip to the National History Day contest in College Park, Md., in June.

Jay M. Robinson High won in the Great Depression/World War II era contest for the entry

"Dorothea Lange: Photographer of the Depression."

• Davidson IB Middle School raised $2,200 to eliminate the threat of land mines around the world.

Students and faculty raised the money from a talent show and silent auction. Students danced, sang and played instruments in addition to comedy sketches.

A check was sent to Landmine Survivors Network, a Washington organization that helps mine victims and their families reclaim their lives.

• Nicole DeVillers has been named interim director of the newly established Institute for Social Capital at UNC Charlotte.

The institute is a collaborative effort between UNCC and local non-profits, governmental agencies and community based organizations to provide feedback on funding initiatives.

• The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Black Political Caucus will meet Sunday at Memorial Presbyterian Church, 2600 Beatties Ford Road. The meeting will start at 7 p.m. For information, call (704) 598-7737.
