A&T marks anniversary of sit-in movement

GREENSBORO - The wintry weather on Feb. 1 may have caused classes to be cancelled at N.C. A&T State University, but it was not enough to call off the early morning celebration to honor four of some of the academic institution's most distinguished and celebrated alumni.

"The enthusiasm for this program every year is amazing," Judy Rashid, the Dean of Students at N.C. A&T, told the audience in the filled Williams Cafeteria that morning during the 47th Sit-In Anniversary Celebration.

A few hundred people attended the Sit-In Breakfast which began at 6 a.m. to pay homage and lay eyes on Jibreel Khazan, Franklin McCain and Joseph McNeil - the three surviving members of the A&T Four.

The late A&T Four member, David Richmond, died in 1990. His son, David Richmond Jr., attended the ceremony on behalf of his father. Other family members of the A&T Four were also present.

The A&T Four grasped national and international attention on Feb. 1, 1960. As freshmen enrolled at N.C. A&T, the group peacefully demanded service at the segregated lunch counter of the F.W. Woolworth's store in downtown Greensboro.
