SURVIVORS TELL OF TUSCANIA SCENES.

delay the publication of an accurate list of those lost. The survivors have been landed at various ports. Until officials manage to get in touch with them and check them off against the muster roll or compare the list of names of the survivors assembled and checked there is no other way to determine who is missing, although the number may be known. War department officials are unable to account for the statement made in news dispatches that blank identification tags had been found on the bodies of 44 American soldiers washed ashore. Even if the men had not been definitely assigned to organizations the army regulations require that the tag shall bear on one side the full name of the wearer. The organization commander is held responsible by military regulations for completion of these tags, the purpose of which is to prevent just such a situation as is described in the dispatches from abroad. Missing Were Not Included. London, Feb. 8.—Reports received at the American embassy yesterday indicated a loss of 101 lives on the Tuscania and the British admiralty estimate was 210. This discrepancy appears to have been due to the fact that the figures supplied to the embassy evidently did not include the missing of which there were many. It is announced today that arrangements are being made by British and American officials jointly for a great military funeral to the Tuscania's dead. Ship's List Lost in Sinking. An Irish Port, Feb. 8.—As the list of Americans on board the Tuscania was lost Tuesday when the vessel went down it will be impossible to ascertain the names of those lost until the names of the survivors have been cabled to the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Rendleman Entertain. One of the most beautiful affairs of the winter season was the Valentine party given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. John L. Rendleman at their elegant home on North Fulton street.

The handsome home, which is ideally arranged for entertaining, presented an unusually beautiful and brilliant scene on this occasion, when decorations appropriate to the Valentine season prevailed. The entire lower floor was thrown in one and made lovely by the use of many red candles, red carnations, potted ferns and palms, red and green, in keeping with the Valentine idea, being the predominating colors.

Mr. and Mrs. Rendleman cordially received the guests, the latter being most attractive in a lovely gown of turquoise blue satin, draped in silver lace. Games and music formed the amusements of the evening. Tables were arranged about the rooms and the guests found their places by means of tiny red hearts.

At the close of the evening the guests were invited out to the dining-room, which was a scene of beauty, the Valentine spirit being predominant. A number of small tables were arranged about the room, each one being adorned with red-shaded candles and a centerpiece of red carnations. An attractive Valentine marked each cover and directed the guests to their places. An elegant four course luncheon was served.

Those enjoying this lovely affair were: Prof. and Mrs. R. G. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Snider, Dr. and Mrs. S. Purvis, Mr. and Mrs. Locke McKenzie, Mrs. Charles Woodson, Mrs. John Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Coughenour.

AMERICANS FACED DEATH BRAVELY (Continued from page 1) cial advises to the war department tonight accounted for all except 113 of the 2,156 American soldiers who were on board the British liner Tuscania when a submarine sent her down Tuesday night off the Irish coast. This figure was not final, and high hopes that the loss of life would prove much smaller were built upon cabled press dispatches saying just 101 men, most of them members of the crew, were missing among the entire force of soldiers, sailors and passengers. No attempt was made tonight to prepare a list of the lost or missing. Only a few names of survivors had been received and the indications were that it would be impossible to announce them all before tomorrow at the earliest. The rescued were landed at widely separated Irish and Scotch ports and while all reports tell of elaborate arrangements for their care and comfort, urgent instructions to representatives of the war, state and navy departments that full details of the disaster and a complete record of the saved be sent at the earliest possible moment tonight had brought meager responses.

BLAMES DISASTER ON BAKER "INQUISITION"

Raleigh, Feb. 7.—Governor Bickett sent a telegram today to the New York World charging that the present sensational inquisition into the affairs of the war department is directly responsible for the torpedoing of the United States troop transport reported in the morning papers. The telegram read: "You are in the habit of drafting my opinion on public questions. For once I am going to volunteer one. In my opinion the sensational inquisition of the war department is directly responsible for the sinking of the Tuscania. They put Baker on the rack and tortured out of him a confession of the gigantic movement of our troops across the seas. Then the enemy knew what was happening and the submarines lurked for their prey. This whole inquisition is bottomed on the inordinate vanity of a few senators, who seek to pose as the saviors of the nation. Their bill has no more chance to keep out of the congressional trash pile than a food grafter has to keep out of hell. And they knew it. Yet the inquisition continues. Why? Why?"

SO EASY! LIKE ROLLING OFF LOG

Sore, touchy corns stop hurting, then lift right out with fingers. You corn pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezeone applied directly on a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once and soon the corn loosens so it can be lifted out, root and all, without pain. A quarter ounce of freezeone costs very little at any drug store, but it is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin. After you lift away the troublesome corn or callus the skin underneath is as pink, firm and healthy as the palm of your hand.
