

PICTURE OF TILLMAN.
The galleries began filling early to hear Tillman yesterday. All the Senators nearly were in their seats. The South Carolina added nothing to the argument for silver; his speech was a venomous arraignment of Cleveland after running over into expressions that were almost unchristian. He was sometimes trenchant in his language, always filthy, sometimes academic in seeming attempts at extemporaneous wit, but oftener mature in shrewd thrusts. Some said he was full of himself, it may have been so; he did not so appear to me, unless it were that he seemed to gloat over the power to appear in the well-ordered chaos of Senatorial courtesies, with the capers of a prairie bull. Hill enjoyed all the china-breaking antics, and laughed with much zest when Tillman's sarcasm would reach in that direction. And just here, the sarcasm of the man was his most brilliant weapon. Sometimes it almost carried a shiver. Then Vest did his laughing when one member of the Supreme Court was accused of "corruption appointing."

The very charge that Vest had made in a most adroit way in his recent speech, and Vest was moved again, when, blue with passion, Tillman turned himself into the face of the chamber, asking if Cleveland had taken any of them into his councils. "Speak!" he exclaimed, "if there be one among you!" Then the pause was full of dramatic effect. And then a gentle smile of approval went around. And the old Republicans pricked up their ears approvingly when the speaker shot forth his lurid denunciations of Cleveland for having issued over $500,000,000 of bonds, which he learned was to meet the deficiency in revenue. So that the bitter feeling of the Senate toward Cleveland, and the pet passions of the different Senators were played upon in rapid succession. Thus there was not a moment when there was not close attention, and silence, and every available place everywhere was taken. It was a cruel leer, that upon the speaker's face as he walked to the seat in front, offered him by Jones of Arkansas. It was a face that seemed to be full of the sense of oppression, of financial oppression, of grievance against society as he found it, of brutal triumph in the consciousness that he had brought defeat to the class that he had hated most—in which were Wade Hampton and M. C. Butler. His was a soul that was in pandemonium, possessed at last of the power to give vent to itself, and too riotous with hate to aim a cool well-directed blow. Thus the explosion of the man scattered as a flash from a dynamite bomb. If the devilishness of the bomb was there, so was the brilliancy. And when the old man Vest would sometimes shake up and down with a laughter as vicious as was the cause which prompted it, he would look invitingly at Gorman, sitting next to him expecting the Maryland statesman to join. But Gorman did not move a feature in his face of marble once during the whole harangue, with all his defeat upon him. The speaker was dressed in plain black, with pants baggy and too short, and he put on first rising to button up his Prince Albert, which he did in a slovenly way and imperfectly. His head is well shaped, a head of dogged-shape, not unsuggestive of finer grades of intellect, either. In fact, strange to say, it is an intellectual head of literary shape, but the muscles around the chin are fairly knotted in twists almost wry with animal resolution. A clean-cut face withal, ill-omened by the loss of an eye, reckless somewhat in the sweep of the hair stiffly over the brow, betokening sensitiveness, malice, earnestness, desperation, sense of wrong, honesty. Tillman must not be disposed of in a breath. The man has dynamic power which has his far been used for killing rather than for illuminating purposes. He must be studied with reference to his environment. If there be genuine, well-based grievance against class power in South Carolina, he has imagined that grievance as if it was genuine, and deep and long. There is revenge in his bosom clamoring, after the fashion of an anarchist, for satisfaction. His passions mostly are at work, with a limp underflow of rational plan toward the uplifting of the common people. Such a picturesque man, withal so repulsive and interesting, has not appeared for many years in the Senate, and it is chiefly the brute instinct in man that made him interesting. As in South Carolina, so in Washington, he has stamped his personality, let it stand for what it will.

On the silver bill in the Senate eighteen Republicans voted were cast or were paired in favor of it and 26 Republicans voted or were paired against it. Of the Democrats, 24 voted or were paired in favor of it, and 15 voted or were paired against it. This shows a wide difference of opinion in both parties.—Raleigh Observer.

If asked the question "Have you got a stomach?" it would be safe on general principles to answer "Yes." But, if you are sure of it, that is, if you ever feel any distress about any sort of a stomach, whatever description in the region of the stomach, you have got something more than an ordinary stomach in other words, you have got a diseased stomach. The stomach is a powerful muscle, and the proper remedy for a tired muscle is rest. Try the Stomach Remedy (Cordis), for this product not only contains digested food, which will nourish the system about any sort of a stomach, but it also digests the organs, but it aids the digestion of other foods as well. You can test its value in your case for the trifling sum of 10 cents, or you can get bottles at this price are carried by all druggists.

Laxol is the best medicine for children. Doctors recommend it in place of Castor Oil. Try a can of Hopkins' Steam Hominy (and Corb). It is delicious. National Farmers Alliance is in session at Washington.

Two Sides to Every Question.
Bark in the snappers while you may. Half of our troubles are borrowed. We cross the bridge before we come to it. This is a new year with new hopes, new winds and new aims. Turn on the snappers, sport in your knees; laugh and sing and plan and plan. "What is the use? There is going to be a war. What is the use to try; the country is financially ruined. Cotton won't bring anything. Our property is worthless."

NEWS NOTES.
Mr. Edward F. Uhl, of Michigan, now assistant Secretary of State, has been tendered the appointment of Ambassador to Germany, to succeed the late Chancellor Ruymon.

THE MODERN INVALID.
Has taste medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, fully beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. It really is the consultant a physician; if a-anticipated he uses the gentle family laxative Syrup of Figs.

FOR CHARITY SUFFERETH LONG.
Mrs. Laura C. Phoenix, Milwaukee, Wis. "I have done me, my wish to help others, overcome my dislike for the publicity, this letter may give me. In Nov. and Dec., 1893, The Associated and the 'Ladies' and I was one of the first. Resuming duty too soon, with the care of so many sick, I did not regain my health, and in a month I became so debilitated and nervous from sleeplessness and the drafts made on my vitality, that it was a question if I could go on. A dear friend advised me to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I took 2 bottles and am happy to say, I am in better health than ever. I still continue its occasional use, as a nerve food, as my work is very trying. A letter addressed to Milwaukee, Wis., will reach me." June 6, 1894. MRS. LAURA C. PHOENIX.

THE COMMON PEOPLE.
As Abraham Lincoln called them, do not care to argue about their ailments. What they want is a medicine that will cure them. The simple, honest statement, "I know that Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me," is the best argument in favor of this medicine. Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache, etc.

Gladness Comes
With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and in every where esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.
If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.
