

Great Improvement

Reports a Welcome Change in Her Condition

Statement by a North Carolina Woman.

"Nearly all my life I have had one cold after another and the trouble seemed like a cancer in the head. There were discharges from my ears, and my hearing became affected. I took a number of kinds of medicine but I grew worse instead of better. One day I procured a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and began taking it, and soon found it was doing me good. I gained strength and was greatly benefited in many ways. I continued its use and now the bad feeling in my head is gone, and the earache with which I suffered has disappeared. I am now able to do my household work without help. I shall keep Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house as long as I live." Mrs. T. G. REYNOLDS, Dallas, North Carolina.

THE OFFENSIVE LETTER.

De Lome Pronounced the President a Low Politician, Weak and Catering to the Rabble.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.--Following is a translation of the letter acknowledged to have been written to Senor Canalejas by Senor De Lome, and which forced De Lome's resignation as Spanish minister to the United States.

LEGATION DE ESPANA, WASHINGTON.

Eximo Senor Don Jose Canalejas: My Distinguished and Dear Friend--

You need not apologize for not having written to me. I also ought to have written to you, but have not done so on account of being weighed down with work and nours sommes quites.

The situation here continues unchanged. Everything depends on the political and military success in Cuba.

The prologue of this second method of warfare will end the day that the colonial cabinet will be appointed, and it relieves us in the eyes of this country of a part of the responsibility of what may happen there, and they must cast the responsibility upon the Cubans, whom they believe to be so imbecile.

Until then we will not be able to see clearly, and I consider it to be a loss of time and an advance by the wrong road, the sending of emissaries to the rebel field, the negotiating with the autonomists not yet declared to be legally constituted, and the discovery of the intention and purpose of this government. The exiles will return one by one, and when they return will come walking into the sheep fold, and the chiefs will gradually return. Neither of these had the courage to leave en masse, and they will not have the courage to this return.

MCKINLEY A LOW POLITICIAN.

The message has undeceived the insurgents, who expected something else, and has paralyzed the action of Congress, but I consider it bad. Besides the natural and inevitable coarseness with which he repeats all that the press and public opinion of Spain has said of Weyler, it shows once more what McKinley, weak and catering to the rabble, and besides a low politician, who desires to leave a door open to me and to stand well with the jingoes of his party.

Nevertheless, as a matter of fact, it will only depend on ourselves whether he will prove bad and adverse to us. I agree entirely with you, without a military success nothing will be accomplished there, and without military and political success there is here always danger that the insurgents will be encouraged, if not by the government, at least by part of the public opinion.

I do not believe you pay enough attention to the role of England. Nearly all the newspapers canaille which swarm in your hotel are English, and at the same time that they are correspondents of the best newspapers and reviews of London. Thus it has been since the beginning. To my mind the Americans should occupy themselves with us and leave her in peace, and if there is war, so much the better; that would further remove what is threatening her--although that will never happen.

It would be most important that you should agitate the question of commercial relations, even though it would be only for effect, and that you should send here a man of importance in order that I might use him to make a propaganda among the Senators and among in opposition to the junta and to win over exiles.

There goes Amblard. I believe he comes too deeply taken up with little political matters, and there must be something very great or we will lose.

Adela returns your salutation, and we wish you in the New Year to be a messenger of peace and take this New Year's present to poor Spain.

Always your attentive friend and servant, who kisses your hand.

ENRIQUE DUPUY DE LOME.

EFFECT OF THE LETTER.

It Will Lead to a Crisis Without a Doubt.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.--"All the real importance of the letter," said Representatives Howard, "lies in the utter hopelessness of the Spanish."

"The letter, apart from being insulting reveals the real situation as it presents itself to the Spanish. To all intents and purposes DeLome says the game is up unless the Spanish can achieve more political and military success. By political he evidently refers to the plan of autonomy which has proven a complete failure, since the letter was written. Heretofore the Spanish have been claiming victories in the field which the letter clearly denies, it stamps as false every official statement made by Spain to this country and verifies many of the claims of the Cubans."

The consequence upon De Lome personally who is very popular here, and the insulting allusion to the president, has absorbed the attention of the public mind chiefly and the chief significance which Mr. Howard points out has been lost sight of. This letter will have an important effect upon the relations between the two countries. The De Lome letter is not only offensive, but it also makes disclosures

CHINA'S INEXORABLE LAW.

Children Who Cause Their Parents Death Must Undergo the Death Penalty.

In China, when a parent has met with death at the hands of a son or daughter, no circumstances of intention or age are permitted to interfere with the infliction of the penalty, which is that of the liuegh', followed by decapitation. Any mitigation of this cruel sentence, says the North China Herald, would be considered by the Chinese as aiming a blow at the fundamental principle of filial duty, which is supposed to be the groundwork of their code. Time and again has the penalty of liuegh' been recorded against parricides and matricides, even when they happened to be idiots or lunatics, and therefore, not accountable for their actions.

The corruption and venality of the great mass of officials in the empire has become a byword, and it is not strange, therefore, that justice can be easily evaded through bribery. Thus a wealthy man who has been guilty of killing a fellow-creature, whether by premeditation or accident can escape all serious consequences and receive a sentence of three years' banishment from a spot 1,000 miles distant instead of the death penalty. Or, on the other hand, when the relatives of the murdered man are powerful enough to make themselves heard by the officials and to demand the strict observance of the law, the rich criminal may purchase a suitable substitute from among the beggar class, or perhaps an old and faithful servant of the family may be permitted to forfeit his life in his master's stead. But never has it happened since China had a history that one who occasioned the death of his parent or parents has contrived to buy himself off and escape the liuegh', or ox earred knife, and the executioner's sword. So deeply has the doctrine of the ancient sages on the observance of filial piety become rooted in the hearts of the people of China that no magistrate would dare to exercise leniency by taking into consideration the circumstances that led to a case of parricide or matricide with the view of mitigating the doom fixed by law. Not only would the magistrate incur there by the danger of violence from the mob, but he would subvert the obedience due from his own family.

A parricide not only brings certain death on himself, but disgrace on the district in which he resides. In the case where both parents are victims. Chinese law ordains that a corner of the district city walls shall be pulled down as a lasting chronicle of the shame and disgrace of the district in having sheltered such monster. The magistrate and local officials are cashiered and debarred forever from public employment as a punishment for not having taught more effectively the doctrine of filial piety, while the Governor of the province, with his colleagues the treasurer and judge, together with the taozia and prefect of the district, are all degraded several steps in rank. In the case of the murder of both parents the murderer is not only sentenced to undergo liuegh' and decapitation, but his body is nailed on the top of the coffin of one of his victims.

So far reaching and immutable is this law that it is plainly laid down that even the infant in arms who accidentally causes the death of its mother must suffer the extreme penalty, provided the infant has grown its teeth. For instance, an infant borne in the arms of its nurse and carrying in its tiny hands some sharp instrument may let the same fall, and thereby accidentally cause the death of its mother, and if it should happen that the infant will be doomed to the extreme penalty of liuegh' and decapitation, but if it has no teeth it will escape all consequences. Such is the barbarous law of China. It is the only law that offers no loophole for the escape of the perpetrator, whether the death has been premeditated or the result of accident. All other laws and penalties have been and can be evaded for the usual considerer tion.

Concerning Crows.

Morganston Farmers' Friend.

In a conversation a few days since with Col. T. G. Walton, who, by the way, talks intelligently on any subject, we learn that crows are a blessing instead of a curse. The colonel says that he will not allow his tenants to have a scare-crow in their fields of corn. The purpose of the crow is not to destroy corn but worms, and that when they do pull up corn, it will generally be found that there is a worm at the core. He argues if crows were really destructive to corn they would be worse than an army with banners, for by their numbers they could lay waste every field in the land. In view of the fact that Col. Walton has often taken the premium at different fairs for the largest yield of corn per acre, and at the World's Fair for the best corn, we are impressed with the force of his argument in behalf of crows.

Pertinent Questions.

Why have not the leaders fixed our banking laws just exactly right? For thirty years no one but the bankers has written a line on our statutes about money, banking, standard of "business interests" but the bankers. Now, why at this late date tell us every thing is all awry and must be "reformed" some more? If things are wrong, whose fault is it? Did the plow hand get them wrong?

Did the farmers jumble up our finances in this awfully awful manner? Did the laborers do this deed? Did the factory folk hang around Washington and procure "this system of absurd currency laws" that we hear so much about nowadays? What's the matter with Gage & Co., anyhow? If we follow them some more, after getting into this maize of ruin, bankruptcy and sound money and unsound everything else, will we deserve any better fate than their lust of greed will deal out to us?

The Scotch proverb runs: "If a man fools you once, that's his fault; if he fools you twice that's your fault." Who has been the fooler and who the fooler these past thirty years?

How did gold get to be twice as valuable (and 12 cents more) over silver in twenty-five years? Can you honestly answer this? Over-production won't do. There is none. Gold has been produced within 8 per cent. of silver, pound per pound, during the past twenty-five years, and yet its exchange value is double--plus 12 cents--dollar per dollar weight. Now, why? Do you say nature? If so, what change has nature wrought in gold or silver in the past twenty-five years? How has nature put 112 cents per dollar weight into gold? Do you merely change your phrase and assert "intrinsic value"? If so, how came 112 cents of "intrinsic" to speak into 23.22 gold grains in twenty-five years? In 1792, we say Hamilton and Jefferson, after a prolonged, exhaustive, expert and holy consideration, started gold at just 100 cents per dollar, and silver at the same. Exactly even they started. Neck and neck they pulled for awhile. Then you say silver fell behind 3 cents--(that is lost 3 cents "intrinsic value," your logic says). Then Old Hickory took compassion on silver and "by the eternal" he just forced gold to hold back its end of the double-tree and drove 3 cents "intrinsic value" out of gold, your logic again says. Made gold 3 cents cheaper per dollar weight than silver. Then your gold-bug logician cries out and "points with pride" to the great historical fact that Andy Jackson established the gold standard over sixty years ago, by making gold worth 3 cents less per dollar than silver! Do you see the joke?

If Andrew Jackson and Thomas Benton established the gold standard sixty years ago, why didn't Rotschild and Sherman let it stay established? Can you answer?

A CLOUD OF WITNESSES.

Cataract Can Be Permanently Cured.

C. W. Knaener, of Sheldon, Ia., was troubled with cataract for over two years so that he could only work a few days at a time; tried various doctors without relief. Pe-ru-na cured him permanently. Mrs. Thomas Waltz, New Brighton, Pa., suffered with aggravated sore throat which the doctor could not cure. Three bottles of Pe-ru-na cured her. Bernard King, National Military Home, Leavenworth, Kas., neglected a severe cold which developed chronic cataract. Tried everything he saw advertised, to no avail. Pe-ru-na not only cured the cataract, but an old case of bronchitis. A. F. Carlson, Lindstrom, Minn., took a course of treatment with Pe-ru-na for cataract of the head and was cured. He delayed reporting for several months in order to see if cure was permanent; no symptoms reappearing, he has concluded that the cure is permanent. H. Cox was troubled with cataract of head and bowels. Six bottles of Pe-ru-na cured him, after fourteen years of enforced idleness. A 32-page pamphlet containing several hundred testimonials, accompanied by a pen portrait of the writer, covering cure of cataract in all forms and stages by Pe-ru-na, will be sent free to any who desire it by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

IMMUNITY OF CONGRESSMEN.

The Author of "If Christ Came to Congress" Can't Avoid a Debt by It.

Washington Dispatch, 8th.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to-day affirmed a decision made twenty years ago, that a Senator or Representative in Congress has no special immunity from arrest, but is subject to legal proceedings as any ordinary citizen, except as specified in the constitution of the United States. The decision was made in the case of Milford W. Howard, appellant, against the Citizens' Bank and Trust Company, of Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Howard is the Populist congressman from Alabama, better known as the author of "If Christ Came to Congress." He became indebted to the bank in the sum of about $450, for which the company obtained a judgment against him in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Ala. At that time he was a member of Congress, and the bank learned that he had funds deposited in the Lincoln National Bank, of this city. These funds, about $91, were attached by the bank and suit was brought here to recover the money. Mr. Howard filed a demurrer, in which he set up the question of personal privilege of a member of Congress, that he was a resident of the District of Columbia, and several other questions of minor importance. The first two were the main issues, and the case was argued at length.

The demurrer filed by Mr. Howard was overruled in the inferior court and judgment rendered against him, from which judgment he appealed. Now the court holds that the evil doctrine that a member of a legislative body has any particular rights above those of an ordinary citizen, originated with members of Parliament, and that they abused their privilege to such an extent that finally they were compelled to pass a bill which did away with those practices. The constitution provides that "members of both houses, in all cases, except treason, felonies, and breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses and in going to and returning from the same." The court holds that this is the limit of their immunity.

Mr. Howard argued that he was a resident of the District of Columbia for all intents and purposes; that he was detained here on public business and was here almost all the year; that he expected to be here until the end of his term and that he intended to reside here as long as his public duties required him to do so. The court held that a member of Congress was a resident of the District only temporarily and that he was not to be regarded as a permanent resident, or he could not be qualified to be a Representative, the constitution prescribing that he must be an inhabitant of the State from which he was elected. It also held that Mr. Howard, being here on public business and not private business, could not be regarded as a resident of the District.

Slaves Sold on the Moorish Coast.

Almost within sight of Gibraltar, and certainly within gunshot of Europe, namely, at Saffi, on the Moorish coast, slaves are publicly bought and sold in the open market, and according to the Saffi correspondent of the Cronica, which is the Italian paper at Tangiers, women are selling now at 25c, grown men at $60, while children bring from $5 to $15. It is merely the jealousy among the various European governments with regard to the possession of a predominant influence in Morocco that prevents any concerted action from being taken on the part of the great powers. Untold sums have been spent by civilized States to stop the slave trade even in the interior of Africa. Yet it is tolerated within sight of the back windows of Europe.

In a recent letter from Washington, D. C., to an old friend, Major G. A. Studer, for twenty years United States consul at Singapore, says: "While at Des Moines I became acquainted with a Jimmie known as Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I found excellent against rheumatism as well as against soreness of the throat and chest (giving me much easier breathing). I had a touch of pneumonia early this week, and two applications freely applied to the throat and chest relieved me of it at once. I would not be without it for anything." For sale by J. A. Hardison.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE.

Large Increase in the Value of Agricultural Products.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.--The Department of Agriculture issued yesterday bulletin No. 10. It treats of the nation's foreign trade in agricultural products. The report shows total exports for the fiscal year 1897 amounting in value to $1,032,007,603. This outstrips all previous records. Of the total 66.84 per cent., or $689,755,193, had its origin in agriculture, a gain over 1896 of $115,356,920, or about 20 per cent. The total imports for the year were in value $764,730,412, of which $400,571,468, or 52.32 per cent., was represented by agricultural products. This is an increase of nearly $10,000,000 over the record of 1896, and is explained, the bulletin says, by extraordinary importations of raw sugar and of wool in anticipation of new tariff. Wool imports showed an increase of $20,000,000 over 1896, and sugar of $10,000,000 over that year. There was a falling off in all other agricultural imports, because of the successful propagation here of certain products were formerly obliged to purchase elsewhere.

Of these articles exported which show the greatest increase cotton is mentioned first. In 1896 the total export of cotton was 2,335,226,385 lbs. In 1897 it was 3,103,754,949 pounds, an increase of 768,528,564 pounds. Wheat comes next. The record is 79,562,020 bushels, against 60,650,080 for 1896. The price also was better. Last year it was 75.3 cents. There was a slight falling off in the exports of wheat flour, but the price obtained for it advanced from $3.56 a barrel to $3.84 a barrel, and the total receipts show an increase of nearly $3,900,000.

The total exports of Indian corn amounted to 176,916,365 bushels, an increase of more than 75,000,000 over 1896, and despite a decline in price from 37.8 cents to 30.6 cents, the amount received for the product showed an increase of about $17,000,000. At the same time the export of cornmeal was nearly doubled, the record being 475,263 barrels in 1897, against 276,885 in 1896. Of other cereals, the shipment of oats show an increase of 22,000,000 bushels, of barley an increase of nearly 13,000,000 bushels, and of rye an increase of nearly 8,000,000 bushels. The total export of breadstuffs amounted in value to $107,857,219 against $141,356,993 in 1896, an increase of $36,500,226.

The exports of flaxseed increased from 80,453 bushels, valued at $73,207, to 4,713,747 bushels, valued at $3,850,835.

The bulletin shows important gains in the export of cattle, horses, fresh beef, hams, bacon, butter and cheese. In 1896 the export of cattle amounted to 372,461 head. Last year it amounted to 392,190. Horses, 1896, 25,126; 1897, 39,532. The exportation of fresh beef increased from 224,783,225 to 290,395,930. The exports of bacon increased from 425,352,187 pounds to 500,399,448 pounds. The increase in the exports of butter and cheese was in about the same proportion.

The record of fruit exportations shows an increase in value from $5,587,783 to $7,613,500.

The bulletin shows reduction in exports of canned beef, salted and pickled beef, pickled pork, hides, skin, and sheep.

Two Sounds to Which a Man Cannot Become Accustomed.

Atlanta Constitution.

When Joseph Henry Lumpkin was Chief Justice of the State a case was brought up from Columbus in which a wealthy citizen asked for an injunction to prevent the construction of a planing mill across the street, very near his palatial residence. His grounds for complaint consisted chiefly in the proposition that the noise of the mill would wake him too early in the morning.

"Let the mill be built," said the Chief Justice in rendering his decision; "let its wheels be put in motion. The progress of machinery must not be stopped to suit the whims or the fears of any man. Complainant's fears are imaginary. The sound of the machinery will not be a nuisance. On the contrary, it will be a lullaby. Indeed, I know of but two sounds in all nature that a man cannot become reconciled to, and they are the braying of an ass and the tongue of a scolding woman!"

The Lord Changed His Glasses.

Wilkesboro Chronicle.

"They tell a good one a citizen not many miles away who very occasionally takes his toddy. He prepared a little in a glass and placed it near his bed to be handy in case of "serious illness" during the night. His young daughter, as soon as he was asleep, put water in place of the liquor. During the night "serious illness" attacked him and he reached for the remedy. He found only a broken glass and some ice. He questioned his daughter about it and her answer was that the Lord had changed the glasses, and the poor fellow is suspicious yet that the Lord didn't treat him right in the exchange.
