When he was weaned he weighed over 150 pounds, and now at twenty one years of age he weighs over 710 pounds. When he was a pupil of Mr. Forbes his weight was 500 pounds. He exhib its himself on Virginia Beach and other nearby summer resorts, but seldom ventures beyond the bounds of his nome. This is due to his fear of acci dent, or of sudden sickness. As would be thought, he is amazingly strong. His strength is that of six men. When his father desires his big heavy six horse wagon washed, Lewis pulls it around in the sound till it is well cleansed, then hauls it back under the shed. He sleeps on a specially constructed iron bed and sits on an iron chair, which even a strong man finds difficulty in lifting. Lewis tumbles them around as though they were toy chairs. On the Point of Publication by the Government-It is Compos ed of Clippings From the Gospels and Presenting the Sayings of the Saviour. Washington, July 9.—Thomas Jef-ferson's Bible, which has existed only

n the original manuscripht for nearly century, is on the point of being published by the Government. Nine housand copies will be issued, as the original volume-3,000 for the United States Senate and 6,000 for members of the House of Representa-tives. The binding will be of red morocco, in imitation of the author's own book, which was in his handwriting throughout, and the pages will be accurately reproduced by photolithography. In some respects

THE BOOK WILL BE A SURPRISE. It contains, for one thing, none of those "mocking comments" which the author of the Declaration was said to have interlineated with the sacred text. There is, in fact, only one written comment (apart from the index) and that is merely an editorial note in Latin. The title page and index are in Jefferson's own hand, the former reading as follows: Life and Morals

Jesus of Nazareth extracted textually from the Gospels

Greek, Latin, French & English.

The index, on a couple of blank pages at the beginning of the book, is headed: "A Table of the Texts from the Evangelists employed in this the night. It is one of the greatest of arrangement." It consists of referawakeners and one of nature's own ences to different books of the four Gospels, with a brief topical description attached to each. This is followed by two folded maps of Palestine and Asia Minor, evidently cut out of some book, to serve as illustrations, and then come the numbered leaves, on which are pasted clippings from the Scriptures, arranged in the order Mr. Jefferson thought most suitable

There are eighty odd pages covered by these closely pasted clippings, which are in four languages-Greek, The passions kill men sometimes, Latin, French and English, the sources
