THE DELEGATE.

SUSIE BOUCHELLE WIGHT IN YOUTH'S COMPANION.

a discount in some homes, they certhey did not reside upon a shelf, eithtiful new house, the coziest corner by the fire and the most inviting chair belonged by right of love and reverence to Grandmother Parker, and spoke her gentle mind, she was sure of affectionate attention. So when and excited, from a gay afternoon at a friend's reception, she paused with a smile at hearing Grandmother Parker's call from the library.

"Come here a minute, my dear, before you go up to change your dress. I have such lovely news for you! Soon after you went out the minister came her affectionately. "Don't you worin, all worried and anxious. He said ry, Alice," he whispered. "I am so in, all worried and anxious. He said take delegates. You know the conference convenes tomorrow night, and | needed." although the list has been published in the paper, some of the people are making excuses, and he is sadly put tertain each other, and I'll not need to it to find homes for the preachers. He seemed timid about asking, because we were newcomers, but I told him that I was sure it was nothing but inadvertence that had kept you from asking for delegates, and that they were two of a kind, as you have only the one guest-chamber. Won't had the experience."

"To be sure-to be sure. I am always forgetting that you didn't know anything about real home-life, spending all your days wandering about over the world with parents that by rights should have been Gipsies. But when your mother was a little girl, and we lived in Brooksville, we used to have such exciting times when conventions and conferences would come our way. There is something so fascinating about entertaining any one whom the authorities may send you-quite like opening a prize box. Your dear grandpa and I have entertained as many as a dozen for more than a week at a time. We of the family would sleep upon pallets made of quilts on the floor, giving up our rooms to the visitors. And such preparations in the kitchen! Why, we would bake cakes and pies by the score, grandpa would kill beeves and porkers, and the turkeys would be gobbling in my coops for weeks ahead of the time! Oh, I am so glad we are to have a little peep at old times

Mrs. Parker sighed so happily that Alice Mason bent down and kissed her, compelling smoothness into a brow that was troubled. Then she slipped away to her husband's study to pour out her misgivinge.

"O Ted," she cried, "I never would have taken them in all the world! I don't see how I am ever to manage! my dearest friend drops in to dinner I feel like making the most abject apologies—and to think of two strangers for a whole week! Grandmother some pleasant plans for you, my forgot the grocery bill, too, Ted, and dear," said Mrs. Parker the next it makes me sick and faint to think of it, for we must not let her feel that we don t do her justice.

"With our pretty new house and our carriage," she added, "they are sure to send us the bishop or some other important person, and I simply must rise to the occasion-but oh, I do hope grandma won't revert to old times this way again!"

"The bishop or some other important person!" repeated Ted Muson, vacantly. "Well, I love your grandmother, my dear, and I know that next to somebody else, she is the sweetest of women, but if they are going to quarter dignitaries upon us, I am called out of town-I can't rise to occasions like that!"

"O hush, Ted! You are going to do exactly as I shall-make the very best of it, and grandma is not to be made uncomfortable. I am going to cook up everything nice I can think of. I'll put an extra shine on the silver and cut glass, and this house will be spick and span by tomorrow night-you'll see!"

Soon the house was full of pleasant excitement. Mrs. Parker found things for her feeble hands to do, Alice flitted about busily. Jane was mollified by gifts and flattery, and soon the right came, and the family waited in the library for the bishop. There were American Beauty roses bending on their tall stems on the library table, there were violets scenting the entrance hall, and Alice felt a pleasurable glow of self-satisfaction.

"I believe, after all, that I am rather glad grandina took the delegates. I am not very much of a church woman, but I realize that these men are doing a great deal of good-and the bishops and the other leaders are always delightful men. I shall try to fulfil grandma's ideas. I shall drive them in the carriage to silly in comparison. the church, and I'll have James wait there to bring them home after the

The looked-for ring at the door cut short her hospitable plans, and in another moment she was looking upon her delegates-but not upon a bishop.

They very evidently were from the old man's clothes revealed the signs | delegate! of long service and many careful Alice had never cared much for the Sold by Parsons Drug Co.

Although grandmothers may be at | brushings and spongings. The wife was evidently a bride, for her illtainly were not at Alice Mason's, and made, ill-fitting frock was of pearly gray with pink trimmings, and her The sunniest room in that beau- hat was white, with a wealth of white flowers wandering over and under it. There was not a perceptible pause between Alice's frightened taking in of the situation and her when that dear old white-haired lady greeting of her guests. Mrs. Parker rose from her chair to hold out her little wrinkled hands with her oldyoung Mrs. Mason came in, flushed fashioned courtesy, and Ted Mason did his share of welcoming.

"You must be tired," said Alice, hospitably, after a moment, and then she led the way to the guest-chamber, and left them alone.

Her husband intercepted her on her return, and grinned as he shook things about the decline of hospitality | relieved! A bride and a groom will in the city, and asked if we would not | talk to each other, and my brilliant conversational powers will not be

"That is true," agreed his wife, with flaming cheeks. "They will ento go round with them. O'Ted, isn't she awful! She looks like a pillow with a string tied about it-and he-Why did they send us such people?"

The old minister, Mr. Harvey, had a certain dignity which kept him he might send you two, provided from seeming embarrassed in the new splendors of Alice's dining-room, but the poor little bride was evidently ill it be nice to have delegates, deary?" at ease. Mrs. Parker devoted herself "I don't know, grandma," faltered to them, and Alice was not far behind at ease. Mrs. Parker devoted herself Alice, a little aghast. "I've never and before the first meal was concluded the conversation was general, if not very absorbing in its interest.

There followed an hour or two in the library, and then Mrs. Parker said to the minister:

"I am not strong enough for late hours, Mr. Harvey. Will you not have prayers now?"

This was another unexpected turn, for Alice had not entertained a min-Ister before, and there ensued a flurried hunting for a Bible. Finally she brought, from Mrs. Parker's own room, the big family Bible. Alice deposited it, with an effort, upon the table at the minister's side, and mentally resolved that the next day she would buy one of more convenient

"The servant, sister?" asked Mr. Harvey. "Do you not have her come in for worship?" Then came a brief but energetic argument in the kitchen with Jane, who finally came in, with a sulky frown, to sit down by the library door. Things were taking a strange turn in the butterfly's nest, but Mrs. Parker lay back in her chair, and as Alice gazed at the sweet, placid old face, it seemed to her that she could see the golden light of past days dawning over it. The country bride sat still, regarding her husband's countenance reverently, and as Alice's eyes wandered, she met her husband's glance. His eyes held no laugh in them, although he smiled at her understandingly, and Just an afternoon tea makes Jane so strangest of all, when the reading than because I felt any interest, but cross that I am afraid to give her an order for a week afterward, and if had cleared, and she slipped quietly out of the room without even a shake of her expressive shoulders.

"My granddaughter has made morning to the bride. "We are so glad that our delegates are as they are. We had expected two gentlemen, but I always prefer a lady. One gets so much better acquainted, you know."

Allice bit her lip. She had ordered the carriage, and had intended putting it at the disposal of her guests, but she certainly had no idea of going out with them. There was nothing for it but to acquiesce, however, when Mrs. Parker told Mrs. Harvey that her hostess would take her to the church and remain there through the opening service with her. Alice considered that she would have to reason a little with her grand mother privately.

Alice pointed out the pastor's house as they drove by, and Mr. Harvey looked at it with interest.

"Well! Well!" he said. "The church is learning to take care of her servants these days. Such a fine house—and they tell me you pay your pastor two thousand dollars a year! I guess I was born fifty years too soon, Nannie," he said, jocularly, to the little bride. "The younger preachers don't have the struggles we older men had. Why, I have been preaching now for forty years, and my highest salary was five hundred dollars a year-that was when the boys and girls were young, and you kurn you have eight stepchildren. Nannie. Still, it is all right, and I am not the one to grumble. The rewards always did go to the deserving men, and I know I am not much of the youngest babes. Test it yourself and a preacher, so I am just grateful to be remembered by my old conference in the way I am."

It sounded strange to Alice Mason -five hundred dollars a year, for a whole family to live on! How could they do it? Her own little perplexities over ways and means seemed

She led the visitors to the very forefront in the church. Mr. Harvey had said that he did not want to miss a word of the proceedings. The conference was about to open. Alice had never seen the bishop, but she did not need to have him pointed out. A tall, fine-looking man, with country. A tall, lank, white-bearded keen eyes looking out from under a patriarch entered, and upon his arm wide brow-she had already recogkeen eyes looking out from under a was a chubby-faced young woman, nized him, even before he took his hardly as old as Alice herself. The chair. Oh, if he could have been her old-fashioned church hymns; they had a sort of delefulness to her, but the familiar lines had a different sound as he repeated them before the organ pealed out:

"Come, ye that love the Lord, And let your joys be known; Join in a song with sweet accord, And thus surround the throne."

The country bride sang clearly, and the quavering voice of the old preacher rose triumphantly. Alice joined

For the first time the sense of strangeness between her and Mrs. Harvey seemed to disappear, and as Alice sat through the morning session, she watched the little woman by her side, looked at the shabby dress, and came to a conclusion.

She had at home a beautiful new black gown, just from the tailor. The cloth of it was smooth and snining, and the fashion of the coat was such that it would conseal the a w sward lines of Mrs. Harvey's figure. There was a black hat to match it.

Clad in that, the young wife would look really dignified, and Alice de termined that she should have it. But to mannage it without burting her feelings! She set her mind to puzzle it out, and almost forgot what was going on about her before she finally concluded that in order to be able to make the gift she must get on very friendly, almost affectionate, terms with Mrs.

Harvey. Mrs. Harvey accepted the gift with perfect simplicity. She looked like a different creature in the new garments. Before noon of the next day Mr. Harvey assured Alice that in all his forty years he had never been treated so handsomely. Mrs. Harvey soon forgot her perplexity over the astounding number of spoons and forks that surrounded her plate at table, and was able to enter into » very quiet and demure enjoyment of the drollery of Mr. Mason and his young wife. Day after day Alica went with them to conference, and remained through the sessions.

One day she noticed how the old man's face always lighted up when the bishop began to speak. But nothing prepared her for what hap-pened on a day when Mr. Harvey had been asked to conduct a devotional service. He did not do it very well. He showed that he was a lit tle flustered, and his old hands quivered as he held the Bible. Alice felt sorry for him, and for his wife, who looked at her husband so appealingly; but after Mr. Harvey had taken his seat the hishop rose.

"Brethren," he said, "it has been a long time since I have seen this old friend, before this conference. Forty years-forty long years ago, he was just beginning his ministry, and was serving a piney-woods circuit away off in an out-of-the-way place. I was a young lawyer sent down to Florida upon a certain land case, and by accident, one hot summer day, I stopped at a brush arbor out in the woods, where he was preaching to a congregation that had gathered there in ox-carts, on horseback and afoot. I stopped, more to rest in the shade he had a message, and he delivered it from a full heart. It was for mefor me! I don't know how many others it came home to, but I went on my way thoughtful and more serious than I had ever been in nov life before, only to come back and seek him out at night-like Nicodemus of old. And like Nicodemus of old-I was told the way-the only way-" The bishop paused a moment, and some one out in the congregation began to sing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," as that congregation had a way of doing upon all sorts of occasions. The bishop bent down and clasped hands with Mr. Harvey, whose uplifted face was radiant. Alice, with downcast eyes, saw the little bride's hands trembling on her lap, and she put her own soft fingers in between, and they sat there listening bappily together through the rest of the service.

"Ted, darling," Alice said that afternoon, "we are entertaining something bigger than the bishopwe are taking care of the man who at home. put him in the way of being what he is. Oh, wouldn't it have been awful if we had not been nice to them?"

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very very, different than common cough medicines. No opium, no Chloroform, abso lutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing. mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronichial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even see. Sold by Parsons Drug Co.

An Anchor to Windward.

Jeweler-You say the inscription you wish engraved on the inside of this ring is to be, "Marcellus to Irene!"

Young Man (somewhat embarrassed)-Yes, that's right. But-er-don't cut the Round trip rate from Wadesboro $5.00. 'Irene" very deep.-Harper's Weekly.

You can cure dyspepsia, indigestion, sour or weak stomach, or in fact any form of opportunity of attending the theatre that stomach trouble if you will take Kodol oc- night or spend the evening in Richmond. casionally-just at the times when you need it. Kodol does not have to be taken all the time. Ordinarily you only take also Pullman Sleeping cars for those who Kodol now and then, because it complete make their reservations in advance, and ly digests all the food you eat, and after a | will be operated on the fastest possible few days or a week or so, the stomach schedule. can digest the food without the aid of . For full information see fiyers, call on Kodol. Then you don't need Kodol any your local agent or address the underlonger. We know what it will do for you. signed.

An Ensy Job.

Youth's Companion.

Indifference displayed in the face of the uncertainties and dangers of life is characteristic of the Wessex dwellers in the "Islands of the Vale," according to Eleanor G. Hayden, the author of the book of the title, who supports her statement with a story of humorous turn.

A certain cottage and its old mistress had improved so greatly in comfort and appearance that a visitor shrewdly surmised that the son of the house, a lazy ne'er-do-well, had turned over a new leaf. He inquired

"Yes, sir, my son's in work now," said the smiling old mother. "Takes good money, he does, too. All he has to do is to go twice a day to the circus and put his head in the lion's mouth. The rest of his time 'e 'as to himself."

No Case on Record.

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Parsons Drug Co.

For Insurance of All Kinds See the Anson Real Estate & Ins. Co.

OUR COMPANIES:

American Bonding Co. Dixie. Globe and Rutgers. Fidelity Firemens Home Niagara Phoenix Providence-Washington Southern Stock Southern Underwriters Underwiters U. L. Fidelity & Casualty Pennsylvania Casua'ty West Chester SOUTHERN LIBE & TRUST CO.

WE INSURE

Mercantile buildings Mercantile stocks Office furniture and fixtures Dwellings Household and kitchen furnitures Barns, live stock and vehicles Farming implements Hay, grain, etc. Livery stables Gins and cotton in bales Cotton seed and seed cotton Manufacturing plants Cord wood Churches and schools Saw mills and lumber Nood working plants Brick yard plants Machinery of all kinds Fiour mills Warehouses Country property City property Factories

And almost anything else that can burn. In life insurance, we represent the South-ERN LIFE & TRUST Co. The best company of all. We also write bonds, burglary, tornado, health, accident, plate glass steam boiler and employers liability in surance. We have what you want if its INSURANCE. Call us up, phone or write and we will come to see you. Our rates are as low as the lowest and our companies are as good as there is.

We are the only insurance agency in the county in position to keep insurance money

tate & Ins. Co.

T. C. Coxe and W. T. Rose, Mg'rs.

Office Up-Stairs Leak & Marshall Bldg. Special Train to RICHMOND Account Football Came Thanksgiving Day.

The Seaboard announces that they will perate special train Charlotte to Richmond and return account annual Football Game between University North Carolina and University Virginia, on Thanksgiving Day, November 26th.

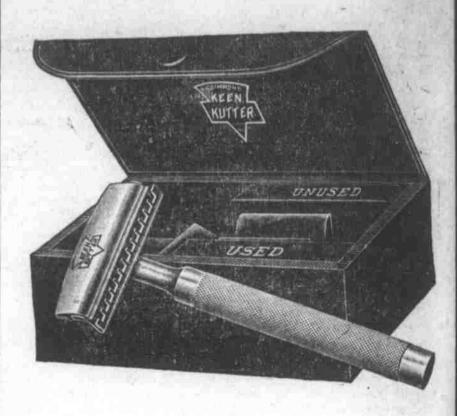

Special train will leave Charlotte at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 25th and will pass Wadesboro 10:10 p. m. arriving in Richmond 7:00 a. m. following morning Special train returning will leave Richmond midnight November 26th, giving those who desire to see the game also an

This train will be equipped with the very best high back seat, Vestibule Coaches:

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

KEEN CUTTER!

Do you know what this means? In hardware it means that that everything bearing this brand is second to none.

We have just added the Keen Cutter line of Salety Razors and invite you to look at our display in one of our show windows, Every one sold under a guarantee to satisfy, and we will give you 30 days free trial and if not satisfied with your bargain return it and get your money back. You can shave yourself quickly, easily and with very little trouble, And look at the amount you can save in barber bills, and if your time is worth anything it does not take long to pay for a Safety Razor. The price is $3.50.

Blalock H'dw're. Co.

Good Things

Libby's Salad Dressing Libby's Sweet and Sour Gherkins Libby's White Onions Libby's Preserved Raspberries Libby's Preserved Strawberries Anson Real Es- Libby's Preserved Cherries Libby's Honeycombe Tripe Libby's Dried Beef Underwood's Original Deviled Ham Franco-American Food Co's Soups High Grade Roasted and Green Coffee Have just received car load Maryland

> Phone Us Your Wants.

Cream High Patent Flour.

HARDISON PHONE NO. 8.